Flaming Tanker Sinks, Taking Three to Death After 32 Are Rescued

Captain of Doomed Oil Ship Refuses to Leave Post.

Fire Disables Wireless of Vessel Off North Carolina Coast.

New York (Saturday), July 15 (A. P.).—The tanker Cities Service Petrol burned and sank in the ocean off North Carolina early today, taking down with her Capt. F. L. Sears, who refused to leave, and two members of the crew who were killed on board, presumably battling the flames.

The rest of the crew were picked up by another tanker, the Gulf Gem, and the steamer Tri-Mountain. Reports as to their number varied from 32 upward, and no official list was available.

A graphic story of the disaster came in this message to the Radio Marine Corporation from the Gulf Gem:

"Burning steamship Cities Service Petrol sank stern first at 11:30 p. m. (standard or daylight time not specified) just after eight men were taken off in heavy sea by boat crew of the Gulf Gem.

Number in Crew Varies.

"Captain refused to leave his burning ship and two other men were killed aboard.

"Thirty-four in all picked up. Some injured.

"Gulf Gem proceeding to Charleston, S. C. (about 90 miles away) with rescued crew."

An earlier message had said that the Tri-Mountain had picked up "one lifeboat" from the doomed vessel without specifying how many men were in it.

Port authorities in Port Arthur, Tex., whence the tanker cleared July 8 with a cargo of 1,488 tons of Texas crude oil for Warren, Pa., said the crew numbered only 32.

Wireless Disabled.

First word of the tragedy came crackling through the ether shortly before 10 o'clock (Eastern Standard time) last night from the rescuing tanker. The blaze aboard the Cities Service Petrol apparently had roared through the ship, disabling her wireless before an S O S could be broadcast.

The Coast Guard cutter Champlain sped out from New York to go to the rescue, and from Norfolk, Va., the cutters Ponchartrain and Travis were dispatched.

Before they could reach the scene, however, the Gulf Gem and her men had done all they could and had seen the fiery hulk slide beneath the waves.

Weather Was Heavy.

Before she had completed the rescue, the Gulf Gem sent another message:

"Picked up one lifeboat and sixteen men. Now alongside burning ship. Attempting to rescue captain and men on bow. Cities Service Petrol seems to be settling more and more and is in flames. Heavy weather."

The "men on bow" apparently got off and soon there came another message:

"Picked up 22 men of crew of burning Cities Service Petrol. Some injured. Captain refuses to leave ship."

And Capt. Sears stayed to the end. Information as to his family and residence was lacking.

Arrest Reveals O'Connell Clew

Kidnaping Go-Between

Albany Man Assertedly Knows Hideout of Abductors.

Family Meets Demand for New List of "Go-Betweens."

Albany, N. Y., July 14 (A.P.).—The first arrest in the O'Connell kidnaping case was made today in Buffalo as the Up-State politically powerful family publicized a third group of negotiators demanded by the abductors in a letter.

Guy Nolan, 40, who was reported to have said he knew where abductors held John J. O'Connell, jr., 24-year-old nephew of Edward and Daniel O'Connell, Democratic leaders, was apprehended at the request of District Attorney John Delaney, of Albany County. Nolan also was understood to have remarked he heard in a Syracuse restaurant the plotting of the kidnaping.

The family happily identified a signature to a letter from the abductors as that of young O'Connell. This they interpreted to mean he was safe and sound.

Receive Letter.

The letter, addressed to "Dan" O'Connell, was the fourth received by the family. The first received last Saturday, the day after the boy was stolen, was the only previous one signed by young O'Connell.

Among the intermediaries suggested today was Sylvester Hess, companion of the late Jack "Legs" Diamond, and said by police to have been the last person with the gangster before he was shot to death in an Albany rooming house in December, 1931. Diamond's slayers never were arrested.

Other go-betweens mentioned today included Fred Roma, a beer garden proprietor; Terry Riley, a former stage hand; Charles Wachter, a Troy brewer; Tony Condi, former driver of a beer truck; Manny Strewel, a beer distributor; Jim O'Connor, operator of one of Albany's most widely patronized beer gardens; Dave Shan and Joe Curro, a former beer truck driver.

U. S. Increases Force.

A second agency of the Federal Government was preparing today to enter the investigation, District Attorney Oliver Borden having advised the Associated Press he would call upon the postal inspection department to advise him if the postal laws had been violated in the forwarding of the kidnap letters.

Alton, Ill., July 14 (A.P.).—Agents of the family of August Leur, elderly banker, announced late today they were negotiating with his kidnapers, but that lack of any note bearing Luer's hand writing was holding up further action in the case.

Atlanta, July 14 (A.P.).—Identification by John K. Ottley, president of the First National Bank, of a photograph from New York police files carrying the name of William Delinski, former sailor and stationery salesman, as the leader of his two kidnapers today spurred city and county authorities in their search for the missing man.

Court Dissolves Writ Issued Temporarily

Hearing on Preliminary Injunction Is Set for Tuesday.

A motion by The Washington Times Company, which publishes the Washington Herald and the Washington Times, to dissolve the temporary order restraining the publication in either paper of "The Gumps," "Dick Tracy," "Winnie Winkle," "Gasoline Alley," and certain other features, was argued yesterday before Justice Proctor in the District Supreme Court.

This restraining order, obtained on July 12 in a suit brought by The Washington Post Publishing Company, was to have run until July 18. A motion of The Washington Post Publishing Company for a preliminary injunction is set for argument on that date.

The court granted the motion of The Washington Times Company and dissolved the restraining order. A hearing on the preliminary injunction will be held on Tuesday, July 18.

$1,300 for Phone Spent by Moley

Brain Trust Chief Says He'll Pay Personal Items on Bill.

(United Press.)

Assistant Secretary of State Raymond Moley was dismayed to learn yesterday that he had run up a $1,300 telephone bill for the week he attended the World Economic Conference at London.

The chief of the "brain trust" also was informed $500 had been spent for an airplane which he had ordered but not used during his rapid journeys back and forth across England.

"All matters of expense," Moley said, "were handled by another member of the party. When I see the expense account I shall pay for the personal part of it and the Government will pay for the official business. I had no notion the airplane charge would be so great."

One Pennsylvanian Is Dead in Shooting

Philadelphia, July 14 (A.P.).—Harry Maupay, 24, of Fort Washington, Pa., was killed and his close friend, Isaac D. Hetzell 3d, 22-year-old grandson and heir of the late Philadelphia political leader of the same name, was seriously wounded tonight in a mysterious shooting affray in Hetzell's apartment.

Maupay, grandson of John Wilkinson, an official of a tank car corporation of Oreland, Pa., died of a bullet wound in the head a short time after being rushed to a hospital.

Hetzel suffered two wounds in the back.

Kidnaping Terror Reign Is Reported

Buffalo, N. Y., July 14 (A.P.). The Buffalo Evening News said today "a mob of strong-arm gunmen" was kidnaping gamblers and speakeasy proprietors almost nightly in this city and in neighboring communities and forcing them to pay ransom before freeing them.

In cases where the victims proved obstinate, the News said, beatings were administered and the victims were held until their families or friends paid the ransome demanded.

"The amounts gathered thus vary from $200 to $2,000," the News reported.

Police Commissioner Austin Roche said no resident had appealed to the police for protection.

British Call U. S. Inflation Wildcat Plan

Frown on "Whoopee" Method Credited to Americans.

Dominions Exert Strong Influence

Pressure Can't Sway Kingdom to Quit Slow Course.

(Copyright, 1933, by the Associated Press.)

London, July 14 (A.P.).—The British Dominions, it was learned from the highest quarters tonight, while undoubtedly exerting strong pressure on the mother country to follow the example of the United States in an inflationary policy, will be unable to move the United Kingdom from her present settled policy unless there are definite indications within the mother country itself that such a move is demanded.

These indications, it was said, are lacking at present.

"We are going slow in the direction toward an increase in price values," the Associated Press informant said. "America is going fast in wildcat fashion. But you can't combine the two. A slow motion wildcat would be most unimpressive.

"We have done everything Washington has done except the ballyhoo," he continued. "After all, you must consider that when a man like Neville Chamberlain (chancellor of the exchequer), says whoopee, there is a long pause between whoop and ee and both Chamberlain and Walter Runciman (president of the Board of Trade, are congenitally opposed to whoopee, so what chance have you?

Attitude Approved.

"Despite some rather loud voices raised in criticism of the policy of the present British government, there has been ample indication, satisfactory to its members, in recent by-elections that it is generally acceptable.

"Meanwhile since the first of the year we have increased the index of our commodity prices by 8 per cent. That is not so spectacular as the increase in the States—16 per cent in gold prices, I believe—but it is satisfactory to us and we believe we are on the right road.

"We listened carefully to Raymond Moley (Assistant Secretary of State in the Roosevelt administration) when he was here, but we did not hear specific proposals how we might help.

"As we see it the principle advantage from the Washington policy is to be the debtors' advantage. Undoubtedly, then, our Dominions—their present status being what it is—would reap considerable benefit from our following Washington's lead more than we have done already.

Nervously Watching.

"Particularly was this the case when the dollar was quoted at about $4.05 (to the pound). Then it really crashed and our impression now is that the Dominions are viewing developments nervously. Certainly it is felt here that the Dominions would feel very timorous about casting loose from the mother country into the dark. We don't believe they will.

"And until there are indications at home that the United Kingdom must follow—and those indications are lacking—the United Kingdom will follow its settled potlicy.

"The principal result of the Dominions' pressure is likely to be to prevent us tying ourselves too firmly to the franc and its deflationary policy. But I repeat, there is not so much essential difference between America's policy today and Great Britain's—except the ballyhoo.

The American delegation began a drive today to complete its work in preparation for closing out the world economic conference on July 27.

At least two new American resolutions may be submitted in the final sessions, one dealing with prolongation of the tariff truce and the other with joint policies designed to lift price levels.

Oklahoma May Vote On Repeal in 1934

Oklahoma City, July 14 (A.P.).—Oklahoma's Legislature tonight passed and sent to Gov. W. H. Murray a resolution providing for a vote on repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Under the resolution Oklahoma will vote on the question at the first general election in 1934, unless Murray calls a special election after delegates are chosen by congressional district conventions December 5. The Senate passed the House resolution, 26 to 13. The House passed the measure, 62 to 25.

Strange Romance.

Girl Who Shot Suitor Reveals Love Mistake

Would-Be Suicide Tells of Discovery That Boy Was Colored.

The death of her sweetheart from a bullet intended to take her own life yesterday added to the tragic situation of a white girl, who, after almost a year of romance, discovered her suitor had colored blood in his veins.

The dead man is Albert Fletcher, 27, 1607 T street northwest, who died early yesterday in Emergency Hospital from a bullet which struck him in the left shoulder and took a downward course.

The girl is Frances Catherine Allen, 29, 1229 Twelfth street northwest, who said she had the gun with her to commit suicide, but that it was accidentally discharged when Fletcher tried to wrest it from her.

Shot in Automobile.

The shooting occurred in front of Miss Allen's residence while the couple were sitting in Fletcher's expensive automobile. They had just returned from a ride when Fletcher noticed the gun, Miss Allen told Homicide Squad detectives. Then, she said, she told Fletcher she intended to commit suicide, and the tussle followed.

Bordering on collapse yesterday afternoon at the Women's Detention Home, Miss Allen told police that she just recently learned that Fletcher, a blue-eyed, light-complexioned man, was colored.

She said she discovered Fletcher was colored when she went to a police station last May to post collateral for him on a traffic violation charge. After that, she said, she refused to see him, but he insisted on visiting her.

Brother Questioned.

Questioned at police headquarters yesterday afternoon, Fletcher's brother, William, admitted that Albert had been carrying on a love affair with the girl, and added that his brother never went out with girls of his own race. His mother, however, denied any knowledge of the affair.

Miss Allen told police that she had been warned by telephone and mail not to see Fletcher and that she thought he had tried to take her life on two occasions. He shot at her once while she was in Rock Creek Park and once near her home, she said.

Police are holding an unmailed letter to Miss Allen's mother in Binghamton, N. Y., expressing suicide intent.

A coroner's inquest will be held Monday.

"God and Democrats" Aiding State, Says Judge

Denver, July 14 (A.P.).—Through "the grace of God, the United States Government, and perhaps the Democratic party," Colorado farm land and prices may increase in value, said District Judge Robert W. Steel in a formal opinion today.

Judge Steel dismissed an action of stockholders against an investment company to recover for depreciated farm loans with the observation that the loans were made in good faith and an appreciation of land values may restore their values.

Compulsory Pay Scale Code Will Be Aired by President and Johnson

Roosevelt Informs Cabinet Rehiring Plan Must Be Used

President Feels Further Orders Are Unnecessary to Give Civil Service Workers Preferential Status for Recovery Agency Jobs.

By Robert C. Albright.

President Roosevelt has made clear to his executive council, comprising both old line Cabinet members and heads of the new Federal agencies, that they are expected to give preference to civil service unemployed, it was stated emphatically yesterday at the White House.

This disclosure backed up the original statement of White House policy in the matter.

The President was represented as feeling this stand supplied all the instructions necessary to put the Federal reemployment program into immediate operation.

Meanwhile, the Civil Service Commission is considering setting up a reviewing board in each of the Government departments to pass on complaints of unfair efficiency ratings, President Roosevelt is informed.

The preliminary plan would provide for appeals from these departmental boards to a more central agency, the nature of which has not been determined finally, according to White House information.

This development followed announcement several days ago that a board of review, with the Civil Service Commission, Government employes and disinterested citizens represented, is being considered to iron out differences arising from rating revision.

Coincident with yesterday's White House statement that heads of the new agencies know they are supposed to make appointments from the civil service reemployment list, the Federal News, weekly newspaper of the National Federation of Federal Employes, prepared to urge the issuance of specific White House directions.

"In the interest of the merit system it is to be hoped that the Presi-

Northern Coal Owners Draft Recovery Code

Southern Bituminous Unit to Compare Two Plans Here Monday.

New York, July 14 (A.P.).—Representatives of Northern bituminous coal operators completed a code for their branch of the industry under the national recovery act tonight after an intensive 48-hour session.

This code and one drafted last week by a Southern group will be compared at a conference in Washington Monday afternoon, when an effort will be made to reconcile whatever differences may be found to exist and draw up a single code for immediate submission to the Federal administration.

Both the Northern code completed today and the Southern code provide minimum wages and maximum working weeks and meet the other requirements which the administration has set forth. The details of the provisions, however, are being withheld until after the Washington conference.

No effort will be made to reconcile the North-South code expected from the Washington meeting with the code already submitted to the administration by union operators. The combined North-South groups, however, represent approximately 70 per cent of the total bituminous production in this country, it was said.

The Northern group, which organized itself today under the name of the Northern Coal Control Association, represents four large producing areas—Pennsylvania, northern West Virginia, Maryland and eastern Ohio. The Southern group—the Smokeless & Appalachian Coal Association—represents operators in southern West Virginia, eastern Kentucky, Tennessee and Virginia.

U. S. Must Shift Course, Rainey Tells Box Men

Chicago, July 14 (A.P.).—America must strike out for itself, Speaker Henry T. Rainey, of Illinois, told the National Paper Box Manufacturers Association today.

"I'm a nationalist now," Speaker Rainey said. "I've become one in the last week. We must change our course, shift our sails and win this economic battle. Let us be a nation, even if it is necessary to be a small nation."

Post to Leave Today On 'Round-World Hop

New York, July 14 (A.P.).—Wiley Post announced tonight he will take off at 3 a. m. (Eastern standard time) tomorrow from Floyd Bennett Field on his attempt to fly around the world alone.

He will use the reconditioned airplane Winnie Mae, in which he and Harold Gatty made their 'round-the-world record of 8 days 15 hours in 1931.

Maximum Work Hours Also to Be Topic of Discussion.

Recovery Administrator to Meet Roosevelt on Potomac.

By J. Bernard McDonnell.

The administration is seeking to find in the national recovery act authority to promulgate compulsory national scales of minimum wages and maximum working hours.

The question is to be the subject of a conference between President Roosevelt and Brig. Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, aboard the President's boat down the Potomac tomorrow. Gen. Johnson is to fly down to the conference armed with the data he has gathered and the plan he has evolved in the last several days since the task was turned over to him.

Whether authority exists for a compulsory code is doubtful and an alternative plan contemplates setting up three or four standards of wages and hours to which industry throughout the Nation would be asked to subscribe voluntarily and put immediately into effect.

Cement Group Acts.

The cement industry informed the recovery administration that it intended to put into effect at once the wage and hour provisions of its prospective code. The code will provide for a minimum wage of 40 cents an hour and a maximum work week of 36 hours.

Charles F. Conn, president of the Cement Institute, wrote Gen. Johnson the scale would be effective not later than August 1. Many mills already have increased wages and reduced hours, Mr. Conn said. The plan represented 97 per cent of production capacity and 91 per cent of the plants, Conn added.

The rayon and silk industries have asked that they be permitted to come under the cotton textile code, which becomes effective on Monday. This, Gen. Johnson said, would be a temporary arrangement pending submission of individual codes by the two industries. Some of the woloen industry also is said to be anxious to get in under the cotton code.

Formulation of a retail code has been the subject of conferences between business men and administration officials and a retail code is just about ready, the Administrator said. It probably will provide for divisions, allowing for differences in the character and problems of the various classes of retailing businesses.

Tension Relieved.

Receipt of several important codes in the last few days has somewhat eased the tension which had existed in administration circles because of the holding back on the part of major business leaders. The men's garment industry submitted a code yesterday, but the recovery administration would not make it public until time was had for its study to determine whether it would be acceptable.

Fixing a definite date by which time all codes must be submitted still is under consideration, but it apparently is not pressing so hard for decision as it was a few days ago, despite the fact that the code of the steel industry has not been submitted, although it has been promised from day to day for a week or more. Gen. Johnson said he thought the delay was due to the desire of the code framer to get the entire industry to sign it.

Gerard Swope, president of the General Electric Co., will act as industrial advisor to the administration during consideration of the electric code.

Indianan Given Treasurership Of Home Loan

P. J. Maloney Will Direct Finances in 2 Billion Aid Corporation.

P. J. Maloney, telephone company executive of Columbia City, Ind., has been appointed treasurer of the new $2,000,000,000 Home Owners Loan Corporation, it was learned last night.

In his new capacity, Mr. Maloney will oversee the financial handling of a $2,000,000,000 bond issue floated to refinance home mortgages throughout the country. These bonds will be paid to mortgage-holders in return for mortgages on small homes. The corporation's capital stock is all owned by the Government.

The only previous public office held by Mr. Maloney was in 1917, when he served as deputy treasurer of Whitley County, Ind. Later he became interested in various independent telephone companies in that State. Former Vice President Thomas R. Marshall served as director of several of these companies while Mr. Maloney was connected with them.

Mr. Maloney was born in Columbia City, where his father and grandfather also lived. All three of them have been stanch Democrats, Mr. Maloney said. The new appointee was educated at Tri-State College and at the University of Indiana. For a time he taught school at the Whitley County High School.

Mr. Maloney expects to take office some time next week. He is now staying at the Mayflower Hotel, but expects to return to Indiana to wind up his affairs before coming to Washington to live.

Argentina Asks Death As Kidnaping Penalty

Buenos Aires, July 14 (A.P.).—The government placed its influence behind a measure to reestablish the death penalty in Argentina for premeditated murder and kidnaping when Minister of Justice Iriondo went before the Senate today and intervened in the debate. He said the public demanded the step.

The measure is likely to pass the Senate, but its chances in the Chamber of Deputies are less favorable.

Judge, Unluckily, Didn't Like Fish

Salt Lake City, July 14 (A.P.). Cellmates initiated Bert Ivie into the Royal Order of Sweating Fish. They told him Judge V. L. MCarthy also was a member.

When Ivie faced the judge on charges of failure to support three minor children, he gave the high sign.

"I am a little fish," he intoned, "a son of a big fish and a member of the Royal Order of Sweating Fish."

"Order! Order!" the judge responded. Nonetheless, Ivie proceeded:

"No matter how fast a little fish swims, he never sweats——"

"Shut up and sit down!" the court roared.

That wasn't in the ritual, either, but Ivie pressed on. A deputy sheriff silenced Ivie with a hand over his mouth.

Ivie's preliminary hearing was set for July 19.

Excursion Rail Rates Offered To Fire Parade

Special Arrangement May Spur Large Southern Attendance.

Excursion rates of 1 cent a mile from any point in the South to Washington in connection with the eleventh annual National Firemen's Labor Day parade were announced yesterday by the Southern Railway.

Southern officials plan to bring firemen from every State in the South to the Nation's Capital this year, and are working directly with the parade committee.

In the past, the South has been represented only by a few companies from North Carolina. Several years ago, a delegation came from South Carolina, but never has any considerable number of firefighters traveled from the far South. Virginia, of course, is well represented at every parade.

To Ask Other Roads.

The parade committee plans to ask the cooperation of other railroads in stimulating interest through Northern and Western States, by excursion rates and reduced fares.

At the same time the railways are being concentrated upon, the parade committee is giving more attention to the proposal of a three-day program, starting Saturday, September 2, and concluding Monday night after the parade.

With such a plan in mind, the committee is urging firemen to make the trip to Washington this year their vacation, and to spend a week or more in the Capital.

Another Band Enrolled.

Sergt. A. J. Bargagni, parade marshal, stated yesterday that the second band for the parade had enrolled. This is the National Capital Cadet Band, under the leadership of Charles F. Williams. It consists of 100 members.

The Loew's Theater Cadet Band already has signed up for the parade. This unit, one of the most spectacular bands in the country, consists of more than 300 boys and girls. It is led by Capt. J. M. McKenzie.

Sergt. Bargagni has sent invitations to many bands and drum corps, but it is impossible to reach all of them, as many have been formed since the last parade. He has asked The Post to issue a call to all uninvited bands and marching units to communicate with him through the fire department if they would like to compete for the many prizes.

Labor Head Quits Pennsylvania Post

Dr. Northrup Says He Was Not Allowed to Run Office as He Desired.

Harrisburg, Pa., July 14 (A.P.).—Dr. A. M. Northrup, secretary of labor and industry, today handed his resignation to Gov. Pinchot. It was accepted.

Dr. Northrup called attention to strike activities in Pennsylvania and then wrote:

"As secretary of labor and industry, after careful study, I do not believe this is the time to foment strikes when the working man is desperately in need of employment and the employer is so seriously handicapped by industrial conditions. Both labor and industry inevitably suffer when strife and hatred are employed to settle difficulties.

"As the secretary of this department, I should not take a partisan stand, it being my duty to administer my office in an impartial manner. Not being permitted to conduct my office according to this standard, I respectively submit my resignation, effective August 1."

Work for 150 Men Created By Street Job

Four Months' Employment Result of Finances for Improvement.

Jobs for about 150 men for four months will be created by the widening of Constitution avenue, from Virginia avenue to the river, on funds provided by the Public Works Administration, it was learned yesterday.

The work is expected to start between August 15 and September 1. Most of those employed will be unskilled laborers, Col. James A. Woodruff, executive officer of the Arlington Memorial Bridge Commission, said.

The Public Works Administration approved a grant of $200,000 to the commission for improving the approaches to the bridge. All of this will be needed to widen Constitution avenue to 80 feet, Col. Woodruff estimated.

The actual construction work will be done under direction of the Bureau of Public Roads of the Department of the Interior. The engineering work and the letting of contracts will be done by the Roads Bureau, although the plans already have been prepared by the commission. The commission will go out of existence before the work can begin, as it is to be merged with other groups and put under the Department of the Interior. All road work of this department is done by the Roads Bureau.

This arrangement will probably mean that all future road construction work in the District park system will be done by the Public Roads Bureau, as all District parks will be under the Interior Department.

The Federal Government already owns the right of way for the widened road, so that work can start as soon as bids are let. Time for advertising for them must be allowed.

Peace Between U. S. and Japan Is Held as Vital

Debuchi Asserts Tokyo Seeks to Strengthen Friendship.

By Morgan Baker.

Japan regards peace with the United States as essential and constantly is striving to strengthen cordial relations, Ambassador Katsuji Debuchi said yesterday.

However, when asked to outline a definite policy and enumerate specific reasons why Japan has no desire for a rupture with America, the Ambassador countered with a demand for an American statement on desirability of peace.

Mr. Debuchi called attention to the large trade between the two countries, Japan being America's third best customer and America the leading purchaser of Japanese products.

Exports to Tokyo for the first four months of this year, the low mark of the depression, totaled $34,524,000 and imports were $29,203,000, according to Department of Commerce figures. This trade is gaining steadily and Japanese purchases are being increased further. Negotiations for large shipments of cotton and steel are under way through the consul general in New York, it was revealed at the embassy. War would kill this market and would be disastrous to cultural progress, the ambassador agreed.

Both nations are profiting extensively through exchanges of scientific, industrial and artistic knowledge under an unbroken reign of peace. American business and social customs are found advantageous to a considerable degree throughout the Island Empire. It is the purpose of Japan, to the utmost of her ability, to preserve friendly relations with her transpacific neighbor, Mr. Debuchi pointed out.

Unpaid Chicago Teachers Protest Retrenchment Plan

3,000 Parade With Signs Decrying School Boards' Economy Program.

Chicago, July 14 (A.P.).—More than 3,000 unpaid public school teachers today paraded through downtown streets in protest against the board of education's retrenchment policies.

The marching pedagogues, with banners and placards recalled frequent demonstrations last spring against teaching without pay checks.

The economy program announced by the school board provided for consolidation of many departments, eradication of others and curtailment of the teaching force.

Some of the banners read:

"Gratitude—5½ months with no pay—now fired."

"A century of ignorance."

"Don't let the bankers cheat your children out of an education."

The paraders, which included many students and their parents, set out from Michigan boulevard within sight of the World's Fair, but they did not picket it as they had threatened.

The march was orderly, to the music of several school bands.

Dr. George F. Zook, newly appointed United States Commissioner of Education, told an educational convention "it was more than reasonably apparent that the board has gone about its reductions in a wholly unintelligent way."

President Robert M. Hutchins, of the University of Chicago, termed it a "backward step." President Lotus D. Coffman, of the University of Minnesota, called it a "crime against youth."

Leaders of a teachers' and parents' group sent a telegram to President Roosevelt, Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior; Miss Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, and Gen. Hugh Johnson, administrator of the Federal industrial recovery act, protesting against the retrenchment program.

The message pointed out that Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago is in Washington, and asked those to whom it was addressed "to show to the mayor the contradictions between these actions of the school board and the constructive, intelligent and far-seeing policy of the national administration."

Adopted Heiress Wins Divorce From Student

Bridgeport, Conn., July 14 (A.P.).—Fredericka Fry del Guercio, heiress to the fortune of Mrs. Georgia Timken Fry, Greenwich artist, who adopted her, was granted a divorce today from Eligio del Guercio, New York law student. The action, which was uncontested, charged cruelty.

The couple was married in Greenwich April 15, 1931, the day after Mrs. Del Guercio's twenty-first birthday, when she came into the estate willed to her by her adopted mother, who died in 1921.

Hitler Decrees Private Riches May Be Seized

Citizenships Also May Be Withdrawn Under the New Ruling.

Berlin, July 14 (A.P.).—The Hitler cabinet issued a decree today permitting withdrawal of citizenship rights and seizure of private fortunes from persons, both within and without the country, who are regarded as undesirable by the government.

If broadly applied, this decree would result in conflict with American and other nations' immigration laws. Under the decree, Minister of Interior Wilhelm Frick can order Germans traveling or living abroad to return immediately to Germany in event their activities displease the Hitler government. Failure to obey would result in withdrawal of their citizenship and seizure of their property.

Return Is Barred.

Germans so affected can not return here and likely would be forced on the country where they are sojourning.

Other decrees ordered a careful recheck, based on ancestry and attitude toward the government, of all eastern Europeans who have immigrated to Germany and received citizen's papers since the 1918 revolution. (An estimated 160,000 Jews immigrated to Germany since the war from eastern countries.)

It was expected that proscription lists would be compiled immediately. The law is likely to be applied against thousands who have fled from the country and who would then have to ask the League of Nations for "Nansen passports" for persons without countries.

Political Ban Looms.

The newspaper Angriff said the cabinet also is likely to pass a law forbidding future attempts to organize political parties and ruling such activities as high treason.

The Hessian government decreed today that Jewish children must attend school on Saturdays although that is their Sabbath day. In Hamburg seven women principals of girls high schools will be replaced by men as the Hamburg government insists only men may head girls' schools.

Doctor Faces Quiz In Torture by Gang

Hospital Guard Is Kept Over Intended Victim of Mutilation.

St. Paul, July 14 (A.P.).—Police today awaited the release of Dr. W. H. Hedburg from a hospital, possibly to question him further about the attack four men plotted against him.

They said every clew had been exhausted in the search for the reasons underlying the intended mutilating operation on the St. Paul chiropractor, which Dr. E. J. Engberg, prominent physician, was lured out at night to perform. He refused and was drugged by the gang.

A detective guarded Hedberg's hospital room. Chief of Police Thomas Dahill said there was "great possibility" that he would be held for questioning when he was released from the institution.

Engberg is recovering, as is Hedberg, who was lured from his home, anesthetized and shot in the lobe of the ear.

Four Bombs Rock Town in Illinois

Mine Union War Blasts Damage Home and 2 Assembly Halls.

Johnston City, Ill., July 14 (A.P.).—Four bombs rocked Johnston City today, damaging two assembly halls, a filling station and the home of a member of the Progressive Miners faction.

The halls damaged were gathering places for Progressive Miners.

The home of Rudolph Stucker, a Progressive Miner, was the target for the third bomb, which fell short in Stucker's yard, cracking several windows.

The bombings are the latest in the long Illinois mine union war, which so far has resulted in 15 deaths and injuries to scores of persons.

Monopoly Policy Cited in Oil Trade

Dallas, Tex., July 14 (U.P.).—A few major units of the oil industry harbor a monopolistic policy contrary to the administration's industrial recovery program, Texas oil belt bankers and civic leaders telegraphed Gen. Hugh S. Johnson tonight.

The protest assured the Federal industrial recovery director of the willingness of the Texas group to support oil stabilization, but asked a hearing before a code of practice for the industry is adopted.

"On the eve of the launching by the Roosevelt administration of its program for industrial recovery," the telegram said, "we are faced by the stubborn refusal of a few major units of the oil industry to pay a fair price—a living wage—to oil producers."

Langley Man Seeks Allen's Delegate Seat

John C. Mackall Announces Candidacy in Primary and and Vacancy Elections.

John Chichester Mackall, of Langley, last night announced his candidacy for the Virginia House of Delegates from Fairfax County in both the Democratic primary election on August 1 and the special election on August 15 to fill the vacancy caused by the sudden death of Edmund H. Allen, Tuesday night.

Mr. Mackall will be opposed in the primary by L. C. Painter, whose name is on the official ballot. Mr. Mackall's name will have to be written on the ballot, as it had been prepared prior to Mr. Allen's death.

Mr. Mackall stated he stood on the national Democratic platform, favoring the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, returning the control of liquor to the States and the immediate legalization of beer in Virginia.

Mr. Mackall is 36 years old and was born and raised near Langley in Fairfax County. He received his elementary education in the county schools and was a student of the University of Virginia when the World War broke out. He left college and entered the Air Corps, becoming a second lieutenant. After the war, he returned to the university, graduating in law in 1921. Since then he has been practicing in Fairfax County and Washington.

He has been active in the political circles of the county and is an ardent Democrat. He is director of the National Bank of Fairfax, the County Fair Association, the Fairfax-Alexandria Building and Loan Association and the Great Falls-Dranesville Highway Co.

Owing to the short time since Mr. Allen's death, Mr. Mackall states that he has not been able to formulate his platform in regard to local questions, but pledges himself to carry out the principles of Mr. Allen for the welfare of the county.

Federal Pay Plan Will Get Airing

dent will see fit immediately to supplement and buttress his reported statements of this week by an emphatic order that the administrators of the new agencies must draw required personnel from the list of available persons with civil service status." The Federal News will state editorially today.

"The White House has made plain its conviction of the correctness and soundness of the merit system and has indicated its wish that this system be upheld by the administrators of the emergency agencies. But in view of the tremendous pressure of the spoilsmen it is only too plain that sooner or later the President will need to go considerably beyond his statement of principles. That decisive step should be taken now."

New hope for reemployment in some of the old line departments was stimulated yesterday by the Public Works Administration's allotment of $64,561,542 to Federal projects, which would be administered through governmental agencies. This represented a large lump, but not nearly all, of the funds sought by Federal agencies.

Several department heads have indicated their dismissal and furlough programs would not be so drastic, and in many cases reemployment would be possible, if these public works funds were granted.

Among those so stating was Secretary of Commerce Roper, chairman of the President's special Cabinet committee on reemployment. Secretary Roper asked for $10,000,000 for the Commerce Department alone. Yesterday, five agencies in his department were allotted $6,076,551 of that total. Eleven Interior Department agencies received $53,042,319. Other departments were granted allotments.

Meantime, several hundred Federal employes, who received dismissal notices early this month, prepared to work their last day for the Government today. Roughly, the number was estimated at 1,000 in all of the departments. Other hundreds will be forced to leave July 30, unless the Civil Service reemployment program, supported by the President, has absorbed the slack by that time.

Chairman Harry B. Mitchell, of the Civil Service Commission, yesterday denied reports that reemployment lists are not considered if workers are available for transfer from one agency to another. The fact is, he said, that those whose names are on the reemployment registers are certified at once.

Indiana War Mothers' Leader Hurt in Crash

Kansas City, July 14 (A.P.).—Mrs. Mary E. Hahn, of Indianapolis, president of the Indiana War Mothers, was injured critically today in a motor car accident near here. Mrs. George W. Powell, of Denver, president of the Colorado War Mothers, was injured slightly.

The car, which was driven by Mrs. A. E. Swearingen, of Kansas City, got out of control and overturned.

Ickes Selected To Guide U. S. Oil Cut Fight

Justice Department Will Prosecute to Help Offended States.

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Ickes was designated yesterday by President Roosevelt to enforce his executive order prohibiting the shipment in interstate commerce of oil produced in excess of State regulations.

The Cabinet officer prepared at once to put the Government into the fight against excessive production.

Ickes said regulations to enforce the order would be drafted immediately. In the face of reports that illegal oil was being sent out of Texas to get ahead of the Government, lawyers of the Interior Department prepared to work all night in an effort to get the regulations out tomorrow.

Even before the President's order designating Ickes was issued, it had been assumed the Interior Department would be charged with enforcement of the decree and that branch of the Government had already gone to work in preparation for the task.

Plans were made to call upon the Justice Department to institute any prosecutions that might be found necessary.

Note Proves Clew To Woman Suicide

Identity Is Withheld in Letter Left by Victim of Drowning.

San Diego, Calif., July 14 (A.P.).—The first clew to the identity of a middle-aged woman whose nude body was found floating in the surf Wednesday off Coronado, was provided today by a note left by an unidentified person, July 6, on the desk of the clerk of the County Board of Supervisors.

Addressed to the supervisors, the note said:

"If you find the body of a woman, middle-aged, with blue eyes and light brown hair, in the ocean, it will be a case of suicide, no one to blame. Am from Detroit. I have no reason for suicide other than that I am tired of living and have no money. For verification write to Mrs. G. F. Bettinger, my aunt, in Detroit. No name needed, as no one knowe me here.

Coroner Chester Gunn said the description given in the note fitted the woman whose body was found.

Gold Ore Export Legality Studied

President Seeking Way to Assist Producers to Good Prices.

(Associated Press.)

Interested in the efforts of American gold miners to find a way to the world's market price, President Roosevelt has asked Attorney General Cummings to study the legality of exporting gold ore under the existing gold embargo.

The problem has resolved itself into a legal one with the question being to determine whether the United States gold embargo on bullion applies also to gold ore.

Mr. Roosevelt feels it vital to maintain the gold embargo in view of the international gold war. However, he is hopeful of finding a way by legal process to permit American gold producers to obtain the higher price which is available in the markets outside of the United States.

Deflated College Curricula Is Seen

Chicago, July 14 (A.P.).—Irrelevant and nonessential elements of college programs are rapidly disappearing under the present economic pressure, Dr. Homer P. Rainey, president of Bucknell University, Lewisburg, Pa., today told the Institute for Administrative Officers of Higher Institutions at its closing meeting.

Colleges, he said, will emerge from the depression with deflated curricula and fundamental changes in methods of instruction.

"College revenues were greatly decreased during 1932-33," Rainey pointed out. "Returns from 168 colleges to a questionnaire of the American Council of Education indicated that their income for the year would be $9,000,000 less than in the previous year."

He said half the colleges responding to a questionnaire of the United States Office of Education had reduced salaries.

Notre Dame President's Resignation Plan Denied

South Bend, Ind., July 14 (A.P.).—Rumor that the Rev. Charles L. O'Donnell, C. S. C., who has been ill, plans to resign the presidency of the University of Notre Dame was denied today by the Very Rev. James A. Burns, C. S. C., provincial of the Congregation of the Holy Cross.

"Father O'Donnell is making a remarkable come-back from the streptococcus infection which struck him in March," he said, "and he is regaining his strength at the summer home of Fred J. Fisher, jr., of Detroit, in northern Michigan. He will be back in September."

U. S. Schedules 1,000,000 Jobs By October 1

District Will Receive $2,707,856 in Public Works Program.

Expenditure of the entire $3,300,000,000 public works fund, estimated to give 1,000,000 men full-time employment for a year, is contemplated by President Roosevelt.

A list of various projects, calling for expenditure of $115,513,610 was made public yesterday. Of this amount $2,707,856 was allocated to various projects in the District.

The list of approved projects, first to be announced, marked a reduction in the lists which had been submitted to the public works board by various departments and led to the suggestion that the administration might intend to follow economy suggestions and refrain from expending all of the authorized $3,300,000,000. This was definitely set at rest at the White House.

Board Meets Today.

Additional projects will be approved daily and funds provided for them. The public works board will meet today to go over several large projects and Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes, chairman of the works board, will confer with the President on the subject down the river tomorrow.

Among the additional items which are pending for consideration are building projects proposed by the War Department throughout the country. The department's program calls for varied expenditures totaling $2,707,856 in the District and approximately $8,000,000 in Maryland and Virginia.

There also is pending for early consideration a building program amounting to $22,716,500, which has been proposed by the District Commissioners.

River and harbor and flood control projects are expected to occupy the principal attention of the Chief Executive when he confers with Secretary Ickes tomorrow.

Distribution of Funds.

Although much of the works fund will be dished out in the nature of gifts and expended on Federal projects from which there will be no direct financial return, the President has laid down the rule that plans for so-called self-liquidating projects shall provide for a return of 70 per cent of the funds advanced to States and municipalities.

Of the $3,300,000,000 there has already been set aside $1,300,000,000 for naval construction, highways, home loans, and crops loans and another $600,000,000 is to provide for Federal projects already authorized or under way. About 30 per cent of the remainder is expected to be given toward the cost of State and local projects. Seventy per cent is expected to be paid back into the Treasury.

That there will be no reckless expenditures on public buildings was made clear. Where the Government can rent a postoffice cheaper than it can construct and maintain a building of its own that will be done it was made clear.

Plan Early Employment.

The President has made it clear in the course of his conferences that municipal light and power projects are to be given full consideration, despite the fuss which has been raised in some quarters about the utilization of Government funds to create municipal plants to compete with private enterprise.

Secretary Ickes said the program contemplated employment of 1,000,000 men by October 1, adding that the policy of the administration will be to approve "only work of permanent and real social value." There are a "vast" number of additional projects before the works board, he said, and the first list of approved projects was announced solely in the interest of speed, so that the employment program might get under way as quickly as possible. Approval of other projects is expected to be announced from day to day.

"A determining effort was made," the Secretary said, "to keep out any work that would cause the Government recurring expense or could not be started shortly and completed within a year."

Miss Perkins in Parley.

Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins conferred with a delegation representing the organized building trades workers yesterday and promised to lay before the works board today their plea for increased expenditures for building construction.

The delegation asked that $1,000,000,000 of the $3,300,000,000 be set aside for building construction. They urged construction of schools, hospitals, community centers, low cost housing projects and public buildings.

They told the Secretary that 80 per cent of the 1,500,000 workers in construction were out of regular jobs and had been for three years.

Bandit Killed, Another Is Shot In Bank Holdup

Convict Using Banker's Wife to Shield Self Slain in Kansas.

Parsons, Kans., July 13 (A.P.).—Coolly and with deadly marksmanship, Cashier Isaac McCarty, 35, shot down two bank robbers in the Labette County State Bank at Altamont today and saved his wife from being kidnaped or slain.

As one of the holdup men, Kenneth Conn, escaped convict, crouched behind a counter using Mrs. McCarty as a shield, the 35-year-old cashier leveled a rifle from a concealed position above the bank vault and shot Conn under the heart, killing him instantly.

A moment before McCarty had fired a charge from a shotgun which brought down Conn's companion, Alvin Payton, with wounds in the head which may prove fatal.

Both of the men were among the eleven who escaped from the Kansas Penitentiary Memorial Day by kidnaping the warden, Kirk Prather.

The robbers had planned to kidnap Mrs. McCarty in making their escape, and Conn threatened to kill her unless the firing ceased after Payton was shot. She was uninjured.

"My husband always said he would shoot to kill if he got a chance at a bandit in our bank," said Mrs. McCarty, attractive 27-year-old brunette. "But I didn't believe he would do it. Now I know he would and I am proud of him."

President Leaves For Week-End Sail

Ickes and Johnson Join Him Tomorrow on Eastern Shore.

With the country merrily rolling up the hill to recovery, President Roosevelt yesterday set sail for an extended week-end cruise to the Eastern Shore.

Tomorrow, Recovery Administrator Johnson and Secretary of the Interior Ickes will fly down to join him. The party which left Washington included Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Wallace, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Tugwell, Col. Louis Howe, the President's secretary, and Miss Margaret LeHand, his personal secretary.

The President's Eastern Shore destination has not been fixed, although he may visit Tangier Island and Tangier Sound. He visited these waters often in the past, but has not been there since his inauguration. He may also go up either the Patuxent or the Rappahannock rivers, depending on wind and tide. Fishing will be a part of the holiday program. The return to Washington is scheduled for tomorrow night.

18,000 Meals Served Daily At St. Elizabeths Hospital

40 Cozy Dining Rooms Replace Old Mess Hall; Dieticians Direct Preparation of Food in Eight Modern Kitchens Installed by Dr. William C. White.

By John J. Daly.

Eating is the great indoor pastime at St. Elizabeths Hospital, over Anacostia way.

Eighteen thousand meals a day is the batting average for the chef.

There is, however, more to the feeding of patients at St. Elizabeths than meets the eye.

Dr. William C. White, superintendent of this great Government hospital, in explaining the process of feeding some 5,000 patients three square meals a day, goes away back to the early days of hospitalization for the mentally sick and then comes into the modern period which has just gone into effect at St. Elizabeths. It is the period of the cafeteria de luxe, with cozy little diningrooms—40 in number—scattered over the campus, and patients choosing their foods and their dining companions with the accustomed eyes of connoisseurs.

In the old days, patients in such an institution as St. Elizabeths were virtually eating out of the bag, according to Dr. White. Then, patients were deprived of such common ordinary utensils as knives, forks and spoons, their hands usually were tied in burlap bagging—and a like decoration over the heads, to keep them from damaging themselves, or something like that. Nowadays—but here is the story.

Leads in Modern Way.

St. Elizabeths Hospital now leads the way in modern methods of feeding patients. It has come out of a process of culinary evolution that reads like a fairy tale.

Instead of the old "congregate" dining room, with hundreds of patients making one grand rush for seats, and using the old boarding-house reach for their foodstuffs, usually served to them cold as a landlady's heart, the men and women now go into those cozy little dining rooms that surround a main kitchen—and there they get the same kind of service, hot off the griddle, that is seen in downtown Washington on any day when the cognoscenti dine.

That central kitchen, with the dining rooms draped off it, is what does the trick. There are eight of these kitchens, some modern, and some antique, but the most modern one, opened only in the past few days, is a darb—in anybody's language.

This kitchen is the last word in kitchens.

It looks like a model designed for the kitchen makers' convention. It is so spic and span, so well equipped, that a chef feels like he has hit the happy hunting grounds for chefs, once he starts cooking in such a kitchen. If the average housewife had one like this at home husbands would never stray.

Dieticians, Too.

Anyway, the menus are divided into three separate and distinct kinds of foodstuffs, since St. Elizabeths operates on the principle that no two men or women want the same kind of food at the same time—nor the same amount of food. So, there are three diets prepared each day, and each meal, at St. Elizabeths. There are the diets for the athletic folk, the hard-working people, and the diets for the sedentary. Then, too, the sick diet.

Well, sir, when Dr. White shows a casual visitor through the culinary department of St. Elizabeths it is enough to do the heart good. It spurs up the appetite, too, around meal time.

A well laden board is part of the equipment. For instance, Monie Sanger, who is assistant superintendent of St. Elizabeths, hands out the following figures which show how ravenous appetites can be, at times.

2,000 Pounds of Meat Daily.

Each day the patients consume 2,000 pounds of meats of all kinds; 3,200 pounds of potatoes; 1,500 pounds of sugar; 800 gallons of milk; 1,000 dozen eggs, allowing two each at breakfast; 2,600 heads of celery, and 275 pounds of coffee. On a holiday, for instance, like Thanksgiving, 4,000 pounds of turkey go west. And when they serve dessert in the form of pies—800 pies to the meal.

From this cursory sketch you can get some idea of what it means to feed 5,000 patients at St. Elizabeths, but the best part of it all is, they eat like ladies and gentlemen—and this is due to a life-long study of feeding methods made by a great humanitarian, Dr. White.

Dr. White says, and it seems to be true: "Whenever there is a large number of people gathered in a place like this, their one great object is to see time pass. The passing of the day, in congenial atmosphere, is the problem. The main points of the day are the three meals. If those three meals are not properly served, if the food is not attractive, there comes the first trouble. History shows that most discontent in institutional life is bred in the dining room."

Dr. White Supervised Work.

To make everybody happy at St. Elizabeths, Dr. White personally supervised the installation of the new feeding methods. They differ from the system that was in vogue when he went there, 30 years ago, as night varies from day.

It is the difference between the old "dumb-waiter" days, when food was hauled up on trays to four floors by man-power, to the days when the patients form in line and stand in front of the steam tables selecting their favorite foodstuffs. There is at least a choice of two main foodstuffs on each bill of fare at every meal—even to a choice of dessert.

Also, to get away from that old Army song, "On Sunday we have soup, on Monday we have soup," &c., the diet is arranged on a ten-day schedule. So there is little repetition.

Life out at St. Elizabeths, so far as eating goes, is hunky-dory, according to the inmates, who generally say "It's fine."

Propeller Kills Naval Air Pilot

Honolulu, July 14 (A.P.).—Stanley John Jaros, 33, chief aviation mate and naval airplane pilot, was killed today when bumpy air threw him into the propeller of a twin-motored patrol craft in which he was flying with Lieut. Kenneth Craig, naval pilot.

The accident occurred in extremely rough air at a height of 1,000 feet. Jaros was thrown out of the second pilot seat directly ahead of one of the motors into the whirling blade. His body fell into the sea and was not recovered by searching craft.

Jaros is survived by his mother, Mrs. Katherine Jaros, Chicago.

Divorce Suit Filed by Son Of Roosevelt

Elliott Alleges "Cruelty" in Nevada Action; Not to Press Charge.

Minden, Nev., July 14 (A.P.).—After less than a year and a half of married life, 22-year-old Elliott Roosevelt, second son of the President, filed suit in the district court here today for a divorce from the former Elizabeth Donner, of Philadelphia.

He alleged "extreme cruelty" in his complaint, saying Mrs. Roosevelt's conduct had caused him "great mental agony and suffering," and that continued living together might seriously impair his health.

Young Roosevelt will not press this charge, however, for, according to his attorney, Sam Platt, of Reno, he will consent to the filing of a cross-complaint by Mrs. Roosevelt, and permit her to get the decree without a contest.

Time for trial of the case has been set tentetively for Monday. Just when the suit will be heard depends, however, upon the time of arrival here of Mrs. Roosevelt's testimony, which was contained in a deposition dispatched by airmail from Philadelphia today.

What she will set out in her deposition has not been disclosed. It will be read to Judge Clark J. Guild behind closed doors in the same courtroom in which Mary Pickford was divorced 13 years ago from Owen Moore.

After hearing the deposition, and if all goes as planned, Judge Guild will enter his order dissolving the marriage and direct the transcript of testimony be sealed.

A copy of a property settlement agreement signed by the young couple likewise will be placed on the secret file. This agreement, among other things, is known to provide for custody and support of the Roosevelts' infant son, William Donner Roosevelt.

Policeman Killed In $6,720 Theft

Philadelphia Robber Trio Fire Before Guard Was Able to Shoot.

Philadelphia, July 14 (A.P.).—Three robbers shot to death a policeman and stole a $6,720 pay roll he was guarding today in the factory office of the Allied Kid Co., near Fifth and Huntingdon streets.

The policeman, Charles Stockburger, 50, went down under a shower of bullets as the gunmen rushed in. He had no time to draw his pistol.

The robbers apparently trailed an automobile carrying Stockburger and two employes of the company from a bank where they obtained the money. They went to the office and the policeman remained on guard.

A few minutes later the robbers burst into the room and fired. While one killer stood guard, the other two rushed into the office, picked up the money and fled downstairs. The three disappeared in an automobile.

Butler Sees Parley Called Too Soon

New York, July 14 (A.P.).—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, said on his return from Europe today, that, in his judgment, the World Economic Conference was called four or five months too soon.

"The readjustment of prices which is going on in the United States," he stated on the liner Berengaria, "is similar to what happened in France and Italy a number of years ago. While this adjustment is going on, to interfere with it is like asking a tightrope walker to stand still and have his picture taken. How will he be able to balance himself when he arrives?

"My own personal judgment is that the conference was held four or five months too soon. I should say that before the end of the year the American price level and the American monetary unit level will have adjusted itself to the economic conditions of the world and then is the time to talk of stabilization."

Col. Lindbergh Reaches Base At Cartwright

Expedition Greets Flyer and Wife After 3-Hour Flight.

Cartwright, Laborador, July 14 (A.P.).—Out of a clear northland sky, the Lindberghs flew into Cartwright tonight and were welcomed by other members of the expedition that will explore Arctic air trails during the next few weeks.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh brought the red and black monoplane down on the harbor at 6:30 p. m., Newfoundland daylight time (4 p. m. Eastern standard time), three hours after taking off from Botwood, Newfoundland.

They enjoyed the flight, the colonel and his wife said, and both seemed to be in fine spirits. The colonel regretted that he has missed the Italian air armada, which flew from Cartwright to Shediac yesterday, but was glad all 24 seaplanes had reached Canada in safety. He characterized Gen. Italo Balbo, the Italian air minister, as "a capable commander and a pilot of first rank."

The noted American flier flew from Bay Bulls Big Pond, near St. John's, Newfoundland, this morning, to Botwood, Bay of Exploits, in two hours.

There the Lindberghs had lunch and looked over advantageous landing places for seaplanes. They were reported several times during the flight up the coast of Laborador to Cartwright.

Half an hour before the plane passed Cape Norman, at the tip of Newfoundland's northern peninsula, Mrs. Lindbergh, wireless operator of the expedition, was in direct communication with the Canadian government station at Belle Isle.

Miss Valenti Hopeful Of Making Ocean Flight

Springfield, Mass., July 14 (A.P.). Miss Rosetta Valenti, Italian aviatrix, whose announced plans to fly from New York to Rome with Russell N. Boardman were ended by the recent death of Boardman at Indianapolis, said today during a visit here that her plans for a transoceanic flight were by no means abandoned.

She intimated that the flight would take place in September with a male copilot whose name she preferred not to announce.

E. B. Davis, Oil Man, Injured in Auto Crash

San Antonio, Tex., July 14 (A.P.). Edgar B. Davis, millionaire Texas oil magnate and philanthropist, was seriously injured today when the automobile in which he was riding collided with a vegetable truck.

Davis, 60 years old, was taken to a hospital with cuts on the head and possible internal injuries. The oil man lives in Luling.

San Quentin, Calif., July 14 (A.P.).—Albert Fuller, formerly of Macon, Ga., was hanged at the State Prison here today for the murder of his business partner, James W. Kipps, in Madera County more than two years ago as the result of a quarrel over Kipps' wife.

U. S. Foreign Policy Fails To Progress, Asserts Colby

Public Affairs Institute Is Told International Accord Eluded.

University, Va., July 14 (A.P.).—Relations of the United States with foreign nations held the center of interest during the next to the last day of the seventh annual University of Virginia Institute of Public Affairs.

Bainbridge Colby, Secretary of State in the Wilson administration, in discussing the foreign policy of the United States tonight asserted the belief that the Nation has made little substantial progress in the international relations field in the 15 years since the World War.

Dr. Henry S. Houghton, Chicago University dean of medicine, gave an appraisal of medical missions in the Orient. Here he said is a cultural contribution of the West to the East which is playing a big part in building up international understanding and good will.

During the afternoon in the League of Nations round table, the problem of peace enforcement was considered with Felix Morely, of Brookings Institution, leader, outlining a case for enforcement by treaty relations backed by armed force. At the same meeting Vincent D. Nicholson, Philadelphia lawyer and chairman of the peace section of the American Friends Service committee, presented the case of peace by agreement backed by public opinion.

Much interest was shown in a morning round table for the consideration of the Manchukuo problem. Presentation of the Chinese side of the case involved a spirited, but friendly, exchange of opinion. Japanese were given their opportunity to speak yesterday.

Colby said the international conference which seemed to be the chief distinguishing feature of the new diplomacy seems to have failed. "It is impossible to review the results of the many conferences held since the war with any feeling but diminished confidence in them as a means for promoting international accord," he said.

Stimson Makes Call At London Conference

London, July 14 (A.P.).—Former Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson paid a social call on the World Economic Conference today in the role of fisherman. To prove it, he displayed fishing tackle in an automobile as he prepared to motor to Scotland.

His was a familiar face among the European statesmen in view of his long negotiations at the London naval conference, but he seemed happy in his present less responsible role. He chatted with Secretary of State Hull, his successor, and James M. Cox, who is occupying a country place at Stanmore, where Stimson lived during the naval parley.

Man Is Killed, Woman Dying In Auto Crash

One man was killed and a woman is believed dying as the result of an automobile accident last night at Rockville, Md.

The dead man, John Rice, of Darnestown, Md., died shortly after being admitted to Montgomery County General Hospital at Sandy Spring, Md.

The woman, Mrs. H. C. McKnight, 26, of Seneca, Md., was taken to Georgetown Hospital, and is in a serious condition.

She suffered internal injuries, severe lacerations on the scalp, a dislocated right hip, lacerations, bruises and cuts all over the face and body, and concussion.

According to police, the pair had dined at a roadhouse and had started for home, the woman driving. As they approached Rockville at a high speed, the car failed to negotiate a turn and crashed into a tree in front of the colored school.

County Policeman Robert Howes and a companion, Fontaine Keys, pulled the couple from the wreck. They were hurried to the hospitals by the rescue squad of the Rockville Volunteer Fire Department.

Mrs. McKnight, the former Miss Beatrice Cross, of Seneca, Md., has a husband in Marysville, Calif. She is the daughter of Reginald Cross, Seneca farmer. Rice also is married.

Capital Pilot Killed in Crash Near Norfolk

E. M. McHugh Dies in Fire; Observer Is Saved by Parachute.

Edward M. McHugh, 29, of 1831 Euclid street northwest, a naval air pilot, was killed yesterday when his ship burst into flames and crashed near the Hampton Roads Naval Air Station at Norfolk, Va. Herbert W. Hanners, observer in the plane, jumped to safety in a parachute.

When the plane caught fire at a height of 2,000 feet, Hanners climbed from the cockpit and jumped, dispatches from Norfolk said. McHugh, who was piloting the plane, was apparently overcome by the flames before he had time to save himself. Both men were attached to the Norfolk field.

McHugh was born in Washington and attended Western High School. He has been in the Navy about five years. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Katherine M. McHugh, and a sister, Miss Anna M. McHugh, both of Washington.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been completed, but members of the family said last night that interment would probably be made in Arlington National Cemetery.

Driver of Beer Van Is Arrested In Alexandria

Judge Continues Richmond Man's Case, to Await Receipt of Papers.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The case of Charles Wilson, of Richmond, arrested Wednesday night as driver of a truck containing 200 cases of beer, and arraigned yesterday in the Alexandria police court, was continued on recommendation of Commonwealth's Attorney Albert V. Bryan, pending receipt of papers showing it to be an interstate shipment. It was stated the beer, brought from Philadelphia, was to be transferred in Richmond and sent to its destination in New Bern, N. C. Wilson's bond of $500 was continued.

It is expected that after the Virginia Legislature acts on the beer question in August, a meeting of the Alexandria City Council will be called to consider the subject of beer taxation. Members of the council and city officials state that until action is had by the Legislature, the city is powerless to authorize the sale.

Indications are that many Alexandria places of business will place beer on sale immediately after it is legalized. It is reported several persons are contemplating opening wholesale establishments for the sale of beer under the system in use in Washington, not to be consumed on the premises.

The Alexandria Chamber of Commerce will inaugurate a personal drive for members in order to meet its budget. Each of the present active members has been given a list of prospects and requested to contact them immediately.

The matter of obtaining new quarters for the trade body is under consideration. The present quarters, on North Washington street, are considered too expensive for the reduced budget.

A delegation of 300 Odd Fellows and Rebekahs from Alexandria will attend the annual outing to be given at Morgantown, Md., Sunday. Plans for the outing were discussed last night at the regular meeting of Potomac Lodge, No. 38.

Washington Memorial Lodge of Perfection, Scottish Rite Masons, of Alexandria, last night discussed plans for the fall reunion, at its meeting in the Masonic Temple on Cameron street. Venerable Master John C. Cox presided.

Balbo Met Ashore on Canadian Bay

Fleet Quits St. Lawrence Base Today for Last Leg to Chicago.

Montreal, July 14 (A.P.).—The Transatlantic fleet of 24 powerful Italian seaplanes arrived here late today from Shediac, N. B., and swooped down to anchorage in the St. Lawrence River for their last rest before departing for Chicago and the Century of Progress Exposition.

Led by the youthful air minister, Gen. Italo Balbo, the great armada circled over Montreal shortly after noon, after having flown the 500 miles from the New Brunswick port in 3 hours and 34 minutes.

Montreal gave the picturesque squadron a noisy welcome as the sirens of ocean liners at their piers joined with thousands of automobile horns to voice the pleasure of the throngs who gathered near the seaplane base on the south side of the river.

Balbo was the first to zoom to the water level, and was followed by the other ships in groups of three at intervals of several minutes.

A fleet of speedboats immediately charged out to the Italian craft to bring the leader and his hundred men ashore, where a reception committee tendered cordial official greetings and congratulations.

Refueling operations for the 24 flying boats were begun as soon as they were moored in a long line close to the shore, and it was expected that they would take off for Chicago early tomorrow.

Trees' Valuation Above Streets

Commission Refuses Okay For Proposed Work in Fairfax.

The trees along the main streets of Fairfax, Va., are more important than the streets, according to a decision of the State Highway Commission.

The commission denied the town any share of the Federal funds which are being allocated under the national recovery act. The town council had applied to the State commission for an allocation to repair and widen the main streets.

Mayor Thomas P. Chapman yesterday received a letter from H. G. Shirley, State highway commissioner, in which he stated that the commission had decided that no funds would be spent on the streets because to adjust the streets certain trees would have to be destroyed and that the commission felt that this would not be desirable. The letter also stated that the commission was of the opinion that the trees are more of an asset to the town than the improved streets would be.

Club to Back Smith Formed At Cherrydale

McDonald to Spur Drive for Gubernatorial Candidate.

ARLINGTON COUNTY.
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 508. Clarendon, Va.

A "Smith for Governor Club" was organized in Cherrydale last night with the election of Wesley McDonald as its president. William D. Topley was chosen secretary-treasurer and Mrs. Amos Donaldson and Oscar Doyle were elected to head the membership committee.

The club will meet next Wednesday evening in the Cherrydale Firemen's Hall to complete plans for a county-wide rally in the interest of Worth D. Smith's campaign.

With the Democratic primary less than three weeks off, there has been so far little or no interest in the election. Indications are that the vote will be exceedingly light.

Funeral services for D. J. Williams, 55, of Franklin Park, Arlington County, who died Thursday night at Georgetown Hospital, Washington, will be conducted this afternoon at 2 o'clock. W. E. Biederman, of the Christian Science Church, of Washington, will conduct the services from C. J. Ives' chapel, Clarendon. Interment will be in Columbia Gardens Cemetery, Clarendon.

Born in Houlka, Miss., Mr. Williams became one of the outstanding Democrats of the Southwest. He moved to Clarendon from Arkansas about six years ago.

During his six years here he held many responsible positions in both the Senate and House of Representatives, and at the time of his death was associated with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation as an appraiser.

He was a thirty-second degree Mason and a member of Al Amib Chapter of the Shrine at Little Rock, Ark.

During his residence in Arlington County he was one of the active members of the Democratic organization, as well as in all civic affairs. Besides his widow he is survived by two daughters, Teresa Williams and Joan Williams.

The Arlington County Board, meeting yesterday, awarded the contract for collection of garbage and trash for the year beginning August 1 to Roger Daniels. The accepted bid was $20,095. In accordance with specifications, Daniels posted a $20,000 bond.

Despite notice that action would be taken in renaming of all streets in the county, the board, on motion of Mrs. Elizabeth Magruder, one of the members, postponed action to a later date. Chairman Harry A. Fellows declared that he considered it a grave injustice to the people of the county not to settle this all important question.

A letter from State Highway Commissioner H. G. Shirly expressed the approval of the commission for the erection of a traffic light at the intersection of Glebe road and Lee highway.

The Lyon Park Junior Community Center will hold its weekly meeting this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Several special features have been arranged for the play hour in the park, after which the meeting will adjourn to the community house for a moving picture show and a program by club members. The program will consist of numbers by Walter F. Ludwig, jr., James Ellison, Paula Whitlock, Betty Ann Orr, Bernice Moss, Phyllis Scott and Mary Saunders.

Members of the Arlington County Plumbers and Heating Contractors Association will meet this afternoon at 2 o'clock, at Moose Hall, at Clarendon. The meeting has been called so that the members may visit the sewage pumping station in Washington in a body. The association has arranged for a number of such visits to various stations of this character in different sections of the country, that they may be better informed when the time comes for such installation in Arlington County.

Chevy Chase Woman Victor in Divorce Suit

Mrs. Winifred Haines, 19 Williams lane, Chevy Chase, Md., was awarded a limited divorce from Oscar M. Haines, of Washington, yesterday by Judge Charles W. Woodward in Montgomery County Circuit Court at Rockville, Md. The divorce was granted on the grounds of cruelty and desertion. Attorney James H. Pugh, of Rockville, represented the wife.

The couple was married November 23, 1927, in Washington, and the alleged desertion took place in June, 1932. They have no children.

Chamber of Commerce Will Meet at Herndon

The Chamber of Commerce of Herndon, Va., will hold its regular luncheon meeting this afternoon at 1 o'clock in the Herndon Congregational Church. William S. Hoge, of Washington, former president and organizer of the Herndon trade body, will be the principal speaker.

Members of the Corban Club, of Herndon, will serve the luncheon with the following committee in charge: Mrs. R. S. Crippen, Mrs. Allen H. Kirk, Miss Elizabeth Leonhardt and Miss Helen Hanes.

Youth Arrested In Auto Chase Is Fined $50

Walter Hancock Charged With Transportation of Whisky.

Arrested after an auto chase of several miles, Walter Hancock, 25, of Washington, was fined $50 and costs yesterday in the Marlboro Police Court on charges of transportation and possession of whisky.

Prince Georges County Policeman R. A. Naylor said Hancock was riding with a man who escaped when the car was overtaken 3 miles south of Marlboro.

John L. Murdock, 4211 Leland street, Chevy Chase, Md., scheduled to appear in the court for a hearing, forfeited collateral amounting to $103.90 in lieu of facing charges of reckless driving and driving while drunk.

Another defendant, Oscar Hoover, 1730 I street northwest, charged with the same offenses and unable to pay the fine of $103 when convicted, was committed to jail for 31 days.

State Policeman Schleuter, who created a mild sensation with the presentation of 32 cases to be tried during the day, also registered the case of Charles E. Hughes, 4102 Ellicott street northwest. Hughes, charged with reckless driving, failed to appear for trial and forfeited $6.45 collateral.

Howard E. Contee, of Forestville, Md., was fined $25 and costs.

Rainbow Division Holding Reunion

Former U. S. Shock Troops at Convention Recall Germans' Drive.

Chicago, July 14 (A.P.).—Members of the Rainbow (Forty-second) Division, famous shock troops of the A. E. F., gathered for their fifteenth annual reunion, held a business session today and heard various committees report.

Short addresses were given by Col. Monroe Johnson, of South Carolina; Gen. Matt Tinley, of the Iowa National Guard; Col. William Screws, of Alabama; Maj. William Talbot, of Tennessee, and former Gov. Wilbur Brucker, of Detroit. Mr. Brucker heads a delegation of 100 veterans from Michigan which is seeking to have Detroit named as the place for the division's 1934 conclave.

Tonight the 1,000 veterans will hold their reunion banquet, then in solemn martial services recall the battle of Champagne at which the Rainbow Division helped in turning back the Germans' drive on Paris.

Naval Academy Is 'Amateurish,' Sims Charges

Minority Report Avers That Average Officer Is "Uneducated."

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., July 14.—The Naval Academy was characterized as an "amateur institution," and the average naval officer an "uneducated man" by Rear Admiral William S. Sims (retired), who, as chairman of the educational committee of the official board of visitors, submitted a minority report after the annual inspections of the institution last April. The report, filed with the Navy Department some time ago, has just been released.

Admiral Sims is noted for his vigorous criticism of service affairs, and his report on conditions at the naval school is replete with sharp comment.

As a remedy for the alleged existing situation, the admiral recommended that only college men be admitted to the academy, which, he said, should be converted into a technical school, if not a postgraduate school. He placed blame not for instructors at the academy, but on those who select them. He classed them as lacking the proper education and training in the selection of educators.

Excerpts from Admiral Sims' report follow:

"The academy does not develop officers who are educated men."

"From the educational point of view, the academy is essentially an amateur institution."

"The academy lacks the facilities to give either educational or technical instruction to the degree required to develop the material received into educated officers and gentlemen."

"The Naval officer ought to be able to hold his own with educated men in any walk of life. He can not do this unless he obtains much additional training after he leaves the academy.

"The academy should not be for boys, but for men, who already have a college education. The staff should consist of trained educators, not officers on shore duty.

"Teachers in civilian colleges are selected by men who themselves are trained educators. Teachers in the Naval Academy—except for a very few civilian instructors—are officers, chosen by men who themselves are not trained educators and who are not skilled in selecting trained educators. Under this system, how can the academy be anything but essentially amateur?"

Boy Discovers Yale Educator Hanged in Tree

Overwork and Ill Health Blamed for Suicide of Professor.

New Haven, Conn., July 14 (A.P.). Prof. Raymond P. Dougherty, noted Yale Orientalist and curator of the Sterling Memorial Museum, was found hanging from a tree in a wooded section of Hamden tonight after he was missing 30 hours.

Dr. George Joslin, medical examiner, later announced that the noted archeologist had committed suicide because of overwork and ill health. The body was found near the summit of Mill Rock, one of the loneliest sections in this locality.

The discovery was made by William Jackson, a 15-year-old Negro boy who had gone to the wild and wooded section to pick blueberries. He notified police.

The Orientalist disappeared from his home yesterday at 3:30 p. m., after he told his wife he was going for a walk. She suspected nothing out of the way, until he failed to return at the usual hour for dinner.

Mrs. Dougherty called friends, but after they were unable to find him in any of the places he was known to walk, she notified police who spent the night searching the section where his body was found tonight.

McReynolds Left Token in Legacy

J. W. Crim, Attorney in New York, Wills Estate to His Widow.

New York, July 14 (A.P.).—The will of John William Henry Crim, New York lawyer and former special Assistant Attorney General of the United States, filed today requested his widow, Amelia G., to give tokens to numerous friends, including Justice McReynolds, of the United States Supreme Court, and Dr. J. A. C. Chandler, president of the College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, Va.

The widow was bequeathed personal effects, jewelry and a life estate in the residue, of undetermined value. After her death the residuary income goes to a daughter, Barbara, of Bridgewater, who also gets personal effects. Upon the daughter's death, the residuary principal goes to her children, and, if she has none, to the College of William and Mary for the assistance of students working their way through college.

Miss Mercy M. Crim, of Palonian Springs, Va., a sister, receives $250.

Self-Defense Claimed in Slaying in Virginia

Harrisonburg, Va., July 14 (A.P.). Police today were questioning Lindsay Knight, 55, on charges of killing Andy Carrier, who was shot to death in front of the Knight home last night.

Officers said they had obtained a confession from Knight that he shot in self-defense.

Scalp Hurt in Crash.

Striking a culvert and overturning when his car was sideswiped by a machine that failed to stop, William McGonigal, 30, of 228 F street northeast, yesterday received a severe laceration of the scalp. He was treated at Casualty Hospital. A lookout was sent by State police for the unidentified car.

Fairfax School Plans Pondered

County Officials May Use Federal Finances for Structure.

The question of constructing a large central high school unit with money secured from the Federal industrial recovery funds is being considered by officials of Fairfax County, Va.

Divisional Superintendent of Schools W. T. Woodson has long advocated such a school in the vicinity of the town of Fairfax where a larger curriculum, as well as vocational courses, could be offered at a low cost to taxpayers. In addition to the high school, Woodson states that he is anxious to make improvements to the existing school buildings at Lorton, Centreville and several other elementary schools.

Woodson said yesterday that he expected to call a special meeting of the school board in the near future to discuss the subject.

Fairfax County Votes Aug. 25 For Delegate

Surprise Special Election Called by Governor of Virginia.

A special election will be held in Fairfax County, Va., August 15, to fill the unexpired term of Edmund H. Allen to the Virginia House of Delegates.

The order for the special election was issued yesterday by Gov. John Garland Pollard.

Allen died suddenly Tuesday night in the county courthouse at a meeting of the Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce.

The action by the governor yesterday came as a distinct surprise to the Democratic leaders of the county, who had questioned the advisability of having a special election, which will cost at least $500.

The county Democratic executive committee will meet this evening to discuss what course will be pursued in selecting Allen's successor both in the special election and the regular primary on August 1.

L. C. Painter, whose name is the only one besides Allen's on the ticket, has been called unacceptable to the regular Democrats, and because of the ambiguous State election laws, they have been in a turmoil seeking a way to defeat Painter.

John C. Mackall, of Langley, it appears, will be supported. It may be decided to conduct a campaign to have the voters write Mackall's name on the ballot.

Virginia Parks Get Fund of $2,575,000

$2,000,000 to Be Used on Shenandoah Roads, Says Byrd.

(Associated Press.)

Senator Byrd (Democrat), Virginia, said yesterday he was advised by the National Park Service that $2,575,000 of public works fund had been allocated to national parks projects in Virginia.

Mr. Byrd said that $2,000,000 of the funds would go to road building in the Shenandoah National Park. The remainder was allocated to the Colonial National Monument on the Virginia peninsula.

With the Shenandoah Park road fund, the Park Service planned to complete the Sky Line drive from Panorama to Front Royal and from Swift Run Gap to Jarmans Gap. The present sector of the drive between Panorama and Swift Run Gap also will be improved.

(Associated Press.)

Farley was accompanied by W. W. Howes, Second Assistant Postmaster General; Silliman, Evans, Fourth Assistant Postmaster General, and Kilroy Aldrich, chief postal inspector.

Another passenger in the plane was Maj. A. V. Dalrymple, prohibition administrator.

Christian Science Churches.

"Life" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow. The Golden Text is from John 17:3: "This is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent." Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that heareth my word, and believeth on him that sent me, hath everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation; but is passed from death unto life. For as the Father hath life in himself; so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself." (John 5:24, 26).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science Text Book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Let us feel the divine energy of Spirit, bringing us into newness of life, and recognizing no mortal nor material power as able to destroy. Let us rejoice that we are subject to the divine 'powers that be.' Such is the true Science of being. Life is, like Christ, 'the same yesterday, and today, and forever.'" (page 249).

Two Countries Reply to Trade Pact Proposal

Argentine and Colombian Governments Answer Roosevelt Offer.

By Harold J. T. Horan.

The new commercial policy of the United States gathered momentum yesterday with prompt responses from the Argentine and Colombian governments to President Roosevelt's recent offer of closer trade relations. In addition to the South American replies received here, Sweden and Portugal are expected to be next to make new and more mutually advantageous commercial agreements. The Brazil government is expected to reply in the same vein today or Monday.

Meanwhile, Acting Secretary of State William Phillips was forming an advisory council of experts from various branches of the Government interested in the new economic policy. These experts will be drawn from the State, Commerce and Agricultural Departments, and will advise the State Department in the framing of commercial agreements.

Trade Pacts Extended.

The linking of these countries in new trade agreements with the United States is expected to tighten the lines of trade war now in existence. These countries have had similar understandings with Great Britain. In the case of Argentina, the Prince of Wales last year headed a trade commission to Buenos Aires.

The effect on the London Conference has not yet been definitely known, but it is not expected that the activities of the United States in these trade agreements will make any easier the lot of Secretary Hull and the other American delegates.

Other South and Central American countries, it is expected, will follow the lead of Argentina and Colombia, with Chile probably the next to receive the offer of a trade treaty.

Pan American Treaty Seen.

Out of the new trend in commercial relations may come a Pan American trade agreement that will bring the Americas into closer relationship with reciprocal advantages to all countries concerned. This Pan American movement, it is expected, will be discussed at the forthcoming Pan American conference at Montevideo, where trade relations have always dominated the negotiations.

Immediate prospects for a conference between the delegates here are believed to be good. The Argentine-American conference to bring into realization the new trade prospects sketched by the President to the Argentine Ambassador is expected to be the first.

The advisory council will meet soon to map the possible economic scope of the conversations and particularly to limit the categories on which new commercial relations will be established.

U. S. Camp Model; Retention Asked

Virginia Merchant Urges Reforestation Workers Stay at Roxbury.

The reforestation camp at Roxbury, Va., where one man was recently killed in a fight, is now a model company and civilian neighbors of the camp are asking the Government not to move the men away. "There is an air of contentment in the camp and in the surrounding community," Fred S. Bock, a merchant in Roxbury, wrote the headquarters of the Civilian Conservation Corps.

Bock also charged that county officials did not support camp officers in stopping bootlegging activities near the camp. His letter was indorsed by J. G. Thomas, station agent at Roxbury. Army officials are investigating the death of a man who was found dead on nearby railway tracks. It is reported that he had been in a fight with other members of the company.

Petition to Block Extradition Filed

Counsel for Man Charged With Virginia Murders Takes New Step.

Boston, July 14 (A.P.).—A petition to stay the mandate for the extradition of George Crawford, wanted in Virginia to face charges of murdering two women, was entered today with the United States Circuit Court of Appeals by Attorney J. Weston Allen, the Negro's counsel.

As Crawford's extradition has been set for next Monday, the court must consider the petition before that date.

Allen asked that records of Crawford's case in Federal courts be printed, indicating his intention to include the record in his presentation of the case to the United States Supreme Court.

Black Bass Leaps Into Youths' Boat

Baltimore, July 14 (A.P.).—Here's a fish story which is verified by Dawson H. MacWilliams, game warden, who was present.

While attending a church picnic at Gwynn Oak Park late yesterday, 14-year-old Richard Freeman and a friend were rowing a boat when—as "Dick" told it:

"We had gone about 10 feet or 5 strokes when I saw a large fish leap out of the water beside the boat and come whirling through the air. The next thing it gave me a terrible smack in the face as it struck me."

The boy took the fish, a 2½-pound black bass, home to his mother.

And had you listened closely you might have heard muffled drums roll as each cigar was handed out, a departing salute to a soldier of trade and peace. With business on the upgrade, Charlie, you probably will be serving private industry on the Latin American front before long. F. W. Herron, 1610 I street northwest, outlines the aims and purposes of his Association for Defense of the Civil Service. Briefly, they are:

Prompt reinstatement of all efficient employes recently discharged from United States service. Repeal of the "marriage clause," on the grounds that it is unjust, inequitable and subversive of public morals. Drastic reform of the present system establishing the so-called efficiency ratings. Defense of the merit system used in making appointments to Federal positions. Cessation of wage-cutting in Federal service, whether by furloughs, reductions in grades or by discharges and reappointments at lower pay. Investigation of wage rates in Federal service and studies of actual living costs, particularly in the District of Columbia.

Mr. Herron welcomes suggestions. Telephone Me-0954.

It is alleged, his reply was, that provisions for the keeping of whales would be rather too costly and his opinion was that nothing less than whales would be of any service in the circumstances. Also it is said he would favor a minnow pool for the benefit of Government clerks whom he opined might be deficient in diet on account of the 15 per cent cut in salary.

A LARGE Midwest paper carried a story of 8,000 Federal employes being dismissed here, or twice the actual number. Its correspondent sent it from Washington. Could it have been inspired?...B. T. Hainer, once with Packers' Stockyards, Agriculture, here, died recently in Oklahoma...Fifteen in the General Land Office slated for the delete...Miss Betty Hynes became Mrs. Betty Hynes Neale () and Miss Frances Levin became Mrs. Frances Levin Brown () recently. Both are Bureau of Identification employes...Yeah, we'd like to read the terms of the reported unblanketing order...Julian Stearns, chief clerk's office, Commerce, is sporting a new car. He says it's second hand...Remember, save up your money and save up your rocks and you'll always have tobacco in your tobacco box...Always something to look forward to. Next we'll come to August 10, merger time in Washington...Notice Leslie C. McNemar, president, Navy Department Local, N. F. F. E., and associate editor, Federal News, no longer is a member.

Probe Blames Faulty Valve In Ships' Crash

City of Baltimore Rudder Jammed, Official Inquiry Reports.

Baltimore, July 14 (A.P.).—The blame for the collision of the liner City of Baltimore and the tanker Beacon late Wednesday was laid today at the official investigation of the crash to a defective steering apparatus.

Officers of th ocean liner and the pilot in charge of the vessel said mechanism on a valve regulating the rudder slipped five-eighths of an inch out of position, causing the gear to jam and sending her directly in the path of the tanker.

The crash resulted in damage to both vessels, a 60-foot hole being ripped in the City of Baltimore and the prow of the tanker being bashed in. None of the passengers or crew was injured.

At the conclusion of the hearing, Capt. Paul H. Tyler, of the Federal Steamboat Inspection Service, announced that no decision would be given in the case until after the record of the testimony had been transcribed and briefs prepared for study.

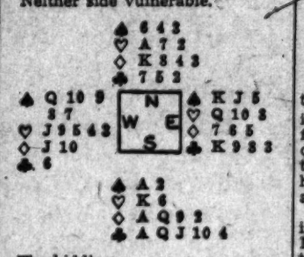
Creating Hidden Entries.

THE average player fails to make a great many contracts through lack of knowledge. If a fairly involved play is required, it may be unknown to him, or if some rather skillful card-reading is required, he may not be able to count his opponents' hands accurately. On the whole, however, more contracts are lost because of carelessness than because of ignorance.

Certainly every Bridge player—even the beginner—has heard of unblocking. He knows that he should arrange the head so as to obtain the maximum number of entries in each hand and when the cards involved are honors he will generally do this. When, however, the unblocking has to do with smaller cards, he will frequently fail to take advantage of his opportunities through sheer carelessness. The following hand is an example of this type of play, which occurs so often that it seems a shame that so many players go wrong on it.

South, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♣	Pass	1NT	Pass
3◇	Pass	4◇	Pass
6♣	Pass	Pass	Pass

This bidding is recorded as it actually took place at the table and is not recommended even though the correct final contract was probably reached. South's hand was a little too weak to justify a Forcing Rebid in a higher ranking suit; a bid of two diamonds would have been sufficient to show strength. Having forced his partner to bid four diamonds, the six-club bid was also somewhat of an overbid. However, having reached this particular spot the least South could have done was to make the hand.

A spade was opened and Declarer won the first trick with the Ace. It was apparent that the whole hand depended on the club finesse and so to trick 2 Declarer led a small heart over to the Ace and took the Ten of clubs finesse. He now led the deuce of diamonds and reentered the Dummy with the King. Another club was led and the Knave played, West showing out. At this point Declarer was helpless as the Dummy contained no more entries and he was eventually forced to concede a trick to the King of clubs. Of course, the opponents also had a spade trick available, so the contract was down one trick.

The correct play is quite apparent. Had Declarer stopped to think a minute he would have realized that it was quite possible for East to hold four clubs, in which case three finesses rather than only two were necessary. It was essential, therefore, to attempt to establish three entries in Dummy. When his Ten of clubs held, Declarer should have led the 9 of diamonds from his own hand rather than the deuce. Then when West showed out in clubs he could lay down the Ace of diamonds dropping West's Knave, and use the 8-spot as an entry. Since East would have been forced to follow suit, the third finesse could have been taken and the contract made.

Careless plays such as these are responsible for losing many laydown hands.

Waiting.

WE ARE waiting for the coming of that brighter, better day, when our commerce will be humming and the slump will fade away, when the plumbers will be plumbing and the clerks have better pay. We are waiting for the breaking of that morning bright and fair, when the bakers will be baking, and the barbers pruning hair, and our friends will be forsaking gloomy poor farms everywhere. We are waiting for the dawning of the day that was foretold, when we first began the pawning of our chattels manifold, when we soaked our patent awning, and our watches, tin or gold. With much patience have we waited, and we're waiting, waiting still, though a lot of us have skated to the poorhouse down the hill, and our false teeth have been grated in the famine and the chill. We are waiting with conviction that the worst is over now, that the shadow of affliction will desert the voter's brow, and he'll dodge the dire prediction that he'll have to hock his cow. With firm patience we are waiting for the roses and the wine, and the news is quite elating that is coming down the line, soon the slump we all are hating will be taking in its sign. We are waiting, we are yearning for the pies we used to eat, and we're better for the learning of the lessons of defeat; and we hope to be returning to our homes in Easy street.

Consider This Poor Sucker

Six-Inch Fish at Smithsonian Has No Air Bladder to Keep It Afloat So It's Simply a Case of "Sink or Swim."

Thoburnia rhothoeca, as scientists call him, is unique in the family of suckers. This little 6-inch fish, found only in the headwaters of the James River, has the distinction from its brother suckers of having no air bladder to keep it afloat.

A fish without an air bladder is like a bird without wings, said E. D. Reid, Smithsonian Institution biologist, who obtained a collection of these strange creatures on a recent expedition to the James. The lack of an air bladder renders the fish as incapable of keeping afloat as a human being, so it is a case of "sink or swim."

This fish, whose habitat is in places where the current is swift and in rapids, however, finds it necessary to stay near the bottom in order to avoid being washed away, and Mr. Reid points to this characteristic as an example of the way organic evolution causes animal life to become adapted to its environment. The air bladder does appear in the embryo of this strange sucker, but is lost during its metamorphosis.

Another striking thing about the creature is its coloring, which includes all the colors of the rainbow. It would appear that this quality would make these fish easy prey for the larger ones that inhabit the same swift streams and hunt for smaller fish. There have been no adequate explanation of the brilliant coloring, but the species has existed for many generations, and it can not have been only by chance.

These suckers are hard to seine from the rapids, because unless the seine is particularly heavily weighted the fish will cling so close to the bottom as to pass under the net. Seining, however, is the best way to catch them.

Previous to Mr. Reid's collection, this sucker has been taken only three times since its discovery in 1896.

Southwest Virginia's mountain streams have furnished a rich hunting ground for strange species of fish, especially minnows. Ordinarily, minnows are dull colored and inconspicuous, but in the Virginia streams they are beautifully colored and are found in such quantities that they resemble flocks of butterflies. The colors of some of these are exceeded rarely even by the most highly colored tropical fishes.

Smithsonian ichthyologists plan to make a more intensive study of the region around the James, Tennessee and Roanoke Rivers because of the peculiar problems it presents. The life forms of the three rivers have been entirely separated for many generations, although in places they are only a short distance apart.

What Today Means

"CANCER."

PEOPLE generally will be open-minded on this day and you can expect from them more than the usual degree of fairness. Routine affairs will seem to take care of themselves on this date, and you will do well and wisely to forcibly push any scheme of a novel nature that you are intent on getting through.

The child born on this July 15 will seek to travel the easy paths of life. He can and must be taught to work hard and in right directions. Possessed of an unusually alert mind, this child will not have to struggle for success at school. Sophisticated to a degree, this child will appear old for its age.

If July 15 is the date of your birth, you are not one to hold yourself aloof; you are not at all the "uppish" type of person. You get along well with people of all types and classes and they all like you. You are simple and unaffected in your ways, and you do not like the spectacular and gaudy things of life. You have a good deal of pride, which causes you to suffer whenever you must face reverses of any kind. These you can not stand, for you allow yourself to worry and fret about them and you constantly relive them in your mind.

Born on July 15, you are not a money-maker. Unless stimulated and egged on by the proper mate, you would probably not even be a good provider. You are too trusting to succeed in a financial way and too kind as well; people take advantage of you. You are one who should probably live close to nature; you are fond of any living thing. You should live, if possible, in the country where you could surround yourself with things that you like. You are not one to hurry into marriage and the chances are that once you have "stepped to the altar" you will not repeat the performance.

Successful people born on July 15: Franklin Knight Lane, one-time Secretary of the Interior.

New Yorker Day by Day

By Mark Barron.

New York—Names are what makes news, but when so many names flee town for the summer it seems only proper to follow them.

Katharine Cornell is deserting her usual hideaway up the Hudson to bask among the Bavarian Alps . . . Ben Hecht favors that same Hudson River village where he lives in a rambling Victorian house . . . Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne are resting amid their bean, carrot and mint crops on their Gennessee Depot, Wis., farm . . . Eva La Gallienne, too, goes in for farm life in Connecticut, where she has several acres of hay and a white mule named Camille.

Away From It All.

Alla Nazimova broods alone in a cottage hidden in Westchester which even her closest friends admit they have never been able to discover. . . . Irene Purcell favors a plantation on the far side of the Island of Jamaica, where she can hear the voodoo drums late at night . . . The Ernest Hemingways rest on an island off Key West, where the tarpon fishing is fine.

When Noel Coward isn't idling on Martinique or one of the other islands of the West Indies, he is riding the high seas on a British man-o-war . . . His favorite publicist, Howard Benedict, and Iturbi, concert pianist, pass the warm days in the cooling climate of Mexico City . . . Stark Young, critic and novelist, likes the quiet of the camelia gardens on the Louisiana banks of the Mississippi . . . Alice Duer Miller is in a quiet, rural retreat in Vermont.

Dwight Deere Wiman, when he isn't on his Connecticut estate, rushes off to Moline, Ill., which remains his favorite town, although he deserted it for Broadway . . . Hope Williams makes her summer a profitable one by operating her own dude ranch in Wyoming . . . Rosamond Pinchot is another who favors ranch life . . . Maurice Fato, architect, dashes off every summer for Oshkosh . . . Polly Potter is certain either to be sunning herself at Southampton or at the steeplechase course jumping her favorite mount.

Manhattan Truants.

Dorothy Hall has a new estate on Long Island Sound, where she has taken up motor boat racing . . . Charles Brackett favors Providence R. I., which is close enough to Manhattan for him to bob down to the West Forties now and then . . . Robert Nathan is off to Europe, and so is Hope Hampton . . . Philip Dunning and John Harkins have their log cabins atop hills near Westport, Conn.

Joe Cook is at his famous home, Sleepless Hollow, on Lake Hopatcong, N. J., but it's no vacation. He's rehearsing for his new show there . . . George Blow returns to his plantation at Yorktown, Va. . . . Peggy Fears has her summer home with its own private swimming pool and movie theater at New Rochelle.

On the Boardwalk

For those cooler days in a summer program select a sheer wool or crinkled crepe. For a stroll along the boardwalk at Atlantic City Jeanne chooses this navy blue crepe with a criss-crossed collar of white chalk crepe. The swim suit is of yellow silk jersey. Striped linen is effective for beach frocks.

Slacks and shirts seem to be the universal favorites. These may be had in either wool or mercerized cotton knitted fabric. For a stunning beach club ensemble Louise Barnes Gallagher designs a white cotton frock topped by a blue jacket with large white appliqued motifs. The hat is of darker blue linen.

The nautical urge in fashions is carefully carried out in another boardwalk visitor's skirt and blouse of heavy white linen with three-quarter length sleeves. Blue linen stripes on sailor collar and sleeves harmonize with the blue linen gob hat. The skirt is cut on very straight lines. Cuff links are red.

Crinkled crepe in a delicious caramel shade with black velvet at the waist and neckline is grand for a boardwalk stroll. Black linen trimmed with white is equally attractive. Both frocks tub beautifully, so the briny spray from the Atlantic does them no harm. The crinkled crepe calls for little ironing.

Exotic Fruits Here to Liven Summer Menus

Sapodillas, Mangoes and Avacados Adapted to Many Dishes.

By the Meanderer.

"'Tis the voice of the lobster; I heard him declare,
You have baked me too brown, I must sugar my hair."

The chef of a certain restaurant where statesmen dine read these lines excitedly. With great gusto he seized a lobster by its tail. Ruthlessly he tore it apart. Painstakingly he picked its flesh from the shell. Into the frying pan he tossed the flaky morsels. For eight minutes he sauted them in butter. Hastily whipping together the yolk of an egg and a bit of cream, he poured this over the lobster, stirring it slowly all the while. When the egg and cream appeared well done, he removed the pan from the stove. Surreptitiously he stole to a corner cupboard and from behind the sugar container he took a quart bottle. It was not attar of roses he handled so cautiously, but sherry of potent percentage. Measuring a gill of the precious fluid, and beaming with singular glee, he carefully sprinkled a liberal quantity over the sauted lobster. Here was lobster a la Newburg.

The summer hostess who is looking for a newlight in the food line may give thought to tropical fruits. In the versatile mango lies the key to many refreshing and delicious dishes. It adapts itself to the menu in a variety of ways. There are spiced mangoes, and canned mangoes, mango sundaes, cakes and tarts. There is mango ice cream, mango marmalade; there are mango preserves, pickles and relishes. The spicy sauces known as chutney are made of mangoes. Combine it with pineapple for preserves. Recipe: 4 cups mango pulp, 2 cups shredded pineapple, 2 cups preserved figs, 4 oranges, 2 lemons, juice and grated rind, sugar. Cut mango pulp in thin slices. Drain pineapple. Slice oranges through the peel or grind them in food chopper. Drain figs, removing all syrup and slightly dry in the oven. Chop in small pieces. Combine fruit. Weigh and add ¾ weight in sugar. Cook slowly until mixture thickens when dripped on a cold plate. Pour into hot glasses and cover with hot paraffin. Serve with meats or chicken or with cheese and crackers.

The Meanderer will be glad to furnish the recipes for any of the mango dishes listed above.

Second only to the mango in versatility is the papaya, commonly known as the "tree melon." Enjoy it as a "first" for breakfast or as a "last" for dinner. It isn't, however, a fruit to be relegated to merely first and last ranks. There is no better way of proving this than by trying it in sundry styles. Papaya whip is prepared by adding the juice of one lemon and one-half cup of sugar to one and a half cups of papaya pulp. Beat this into two stiffly whipped whites of eggs. Cook. Serve with whipped cream. The Meanderer will be glad to furnish recipes for papaya cocktail, canape, baked papaya, green papaya, papaya conserve, papaya chutney, pickle, and heavenly hash.

The sapodilla is surrounded with an aura of interest. It looks like a potato and tastes like maple syrup. The mother tree is a stately evergreen 50 or more feet in height. The bark contains a milky latex called chicle, interesting commercially as a basis for chewing gum. The fruit itself is first of all for desserts, but can be used in plain form, and in sherbets. The sapodilla salad is sure to be a tasty novelty. To prepare, cut fruit in half, sprinkle with lemon or lime juice. Serve on lettuce, watercress or other green, or garnish with mint.

There's mystery to the avocado. Its seductive and elusive flavor is seldom played at the peak. The chief reason for this is that few people actually know the salient facts. Did they consider for a moment that protein and fat percentages in the avocado rank higher than that of any other known fruit, would they, do you think, continue to serve it with oil dressing? The buttery consistency of the fruit is far too rich for this. In a salad it should be used with salt and lime or lemon juice. Some prefer orange or pineapple juice. Catsup, celery, nuts, onions are not the best combinations for avocado. Its delicate flavor should never be concealed or destroyed.

Let us know if you are interested in the recipes for avocado omelet, sandwiches, cocktail; or, in the line of salads, the avocado-shrimp salad, South Florida luncheon special, or the avocado-tomato salad. The Meanderer suggests any of these to please particular people.

A helpful tropical fruit dealer told The Meanderer that the old one about eating limes to keep cool is the honest to goodness truth. Next hot spell, let's find out! Bets up!

P. S.—Shoppers, these tropical fruits are easy to find. Call us and we'll tell you where.

Cabinet Approves Concordat.

Berlin, July 14 (A.P.).—The German cabinet today unanimously approved the text of the concordat with the Vatican and Chancellor Hitler warmly thanked Vice Chancellor von Papen for his successful negotiation of the pact, which will not be published until it is signed.

Corn Shuck Hats Vogue in South

Gibson Mill, N. C. (A.P.).—Farm women hereabout are careful not to go near a hungry cow, especially when wearing their newest hat—for the headgear is apt to be made of corn shucks.

It's a new industry, as well as a new fad, which was started by Miss Glenn Caudle, who learned the art of braiding corn shucks into attractive hats and began teaching it to her neighbors.

Some of those whom Miss Caudle taught are now making both hats and bags to match. Hats are light in weight and comfortable. The color is natural shuck which blends well with many other colors.

Long, Frosty Drinks Cool July Thirst

Seasonal Fruits Provide Recipes for Tempting Beverages.

By Ann Barrett.

THE keynote to success in slaking the great summer thirst can be summed up in three words: Large, cold, and ready. If you were author Robert W. Chambers, you'd also insist the beverage must be good, strong coffee. If you were Assistant Secretary of State Francis White, you'd demand tea. If you were opera singer Mme. Jeritza, you'd want a medley of fruit juices with plenty of pineapple.

But large, cold and ready—no matter which or what. So let's see how to have thirst-quenchers just that way.

You get the best iced coffee by making it double-strength, then pouring it hot into a full glass of cracked ice. The same with tea. But if you can save a life, maybe, by having it bottled up ready in the refrigerator, why not do so. In the case of tea, you can get an extra fillip of flavor by bottling it up with the juice of 1 lemon and 1 orange to each 4 cups. If you like clove, you can go that one better still by putting into the pot 2 whole cloves for each cup of tea before you pour boiling water on. Strain these out before bottling.

More Quick Tricks.

Having a sugar sirup ready for sweetening is another quick trick. This gives beverages a smoother taste, too, because you don't need to wait for the sugar to dissolve. Such a sirup is made by letting equal parts of sugar and water boil up gently without stirring for about 5 minutes.

Here it is (with variations) in that great summer favorite lemonade. Boil up 1 cup of sugar and 1 cup water. Let this cool. Then add 5 cups cold water and 1 cup strained lemon juice. Chill. You can glorify this basic recipe by adding one of the following (1 pint): Any strained berry juice; ginger ale (add just before serving); grape juice; pineapple juice; prune juice; strong, cold tea; apricots or peaches put through fine sieve.

For beverages a little fancier, here's a basic recipe for punch that improves on standing. Boil up 4 cups water with 1 cup sugar for about 3 minutes, then cool. Add ½ cup strained lemon juice, 1 cup orange juice, 1 tablespoon grated orange rind, 1 tablespoon grated lemon rind.

If you crave something still a bit different, any of the following make good additions to this recipe: 4 cups ginger ale and 4 tablespoons preserved ginger added just before serving. Four cups strong, cold tea and 4 tablespoons chopped maraschino cherries, 1 glass currant jelly (dissolved in 1 cup hot water) and 4 tablespoons finely chopped mint, 2 cups watermelon pulp and 2-3 cup chopped raisins, ¼ cup grated cucumber rind and 2 cups loganberry juice.

Knowing just what to serve with these frosty drinks on a hot summer day is another way to be popular. Say some tender, curling slices of ham, baked with a brown-sugar finish and teamed up with a refreshing salad. Our newest bulletin, "Ins and Outs of Cooking Ham," will put you next to all the best, easiest and most economical ways of cooking ham whole, in slices or in sections. It runs to four full pages of tips on choosing and cooking, as well as actual recipes. I think you'd find it useful all year through.

Careful Plans Assure Child's Future Fitness

Scientific Treatment of Educational Problems Prevents Failure.

By Mrs. Agnes Lyne.

Children whose parents can afford it go to high school. The group which can afford still further education, sends its children on through college.

The kind and extent of the education which a child receives is thus determined more by what the family budget will stand than by the child's special requirements and particular aptitudes.

This planless sort of education no doubt produces some individuals who find themselves thoroughly fitted for the careers they subsequently pursue, but it produces a great many more who find themselves not fitted for anything in particular and still others who have bene given an initial sense of failure by being dropped from the classes in which they were enrolled.

There is available today expert advice for all parents and children who seek it. Vocational guidance bureaus study carefully the problems brought to them. There are tests which measure a large variety of abilities, from the abstract and scholastic to the physical and mechanical. There also are made studies of personality, which suggest the advisability of certain varieties of occupation and rule out others.

A study is thus made of the individual as a whole and, with it as a basis, advice is given as to further education, vocational training and the later selection of particular jobs.

It would save an enormous amount of money, energy, time and heartbreak if parents learned scientifically to regard the problem of their children's education. Education, to be valuable, must lead toward fitness for later work in which the individual will function happily and effectively.

New Front Door Welcomes Visitor and Creates a Good Impression.

We sit complacent in our comfortable, but somewhat worn and slightly faded surroundings. With the coming of the important guest we look around in dismay, seeing the sagging doorsteps and paint-scarred front door with out-of-date hardware, opening into a dark entry.

The living room, flower-decked, will berathe a sweet welcome. Gay curtains and bedspreads will camouflage the bedrooms, but will their brightness overcome the dullness of that fatal first impression? What to do about it?

The entrance to one's home should be neat, attractive, a bright and shining fact as it were, inviting the guest into a cheerful hall. Ready-to-set doorways with trim and hood are on the market or they may be built to order. Why not look into this?

Best Foot Forward.

It is in the air, this need to brush up, to put one's best foot foremost, to do something right now about the needed repairs that have been postponed from month to month and year to year. The small house may be smartened and almost double its market value by a modernized entrance, a coat of paint and a few shrubs. And visiting Aunt Sally will go beaming homeward with kindly remarks about your charming home, displaying kodak views of its complacent owners framed in a most attractive doorway.

To gain this much-to-be-desired effect the following suggestions are offered: The worn and sagging wooden steps should be replaced with cement or brick. A rickety railing may be replaced with a cement curb, a gracefully curved iron rail, or omitted if height permits. An inexpensive and decorative way of disguising an unattractive entrance door, is the simple lattice guarding the doorstep and arching over the door top. If the door has square top panels, they may be removed and glass inserted. Long glass panels are not used in the newer homes. A sign of the present day precaution, unfortunately necessary, is the ornamental iron grill about ten inches square, covering a hinged panel in the upper part of the door, making possible a limited conversation with the too insistent canvasser or the really dangerous intruder.

Dog Brightens Steps.

Another and important piece of metal should be mentioned, the weather strip. The metal threshold is desirable, too. Both come at various prices and soon save their original cost by keeping out cold and driving rains, damaging to floors and rugs.

A fresh coat of paint on doors and shutters with attractive new hardware, including a clever doggy mud scraper, would lift the spirits of a tired little house, give it the gay and satisfied look of a woman fresh from a facial and marceled to the last hair.

None of this work is beyond the clever man-around-the-house. Nor would the cost be high compared to the wonderful improvement if the work were given to the neighborhood carpenter and the painter who need it so badly.

Washington's renovizing campaign is stimulating its citizens to look over their homes and to go ahead now with the large or small repairs that will add to comfort and to appearance.

Lessons Will Brush French Up to Minute

Fashions' Phrases Must Be Pronounced With Proper Accents.

By Dare

JUST the little least bit of knowledge of French makes a whale of a lot of difference in one's personality! Some of us have French governesses when we are young—others of us take a trip to France when we are a little older—and the rest of us study.

The idea is that if you aren't perfectly, absolutely sure, if a word in any other language but your own doesn't come to you with the utmost ease, then you shouldn't say it at all. If you have to pause, then unconsciously emphasize the word—then say it. Only when it comes easily, second nature, really—is it permissible and even good taste to use a foreign word.

Foreign Words Needed.

It is not always affected, though to use a foreign word. Often they have simply not been adapted to English—proper names, especially. Then there are the names one encounters in fashion magazines and articles—which simply have to be said once in a while! And these are particularly necessary, especially if your work should take you anywhere near and about the style industry.

"Beige," and "rouge" as we say them in English, are the best words with which to describe a certain sound which is often found in French . . . the "jugh" sound. "Prunes" give one the "ueh" sound, another indispensible.

All in all, it is simple to know how to pronounce the words that one needs and encounters in fashion magazines and articles. Take a few lessons, why not? They are fun—and oh, that glorious, nonchalant feeling that comes only with the assurance of one's own poise!

Booklet Offered.

So-o-o-o-o, I made you another leaflet of fashion French pronunciations and little French expressions, which I thought you would like. The meaning is given in English, and the pronunciations as nearly as possible. But don't think for a minute that it is a copybook-ish sort of thing! It is nothing of the sort—you would never hear these French expressions anywhere but in Paree! A stamped (3-cent), self-addressed envelope sent to the Dare department of The Washington Post will bring this leaflet to you. I know you'll like it!

Costume jewelry can be artistic. If the jewelry makers will be nice, now, and give us really nice costume jewelry, well, maybe we lovely ladies will start wearing it again—and we fashion critics will start writing about it for you.

Au revoir!

The Code Blockade.

Reports that the administration is working out a blanket code for all industry pending the approval of more detailed agreements within trade groups raises a number of interesting and intricate questions. It does not appear that Congress anticipated action of this kind under the national recovery act. Yet the statute is couched in general terms, conferring wide powers upon the President. It gives him authority to impose codes of fair competition upon industries without their consent, but it also provides that the President shall, so far as practicable, afford every opportunity for employers and employees to establish by mutual agreement minimum rates of pay and maximum hours of work.

Apparently a blanket code for all industry is being considered only because of the difficulty encountered in putting into operation the proposed codes for each trade group. The national recovery act became effective a month ago. Only one code of fair competition has been approved. Several more are awaiting hearings, but it is obvious that the establishment of such agreements will be a slow process. Indications are that the Government will not need to prod industrial groups but to accelerate its own machinery, if that is possible.

If the Industrial Recovery Administration should approve two codes per week, several months would be required to bring the major industries within the terms of the act. It will be a tremendous task to investigate, amend and approve codes for all industries. Furthermore, the cotton industry code will expire in four months. It will then need further attention, and it may be assumed that all of the codes will require frequent changes. When the task undertaken by Gen. Johnson is viewed from this angle its magnitude is apparent.

To avoid the delay that must be entailed in putting these numerous codes in effect, officials are seeking a simple formula to spread work and raise purchasing power. Prices are rising and industrial production has greatly increased. The President fears that a serious maladjustment between available goods and purchasing power may develop unless some action is taken immediately. Many observers share this apprehension. The question at issue is whether the situation might be improved by a blanket code for all industry.

A general code providing shorter hours of labor doubtless would put more men to work. But is there any formula of working hours that would meet the needs of all industries? This plan runs back into the same channel as the Black bill, which was rejected by Congress because it was considered too rigid for application to all industry.

The question of minimum wages to be established by a blanket order or general agreement arouses still greater misgivings. To be applicable in all industries a minimum wage would have to be very low. It would, therefore, affect only a small percentage of the working population, and would probably be a negative influence on the total payrolls of the country. If employers paying less than the minimum wage desired to keep their labor costs at the present figure, they might reduce some wages to the minimum figure to offset any raises that might be required by the blanket code.

All of these difficulties will doubtless be considered by Gen. Johnson before any blanket code is definitely proposed. Yet he will be urged to make some general application of the recovery act because of the delay that must be anticipated in the approval of individual codes. Thus in the first month of its operation the Industrial Recovery Administration is face to face with the most formidable question arising out of this experiment—whether any organization is big enough to coordinate or direct the efforts of American industry.

Narcotic Control.

A long struggle for world-wide control of narcotic drugs ended with partial success last Sunday, when the League of Nations convention limiting the manufacture of such drugs became effective. The treaty was drawn up in the summer of 1931 after a protracted session at Geneva. The delegates agreed that it should become effective if ratified by 25 nations, including four of the large drug manufacturing countries. When the time for ratification expired 28 governments had placed their stamp of approval upon the treaty.

There has been a good deal of opposition to the treaty in this country because it does not embody all the provisions advocated by the United States. Its defects are obvious to any one who has given attention to the evils of the illicit drug traffic. Nevertheless, it seems to be a step in advance. The United States was the second nation to ratify the treaty, notwithstanding the disappointment over its limitations.

Efforts to control the illicit drug traffic by police action alone have not been effective. Narcotics are easily smuggled from one country to another. In spite of rigid control of the manufacture of drugs in this country, the illicit trade is carried on because large surpluses are produced in other nations. The present treaty aims at world-wide control of drug manufacturing with a view to limiting the supply to legitimate medicinal needs. Narcotics are prepared in factories with expensive equipment, and it is not difficult to keep them under control. If every government performs its obligations under this treaty the smuggling of illicit drugs into many countries should be greatly curtailed.

One serious defect in the treaty is that it does not include all of the large manufacturing nations. The United States, Great Britain, France, Turkey, Germany and Switzerland ratified the treaty. But Japan and the Netherlands, both large producers of narcotics, are still free of restrictions. It remains to be seen whether they will supply the illicit "dope" trade and thus render the treaty ineffective.

Another defect is the absence of any provision in this treaty for the control of raw materials from which narcotic drugs are made. Since the production of raw materials is not curbed and the manufacture of narcotics in some countries remains unrestrained, there is danger that the source of illicit drugs may be merely shifted. Efforts are now being concentrated on bringing all nations within the treaty, and on means of limiting raw materials.

It is certain, at any rate, that the need for effective local control has not been mitigated. The American Bar Association has drafted a proposed uniform State law to cope with the "dope" traffic. More effective local statutes as well as international control are essential if this evil is to be wiped out.

Expensive Public Works.

Walter Runciman, president of the British Board of Trade, made an impressive argument against the construction of public works to relieve unemployment because he spoke in terms of experience rather than theory. Great Britain, he told the economic commission of the World Economic Conference, had spent 100,000,000 pounds (about $480,000,000 at the current rate of exchange) without satisfactory results. Consequently, the British government flatly refused to participate in any international plan for the promotion of public works.

The expenditure of 1,000,000 pounds ($4,800,000) on public works in Great Britain results in the employment of only 2,000 men directly and 2,000 more indirectly, according to Mr. Runciman. In other words, the average job created in this way costs the government about $1,200. British officials are convinced that the construction of public works for the purpose of creating jobs is entirely too expensive to be practical. It is interesting to note that employment of all idle men in the United States on public works would cost more than $14,000,000,000 on the British basis.

The government at London has taken a rather extreme view of this question, yet its experience can not be brushed aside. Apparently the projects undertaken to create jobs in Britain were not in the class of essential public works. The creation of jobs seems to have been the chief motive behind the British program. If that assumption is true, it is not surprising that Britain has found public works an expensive method of affording relief.

In the United States large undertakings financed with public funds are going forward every year. Obviously, it is sound policy to speed up necessary improvements when building costs are low and large numbers of men are out of work. Funds thus spent can not be properly classed as unemployment relief. They are an investment in governmental equipment.

A sharp distinction must be drawn, however, between projects of this type and unnecessary buildings that are erected chiefly for the purpose of distributing public money to the people. A public works program that is designed only to create jobs usually results in enormous waste that must be reflected in higher taxes. At best its benefits are temporary.

Favorable results from the administration's public works plan now being initiated depend, in large measure, upon the ability and determination of officials to select only those projects that are useful and necessary.

Reporters to Blame.

The list of alibis pretending to explain why the London conference has failed is so long and variegated that no one should have any trouble in selecting half a dozen. Each national delegation has been diligent in providing alibis to suit every taste. By placing the blame upon other countries each delegation maintains the sacred rule of intense nationalism and paves the way to a homecoming that will be free from brickbats and bouquets of decayed vegetables.

If the reader will remember, a shrewd forecast of the real reason for the fiasco was given by J. Ramsay MacDonald at the very opening of the conference. As if inspired by the weird sisters of his native heath, Mr. MacDonald laid all the blame beforehand upon the reporters. He warned them that if the conference should fail it would be because of the devilish concoctions of the press.

There need be little hesitation in choosing this alibi as the best, everything considered, that could be devised. National susceptibilities are not wounded when the news men of all countries are indicted. The correspondent of the Bankok Bugle is as guilty as George Moses of the Chicago News, and both share the guilt with reporters from Addis Ababa, Montevideo, Juneau, Jehol, Pago-Pago and New York. While there seems to have been a little more crispness, not to say corrosive sublimate, in the observations of Paris correspondents, the evidence indicates that reporters of all countries contributed liberally to the debacle.

If the news men had only kept silent, what wonders might have been accomplished! Statesmen would have worked gradually toward an accommodation of views if they had been permitted to negotiate privately. But every morning they were enmeshed in nets of sensational and contradictory reports which either aroused their fury or overwhelmed them with mortification. Explanations and apologies between delegations consumed most of every working day, and counter-propaganda kept them at work far into the night.

It is not necessary to set the nations by the ears by charging that any one or all of them broke up the conference. Let the blame be placed upon the reporters. They are guilty of the atrocious crime of telling the truth, and of course it is universally known that the truth can be as destructive as dynamite.

The Kidnaping Problem.

The Department of Justice recognizes the fact that present laws are not effective in preventing kidnaping. Attorney General Cummings announces that additional legislation will be asked for. He intimates that perhaps a Federal police force will be recommended, and that the interstate transportation of machine guns should be prohibited.

A more rigid supervision of the distribution of deadly weapons is obviously necessary, but more than this is needed in dealing with the new national crime.

Frank J. Loesch, head of the Chicago crime commission, suggests that a secret police force be created, with agents in every city, whose identity should not be known to the public. He says:

> The only way we can defeat the kidnapers is to fight them with their own weapons—secrecy and armed forces. Kidnapings can not be solved nor kidnapers arrested under existing police systems. In some of the recent cases it appears that police may have been implicated in the actual crimes. Relatives and friends of the victim are unable to cooperate with police, but they would be willing to assist officers whose identity was unknown.

Desirable as it is to stamp out kidnaping, the proposal to deal with it by creating a Federal secret police may not be practical unless a way can be found to stamp kidnaping as a crime against the United States. The melancholy failure of the prohibition experiment must be borne in mind whenever suggestions are made looking to a transfer of the police power from the States to the Federal Government.

There are now two kinds of Americans—those who are trying to raise prices and those who are trying to stop 'em from going any higher.

Although employment of college professors has picked up, the industry is suffering from overproduction.

What does it matter if there is too much co-ordinating, so long as times become better?

If industry will not come in out of the cold it will have a blanket thrown over it.

The Secrets of Air.

From the Providence Journal.

Science has now proved that life will not persist in an atmosphere of pure oxygen and nitrogen. Yet hardly a generation has passed since school children were taught that these two elements made up the air that they breathed. Had this actually been the composition of the air, no one would have been alive to know it. The schoolbook statement holds good for all but 1 per cent of our atmosphere, but in that 1 per cent lies the secret of the adaptation of air to life.

It is not only in diplomacy that men have come to recognize the importance of imponderables. It is not so long ago that men sniffed at the idea of estimating calories in food. Hardly had they accepted this idea when vitamins put in their appearance and demanded consideration. Their triumph was much swifter than that of the calories; those were not true imponderables, while the vitamins practically are and are likely so to remain. Now the scene shifts from the food we eat to the air we breathe, and we are asked to accept the vital importance of rare gases in our scheme of living.

As long ago as 1785 the great Cavendish—who discovered the composition of water—found that, after he had taken all the oxygen and all the nitrogen out of a body of air, a small bubble of gas remained. Over this bubble the chemists have been working ever since. They have found in it argon, helium, neon, krypton and carbon dioxide. The latest discovery in this narrow field was made by Dr. J. Willard Hershey, of McPherson College, Kansas, and makes plain that, without these rare elements in our air, life on the earth, if it existed at all, could not be the life that we know.

Readers of Stevenson will remember that the mysterious drug which made possible the transformation of Dr. Jekyll into Mr. Hyde and back owed its potency to an unrecognized impurity. The pure drug would not work. Just so, Dr. Hershey finds that air 100 per cent pure, 79 parts of nitrogen and 21 parts of oxygen, will not sustain life. In ten experiments on animals all died. On the other hand, he found that, if he used helium for his 79 per cent, animals throve in it better than in ordinary air. So it may be that helium is our great life-giver, though we can not live in it alone any more than we can in oxygen or any other single gas.

These discoveries, interesting in themselves, are still more so for their practical possibilities. Oxygen is already familiar in medical practice. But it may prove that just as argon and helium have each found a place in industry, so they and the other components of the residual 1 per cent of our atmosphere may find their place in the maintenance or restoration of human health—not merely unrecognized as in the past, but under the conscious direction of human intelligence.

Post Haste.

Since some persons object to the big Tuesday council being called a super-Cabinet, we might compromise on "Little Congress."

To many the anaemic appearance of the dollar is no more distressing than the hectic flush on the face value of the pound.

On arrival in New York Prof. Moley greeted reporters with rare reticence, explaining: "I don't want to be unproductive, but I'll have to limit myself to that." The farm policy is encroaching on the State Department.

Our London delegates should cheer up; Congress probably would not have ratified any agreements anyhow.

Anti-racketeer Chief Keenan is all set to reverse things and make our leading gunmen the big shot-ats.

Since the Kansas supreme court side-steps ruling on whether beer is intoxicating, who in this country can be found to decide?

The dough boys will encounter the fire of Gen. Cummings if their loaves are not well bread.

Somehow it is hard to worry about Japan and Russia in friendly competition to dump cheap goods in China.

Secretary Wallace sees justification for a rise of only 1½ cents for a pound of bread, which means the truly economical would have to buy two loaves and eat one stale.

From Connecticut June Hill posthastes the suggestion that possibly London befuddlement is due to faulty transmission; they think we are singing it: "Happy Daze Is Here Again."

Mr. Runciman thrusts his runcible spoon into the London conference and did he stir up the animals!

Uniform wages under widely differing conditions is now the problem which is seeking a hyper-supercoordinator.

Lines for a Summer Cottage.

Lovely lake and lovely view,
Overhead are skies of blue,
But I think your charm depends
Less on these and more on friends.

Simply built and plain inside,
Naught have you of pomp and pride.
High upon a cliff you stand,
Overlooking lake and land.

Creaky boards and modest doors,
Bare the walls and bare the floors;
But with children's laughter gay
Till the summer goes away.

Whence your charm and whence your grace,
Rough and rugged summer place?
Not from lake or sky or trees,
But from happy memories.

Here we put all sham away.
Here we rest and dream and play.
Here until the summer end
We are honest with our friends.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Red-Headed Daughter

By Robert Quillen

MY DEAR LOUISE: At your age, boys who will climb high have decided where they are going.

Have you made any plans or dreamed any dreams?

Let me tell you something about people.

Most of us have little voice in deciding what we shall be or do. Our mental and physical limitations, our degree of training and our luck are the chief factors in shaping our destiny. We do the thing that seems necessary and adjust ourselves to conditions we can't change.

Even the superior and more fortunate ones, who might do almost anything and be almost anything, surrender to environment and drift like a log on a swollen river.

Because it is customary for superior men of their time and place to make money, they go into business and devote their lives to the drudgery of dollar-chasing.

It is true that they become prominent citizens and are respected and envied by the less fortunate, but what do they really get out of life?

When one of them comes to die and reviews the life he has led, what can he truthfully say of his achievements?

He can say: "I went to school and acquired some knowledge, most of which I soon forgot. I made a great deal of money, which my wife and children spent for trinkets and clothing and other things to impress the neighbors. I learned to knock a little ball in a hole 18 times with less than 90 strokes. I wore and said and believed and did the things that other men of my kind considered proper. I spent most of my waking hours at a desk. And I didn't have a very good time."

Is that a manly and dignified and worth-while existence for a creature endowed with reason and blessed with sufficient intelligence to dominate the earth?

And what about the ladies? When you review your accomplishments at the last will you be content to say: "I played bridge and wore pretty clothes and beads and found a man to support me and cultivated a few hobbies to kill time."

The dumb creatures do better than that. They at least live up to their capacities.

Whatever the purpose of life may be, common sense and a sense of personal dignity should prompt us to make our few score years count for something.

A ship's company cast away on an island would try, for the sake of their self-respect, to improve the place and make it habitable.

We are all cast away on the earth together. And we have made rather a mess of things for want of understanding.

There are countless things a woman can do to make the world a better place to live. The greatest, of course, is to multiply herself by bearing children and training them to be useful. But even if she works alone, there are many, many ways to make her life a blessing to mankind.

The harvest is great and the laborers few, my dear. I hate to think that you will merely eat and sleep and kill time and talk about the neighbors for seventy years. Love, DAD.

Political Comment

To Stop Kidnaping.
Providence Journal.

The forces of law and order must find some effective way to meet the increasing practice of kidnaping. No part of the country is exempt from it. Victims of all ages are selected by its practitioners. It is a survival of cruelty wholly out of keeping with twentieth-century civilization. It preys on grief and fear. It works in secret. It is founded on greed and irresponsibility. It balks at no audacity.

The best way to stop kidnaping is to catch the kidnapers and put them behind the bars. The prompt infliction of a long-term penalty in the Cape Cod case a few weeks ago carried automatically a wholesome deterrent influence. Would-be kidnapers, perverted or ill-balanced plotters, ruthless criminals — all these sat up and took notice when the convicted defendant entered the Charlestown State Prison condemned to work out a sentence of 24 years.

Minneapolis Journal.

We are accepting without much concern the fact that we shall have to pay more for bread. We are taking it philosophically as one of the things that just have to be, if the country is to keep on climbing up out of the depression hole. Not for a moment do we want to pay more, and official action to prevent unfair advantage being taken we shall commend. But if a higher price that is fair is going to help the farmer up to where he can pay his debts and become a buyer of the things he ought to be buying, and if that in turn will open manufacturing plants, increase employment and bring back good times, we will all take our medicine and pay the higher price like good sports.

The Once Over.

By H. I. Phillips

INTERVIEW WITH A COLLEGE PRESIDENT.

"Why so glum?" the casual visitor asked the university president.

"It's terrible," was the reply.

"What's terrible?"

"The situation with American universities. Think of it—not a millionaire has left us anything for new dormitories, quadrangles, swimming pools, gymnasiums, memorial libraries or lecture halls in two years," the college official replied sadly.

"What's so terrible about that?" he was asked. "The university doesn't really need any new dormitories, quadrangles, swimming pools, et cetera, does it?"

"No," he replied frankly. "We have too many now, but what difference does that make?"

"I should think it might make a little."

"None at all. The policy of an American university is to go on spending millions for new buildings whether it needs them or not. Up until the last two years we hardly opened a letter that didn't contain some gift of a few million for plant extension. I'll admit that for a time it was an open question in the minds of students whether they were getting an education or spending a few years in a reconstruction area."

"I had a boy tell me in 1929 that he wasn't certain whether he had been through Yale or just through a building boom," said the casual visitor.

"It has been somewhat chaotic, I'll admit," said the college president. "But I'm afraid it's all over for a long time. We don't even hear rumors of bequests these days. A few years ago each morning's mail held a half dozen letters from enriched graduates asking if we would accept three or four million for a row of new dormitories, done in the Tudor style, or a new scientific school or something. In the spring of 1929 I remember one morning that we got offers to build five new athletic fields."

"Didn't the colleges ever refuse any gifts for new buildings?"

"I'm afraid not. We all knew we had more buildings than were necessary to the cause of a balanced education, but we just couldn't resist. There was much confusion. Once our building committee found itself trying to build three gymnasiums on the same plot. In another instance we found ourselves voting to erect the Thaddeus P. Stewksbury quadrangle to replace the Luke W. Crimstacher quadrangle, which was still in course of construction!"

"It must have been embarrassing."

"It was. But with so many rich men giving us millions for new buildings some mix-ups were inevitable. You see, we all became so accustomed to fabulous gifts and bequests that the cessation is most depressing."

"What's the solution?"

"Oh, I guess we'll just have to get along with more buildings than we need," concluded the official, shaking his head hopelessly.

Two Traffic Dangers That Can Be Prevented by Greater Vigilance.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Drivers who awake and find themselves operating vehicles into changing lights or against warning signals should be forced to turn out at right angles. These violators are sometimes compelled to reverse their vehicles, thereby creating an even greater menace and endangering human life.

A pedestrian was the recent victim of an accident at Thirteenth and F streets, being struck down and critically injured by a backing vehicle that had run into a changing light.

The company also reported continued improvement in sales, with a steady uptrend since the first of April. During the first six months of the current year the company consumed about 20 per cent more tinplate than in the same period last year. Armour Planning Capital Revisions

Chicago, July 14 (A.P.).—The directorate of Armour & Co., meat packing concern, today announced details of a plan for readjusting and simplifying the capital structure of the company, the chief feature of the plan would be the issuance of one class of stock for three classes not outstanding. It will be submitted to stockholders at a special meeting August 22. Officials of the company have admitted it has been over-capitalized.

Under the plan, which was explained by T. G. Lee, president of Armour & Co., a single class of capital stock would be exchanged for three classes of stock outstanding—Armour & Co. (Illionis) 7 per cent cumulative preferred, with $100 par value, of which 572,313 shares are outstanding and class A and B common stock, of $25 par value, of which 2,000,000 shares of each are outstanding. Stock purchase warrants would be issued to common stockholders, Mr. Lee said. Holders of preferred stock would get 7½ shares of the new stock for each of the old, holders of class A common stock would get one share of the new and nine warrants for each six shares, and to class B holders would go one share of new stock and 12 warrants for each 12 shares.

The new stock would be valued at $12.50 a share, and a total of 4,792,348 shares issued. Also, 5,000,000 shares of the new stock would be held in reserve against the purchase warrants. Mr. Lee said that because of the write-down in the company's value stockholders would benefit by a saving on depreciation which would amount to 47 cents a share.

Tobaccco Curbing Drive Will Start

(Associated Press.)

Farm administrators will begin their acreage reduction campaign for cigar leaf tobacco next Monday in all of the principal growing areas in an effort to cut this year's harvest 50 per cent. Plans for each of the growing districts vary because of the difference in tobacco grades, but the plans for all areas have one provision in common, the paying of cash bounties to growers who destroy portions of their growing crop. A processing tax will become effective later, probably about October 1, to finance the program. Such a levy, designed to aid in financing the acreage reduction, is applied when the tobacco is first changed, or processed toward the finished product.

This tax will be at the rate of about 6 cents a pound and will be aimed to yield from $5,000,000 to $8,000,000. It will be collected from cigar manufacturers on all types of tobacco, with collections to be handled by the Bureau of Internal Revenue, which already has established a system of collecting internal revenue taxes on tobacco at these factories.

The growing districts are New York and Pennsylvania; Wisconsin and Minnesota; Ohio and Indiana; New England, and Georgia and Florida. A plan for other areas where other types of tobacco are grown is to be worked out later.

Trend of Business Is Found Widening

New York, July 14 (A.P.).—Broader trade trends were disclosed this week in the reports received by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., from all sections of the country, with the exception of a few isolated districts in the South. Summaries of June activity, the agency said, "confirmed a more rapid rise and wider gains over last year's record than the weekly reports had indicated."

"The most phenomenal phase in the delineation of these reports is furnished by the lack of a discernible trade of reactionary tendencies, even after 15 weeks of uninterrupted expansion. The usual summer let-down is receiving minor consideration as more industries are found to be sufficiently booked to carry current high operating schedules into September. Constantly enlarging orders are being received for foodstuffs, shoes, ready-to-wear clothing, millinery, machinery and equipment, iron and steel products, and, to some extent, for building materials.

"With industry as a whole operating at the highest level in two years, the abrupt gains of the last three months are convincing proof of the accelerated speed of the turnover. Where hesitation has appeared it has been due to the uncertainty of the price levels that will obtain after codes of operation will have been approved by the National Industrial Recovery Administration. In the meantime, purchasing in all divisions is broadening, as quotations advance steadily, and difficulties of delivery are giving more concern than prices."

Foreign Bonds Join Specialty Issues in Rise

Profit-Taking Fails to Bar Gains as Sales Drop to $17,756,000.

New York, July 14 (A.P.).—Strength of foreign loans and domestic corporation specialties was the feature today of an otherwise moderately irregular bond market.

Notwithstanding considerable profit-taking, the list as a whole maintained a fairly firm position, although sales declined to $17,756,000, par value, compared with $20,836,000 yesterday. The average for 60 corporate issues advanced two-tenths of a point to another new 1933 high at 82.4.

Foreign issues that climbed into new high ground for the recovery with advances of 1 to 6 or more points included some of Batavia, Argentina, Denmark and Switzerland. Gains of 1 to 2 or more were also recorded by loans of Australia, Brazil, Colombia and Germany.

Coal company bonds had their best day in months, principally as a result of reports that prices were to be raised around August 1. Among the principal gainers in this section were Old Ben Coal 6s, up 7⅛; Consolidated Coal 5s, up 3; Hudson Coal 5s, up 3¼; three of the Lehigh Valley Coal 5s, up 1 to 5⅞, and Philadelphia Reading Coal & Iron 6s and 5s, up 3½ and 4 points, respectively.

The rails did little, although there were several carrier liens that advanced 1 to 2 or more Among these were some issues of Canadian Pacific, Central Pacific, St. Paul, Chicago & Northwestern, Rock Island, Illinois Central, Louisville & Nashville, and Southern Pacific. There were a number of losses in this division of 1 or more points.

While loans of Postal Telegraph and International Telephone rallied 1 to 3 or more points, the utilities generally were rather quiet.

United States Government securities continued to follow a dull and slightly irregular course.

Bonding Company Is Frisco Creditor

(Associated Press.)

The United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. of Baltimore, Md., yesterday was authorized by the Interstate Commerce Commission to intervene as a creditor in the St. Louis-San Francisco Railroad reorganization.

The company has been supplying bonds to the railroad now in the hands of the St. Louis Federal Court. It has approximately $600,000 of Guaranty bonds outstanding. The company's petition said $25,000 of judgments have been rendered against the railroad in cases where the bonding company has been surety. In order to protect itself the company paid the judgments and asked the court to list it as a creditor.

The application added the receivers for the line have expressed themselves as being anxious and willing to pay the claims, but say they can not do so without a court order.

U. S. Dollars Rally On Foreign Marts

New York, July 14 (A.P.).—The American dollar rallied moderately in foreign exchange markets today, although trading was slower than usual owing to a holiday in France.

The British pound sterling dropped 2¼ cents, to a cable rate of $4.77¾; French francs eased .02¾ of a cent, to 5.61 cents, and Dutch guilders sagged .32 of a cent, at 57.85 cents.

Swiss francs and Belgian belgas were off about 1-12 of a cent each and German marks and the Scandinavians were heavy. Canadian dollars gained 1-16 of a cent, at 95.37½ cents, and Far Eastern currencies were unchanged.

Naval Stores Firm.

Profit-Takers Drive Stocks Into Declines

Bulls Keep Market Lively in Spite of Eight-tenths Average Loss; Some Specialties Rise; Sales Total 5,244,440 Shares.

New York, July 14 (A.P.).—Stocks were more sedate today as profit-takers hastened to harvest part of recent gains. On the whole, leaders finished with moderate losses, but bulls kept a finger in the pie by bidding up selected specialties.

The market was still lively, though volume dipped to 5,244,440 shares from yesterday's three-year record breaker. Wheat's strong finish, an improvement in cotton and a new high for the bond composite helped the general average for all markets.

Stocks moving independently of the mass included sugars, textiles, few metals and some miscellaneous issues. International Silver, Industrial Rayon, U. S. Steel and Union Bag & Paper were up 5 to 6 net. Great Western Sugar, South Puerto Rican and American Sugar gained 1 to nearly 4. Cerro de Pasco lifted 2. Packard, International Telephone, Du Plan Silk, Monsanto Chemical and Allied Chemical also aided in enlivening the day. Armour of Illinois preferred rose briskly in anticipation of the financial readjustment news.

On the down side, U. S. Steel, American Can, American Telephone, Chrysler, International Nickel, New York Central, Chesapeake & Ohio, Standard Brands, Owens-Illinois, Bethlehem and National Biscuit sagged 1 to 2 or more points. Repeal issues were quiet and comparatively narrow. National Distillers and U. S. Industrial lost 2.

The dollar steadied in foreign exchange trading, but hardly enough to cause stock market response; nor did other outside influences appear to be at work. Trade surveys repeated the story of business progress whose vitality has proved so surprising, while a few earnings reports indicate that the gain has been translated into profits.

Pennsylvania Railroad Repays $9,000,000

(Associated Press.)

The Pennsylvania Railroad Co. has repaid another $9,000,000 of its $27,500,000 loan from the Reconstruction Corporation.

The repayments started on July 1, when $5,000,000 was paid to the corporation. On July 5 another $4,500,000 was paid.

Wheat Bounds Higher on Fear Of Canada Loss

Cool Weather in Dominion May Damage Crops; Other Grains Up.

Chicago, July 14 (A.P.).—Wheat prices bounded wildly upward late today as high as $1.18 a bushel, a net gain of 4¼ cents overnight.

Reports that almost freezing temperatures had suddenly swept over the Canadian wheat belt, and that startling curtailment of crop yields would result, had an electric influence on traders. All Chicago future deliveries of wheat quickly surpassed the season's peak price records, with public speculative buying again on enormous scale.

The close was buoyant at the day's topmost figures, 2⅞ to 4¼ cents above yesterday's finish; corn, ⅛ to 2 cents up; oats, unchanged to ½ higher, and provisions varying from 7 cents decline to a rise of 12 cents.

Anxiety as to the safety of the Canadian wheat crop was intensified by reports of frost in some sections, and of the mercury at only 40 elsewhere, with forecasts indicating no material prompt relief.

There were also reports that sensationally bullish Canadian unofficial crop estimates would be forthcoming tonight or tomorrow. A sharp reversal of the course of Winnipeg wheat quotations today, showing nearly 6 cents a bushel jump from early low levels, did much to accelerate the rise of values here.

Houses with Eastern connections were conspicuous participants in the new outbursts of buying that whirled the wheat market skyward just before trading ended. Early weakness of Winnipeg prices had been attributed to Canadian government selling and was one of various factors which during much of the day tended to drag the Chicago market down, despite reports of continued deterioration of spring wheat both sides of the Canadian border.

A transient tumble of more than 3 cents in the Chicago rye market also was disconcerting, but all such factors were later lost sight of in view of Canadian developments.

Corn and oats followed wheat, although both of the feed grains were handicapped by big arrivals of corn here, 504 cars today, against only 57 a year ago.

Provisions ruled irregular, affected on the one hand by downturns of hog values and on the other by late jumps of cereals.

Three Capital Men In National Drive

Washington traders, but with the Government supervising these commodities and taking steps to curtail production and increase prices, many persons who formerly traded in stocks and bonds are giving attention to the commodity markets.

Some weeks ago, E. A. Pierce & Co., one of the large New York wire houses with local offices in the Transportation Building, installed a grain ticker. This firm now announces that a cotton ticker will be installed today which will furnish continuous quotations direct from the New York Cotton Exchange and the New Orleans Cotton Exchange. Thomas W. Brahany is manager of the Washington office of E. A. Pierce & Co.

The statement of condition as of June 30, made public yesterday by Departmental Bank, a local savings institution, which suspended a year ago, revealed additional collections of $52,138.15 by the receiver, W. B. Allman. This bank already has paid three dividends to crdeitors and depositors, amounting to 65 per cent, or approximately $500,000.

Cuban Sugar Men Meet on Stabilizing

(Associated Press.)

Cuban delegates met again yesterday with domestic sugar representatives in an attempt to reconcile conflicting views on the proposed sugar stabilization agreement.

Dr. Eugenio Molinet, Cuban secretary of agriculture, is head of the Cuban delegation of five.

Disagreement in yesterday's discussion concerning proposed refined sugar quotas caused the processors' representatives to meet separately and prepare a substitute agreement covering this phase.

U. S. Prison Labor Produces Goods Valued at $75,000,000

(Associated Press.)

Prison labor produced goods valued at more than $75,000,000 last year.

That was shown yesterday by the Bureau of Labor statistics which, in a survey, counted 158,947 prisoners confined in State and Federal prisons in 1932.

The 82,276 prisoners engaged in productive labor turned out 22,000,000 shirts valued at more than $8,000,000; 63,000,000 pounds of binder twine valued at more than $4,000,000 and more than 36,000,000 automobile license tags.

Prison labor also built more than 1,200 miles of new road, valued at more than $15,000,000. About $5,000,000 of this was in Georgia.

Cotton Advance Is Renewed on Buying Orders

October Sells at 11.68 as General Market Rises 14 to 21 Points.

New York, July 14 (A.P.).—Cotton rallied after a further early setback today.

Prices sold back to the 12-cent level for December, or even with the high point of Thursday, but the advance was checked by realizing in the later trading and there were partial reactions with December closing at 11.88. The general market closed barely steady at net advances of 14 to 21 points.

The opening was unchanged to 7 points higher. Active months sold about 7 to 13 net lower under the early pressure. But after those offerings had been absorbed, there was not a great deal of cotton for sale, apparently, and the market responded to moderate buying orders, which appeared to come from commission and local sources.

Realizing Is Renewed.

This was probably promoted by the firmer ruling of the afternoon grain market, but rallies of 25 to 28 points from the low levels of the morning met renewed realizing which caused partial reactions in the late trading when traders were evidently inclined to even up, pending official announcements on the acreage canvass results.

The report of the Census Bureau placing domestic consumption for June at 696,472 bales, or the highest for any one month on record, helped the midday market, but was about in line with expectations based on recent forecasts.

Liverpool cables said that business there had been greatly restricted by acreage uncertainty, but that the persistence of the Western drought was a sustaining factor.

Exports 55,952 Bales.

Exports today 55,952, making 8,177,400 so far this season. Port receipts, 29,385. United States port stocks, 3,261,855.

Houses with Liverpool and continental connections were among the buyers here during the early trading. General business was less active than earlier in the week, with the market correspondingly more responsive to moderate orders either way, but there were spurts of activity, particularly on the early afternoon advance.

Comment was aroused by the continued free movement of cotton to spinners with forwardings of 329,000 bales to the world's mills indicated by the New York Cotton Exchange figures for this week against 179,000 last year. In this connection it was pointed out as an unusual feature that forwardings for the season to date were exactly the same as the into-sight movement totaling 13,717,000 bales.

Lake Ore Vessels Return to Service

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, July 14.—For the first time since 1931, all vessels of the National Steel Corporation fleet are now operating in the ore and coal-carrying trade on the Great Lakes, it was officially stated today. The seventh and last vessel has sailed from winter quarters to take on cargo.

Speed of these vessels and exceptional loading facilities at terminals permit them to carry large aggregates of cargo during the season of open navigation.

During the 1931 season, one vessel of the National fleet, the George R. Fink, moved a total of 425,339 tons of cargo, a season record for the amount of freight carried through the Sault canals by a single vessel.

Railways Join Drive to Push Nation's Trade

Roads Report Increased Activity in Repairing Equipment.

From Railway Age.

New York, July 14.—For eight consecutive weeks up to July 1, freight-car loadings for 1933 have surpassed those of the corresponding weeks in 1932. What is being done to insure that the cars and locomotives will be in condition to meet these increased demands? The Railway Age on July 6 sent the following telegram to the presidents of class 1 roads:

"Appreciate greatly information to extent you are enlarging locomotive and car repair programs, including location shops involved, number of employes added, &c."

Those replies giving concrete information are summarized below. Many other roads indicated that they were watching conditions closely and were prepared to take steps to meet any demands which might be made upon them.

Activity in Shops.

Alton Railroad—On June 26 the working time of the 330 employes in the Bloomington locomotive repair shop was increased from four to five days per week. Sixty-five additional men were employed on Monday, June 10.

Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe—On July 1 the working time was increased from three to four days per week in the locomotive repair shops at La Junta, Colo., employing 171 men; Albuquerque, N. Mex., employing 377 men, and San Bernardino, Calif., 485 men. The working time for both the car and locomotive forces as Cleburne, Tex., was increased from two to three days per week; 176 men are employed in the locomotive shop and 211 in the car shop at that point.

Baltimore & Ohio—Beginning June 26, 330 men went to work in the Mount Clare locomotive repair shop and 200 men were called back to work for light repairs on freight equipment at various points on the system.

Central of Georgia—Since June 1 the employes in the locomotive and car repair shops at Macon, Ga., have worked 45 hours instead of 32 hours per week. Employes at the Savannah coach shops have been working 45 hours per week, as compared to 25.

C. & E. I. Railway.

Chicago & Eastern Illinois—The locomotive repair shop at Danville, Ill., was closed last February, but was reopened in May and now employs 274 men; this is the normal force for the present volume of business. The car repair forces are being maintained on a basis commensurate with the present volume of business.

Chicago & North Western—There has been a slight increase in the forces at the various car repair points. If business continues to increase, it is anticipated that it will be necessary to add on August 1 a total of 400 men in the locomotive repair departments of the Chicago & North Western and the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha.

Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific—The July pay rolls for the locomotive and car repair departments will be approximately 7 per cent greater than in May.

Elgin, Joliet & Eastern—Since May 1 the forces in the locomotive and car departments at Joliet, Ill., have been increased approximately 300, while about 150 have been added to the forces at Gary, Ind.

Erie Railroad—Beginning July 1, the schedule for the locomotive shops at Hornell, N. Y., and Meadville, Pa., has been stepped up from 8 to 18 days per month. Prior to June 1 the car repair shops at Port Jervis, N. Y.; Dunmore, Pa., and Huntington, Ind., worked 8 days per month. During the month of June the schedule at Port Jervis and Huntington was increased to 15 days per month, and beginning July 1, all the above shops have been placed on an 18-day per month schedule. Compared with the 8-day schedule, this represents an increase of 125 per cent in man-hours; 1,700 employes will be benefited.

Grand Trunk Western—The working time has been increased at the Battle Creek, Mich., locomotive repair shops and the Port Huron, Mich., car repair shops.

Great Northern—On Monday, July 10, the shops were opened at Hillyard, Wash., employing 235 men; St. Cloud, Minn., 156 men, and both the locomotive and car shops at St. Paul, Minn., employing 457 men.

Illinois Central—The working forces have been increased by approximately 150 in the locomotive department, and 265 in the car department.

Louisville & Nashville—During the past 60 days increases in the shop forces have been authorized as follows: Locomotive repair department, Louisville, Ky., 153; Corbin, Ky., 51; DeCoursey, Ky., 13; Radnor, Tenn., 15; Seibert, Ala., 44. Car repair department, Louisville, Ky., 40; Corbin, Ky., 78; DeCoursey, Ky., 35, and Boyles, Ala., 66.

Missouri-Kansas-Texas Lines—Since April approximately 800 employes have been put to work in the shops at Parsons, Kans.; Waco, Tex., and Sedalia, Mo. The locomotive and passenger car repair programs so far this year have been greatly in excess of those for all of last year. The management is hopeful that increased business will necessitate the continuance of this repair program.

New York Central Lines (including the P. & L. E. and I. H. B.)—The locomotive and car maintenance forces were at a minimum in March, 1933; during that month eight locomotive repair shops operated a total of 93 days, with 2,844 men, or an average of 11.6 days per shop. In July, nine locomotive shops will operate a total of 140 days, an average of approximately 15 days per shop, and employing a total of 4,080 men. In the month of March three freight car repair shops worked a total of 15 days, an average of five days per shop, men being employed. In July, car shops will operate a total of 20 days in March, or an average of 10 days each, 367 men being employed. In July, three passenger car repair shops will operate a total of 53 days, or a little better than 2 days per shop, 822 men being employed. The total number of men operating in March was 1,232 and the number of employes has been increased from 3,502 to

New Bills in Downtown, First-Run Theaters Reported by Reviewers

Three Stars in Vivid Romance Palace Feature

Drama, Comedy and Thrills Occupy Other Screens and Stages.

By Nelson B. Bell.

"STORM AT DAYBREAK." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of a screen play based on Condor Hunyady's "Black-Stemmed Cherries," featuring Kay Francis, Walter Huston and Nils Asther, with Phillips Holmes, Eugene Pallette, Louise Closser Hale and C. Henry Gordon. Directed by Richard Boleslavsky. Previewed Tuesday afternoon.

Directed by Richard Boleslavsky with all of the flair for colorful and grandiose effect that characterized his "Rasputin and the Empress," this newer pseudo-historical romance makes up in melodramatic vigor what it may lack in authentic incident.

After it has reproduced—probably with some just claim to accuracy—the tragic event of that July day, 1914, in Sarajevo, "Storm at Daybreak" becomes strictly a fictional domestic drama, cut on the familiar triangle pattern, with the great war, as it manifested itself along the Serbian frontier, serving merely in the secondary capacity of flamboyant and explosive background for a story of harassed and turbulent love.

A dashing young Hungarian cavalry officer is billeted in the home of his old friend, Dushan, horse breeder and mayor of his little Serbian village, and almost immediately subordinates his sense of official responsibility to a greater consciousness of the beauty and charm of his old friend's young wife, Irina.

Thus early in the action are the three points of the triangle established. They persist through a bewildering maze of extraneous embellishment to the violently exciting climax of the action, in which Dushan, perceiving the genuineness of the love of Geza and Irina, and, at the same time, the hopelessness of his own husbandly devotion, removes all remaining obstacles to the future happiness of the lovers.

This, of course, is a drastically skeletonized outline of the play's major movement—a movement that at times is considerably impeded by a wealth of investiture that embraces political intrigue, the simple social pursuits of the Serbian countryside, a little rousing Hungarian music, a deal of rather forced comedy and a final touch of pathos and tragedy. It is all done in the grand manner and with a flourish.

The three central figures of the story are impersonated with perhaps slightly uneven skill by Kay Francis, Walter Huston and Nils Asther. Foremost among these I should place Walter Huston for the variety, color and depth of his performance as a victim of an unrequited love. Miss Francis would be entitled to second rating for an intelligent and repressed portrayal of a role that places no severe strain upon her proved talents. Nils Asther, although quietly effective, falls something short of the able characterization he brought to the role of the scholarly bandit in "The Bitter Tea of General Yen."

The comedy is intrusted principally to Eugene Pallette and Louise Closser Hale, who find themselves seriously handicapped by the meager material with which they have to work for humor in a drama that is not in nature gay.

C. Henry Gordon, as a renegade servitor who returns as commandant of the village; Phillips Holmes, the symbol of youthful infatuation and war's hideous toll of the young; Jean Parker and James Bell distinguish comparatively minor parts among a numerous supporting ensemble.

In the matters of photography and pictorial beauty, the picture reflects an unfailingly high type of artistry.

A two-reel comedy, "One Track Mind," affording further play to the contrasted methods of Thelma Todd and ZaSu Pitts, with the usual comic results; "Mickey's Gala Premiere," the high point of amusing caricature in animated cartooning; a single-reel travel subject devoted to Fujiyama, and the Metrotone News complete a program of substantial worth.

RKO-Keith's.

"DOUBLE HARNESS." RKO-Radio picturization of the play by Edward Poor Montgomery, adapted to the screen by Jane Murfin, costarring Ann Harding and William Powell, with Henry Stephenson, Lillian Bond, Reginald Owen and Lucile Browne. Directed by John Cromwell. Previewed Monday midnight.

Although it has been so deftly handled as to be wholly inoffensive, no scene so daring as the one in this picture which determines Joan Colby and John Fletcher upon matrimony as the only honorable course they can pursue, has been made a motivating factor of domestic drama since the late Henry Miller and Laura Hope Crews appeared in "Havoc."

It makes the heroine of the story the voluntary victim of a situation abhorred by most ostensibly respectable young women and supplies the basis for a dramatic climax in which the stigma upon her character is additionally emphasized.

It is the unique shaping of circumstances by which a daughter of a family of financial standing and social prestige deliberately makes herself the pivotal figure in what has been expressively, but inelegantly, termed a "shotgun wedding."

This may be thought a dramatic device that ill befits the temperament and point of view of an actress of such austerity and chill charm as the blonde and reserved Ann Harding, but, oddly enough, it is the spark that ignites one of the warmest and most engaging character portrayals she has brought to the screen in recent months—a performance that will go far toward restoring Miss Harding to the prestige that of late has been sacrificed to a succession of unfortunate assignments, to which "The Animal Kingdom" and "When Ladies Meet" furnish the only recent exceptions.

"Double Harness" in its entirety is a drama of situations rather than wordage, although it abounds in lines that are pithy, direct and subtly humorous.

Until the trick by which he was roped into matrimony is revealed by a piqued and slightly jingled younger sister, all seems well with the marital bliss of the rich young philanderer and his handsome young wife who views love as woman's explicit "business." Even after the revelation of her deliberate duplicity, events seem to shape themselves in a manner not difficult to harmonize with common practice among intelligent adults. It is by means no less convincing and legitimate that Edward Poor Montgomery, the author, brings about the surprisingly sane denouement of what is apparently a hopeless domestic muddle.

This smooth-running and naturalistic drama is played with keen relish and a conspicuous savoir faire by Miss Harding and William Powell, who is admirably fitted with the role of Fletcher, the wastrel brought to business and financial importance by the shrewd contriving of the wife he thinks he wishes to cast off. Both are poised, rational and convincing in parts that seem almost to have been conceived for their especial glorification.

The supporting cast lags no whit behind the stars in the excellence of their miming. Henry Stephenson is a kindly father with only occasional moments of irascibility; Lillian Bond is both decorative and dramatically effective as the "other woman" in Fletcher's life of variegated loves; Lucile Browne is an irritatingly selfish and addle-pated younger sister and Reginald Owen is a priceless butler. Many others contribute in smaller measure to the perfected playing of a splendid acting group.

One of the better of the cartoon comedies, "In the Park;" a two-reel subject dealing with the unique beauties of the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago, and the Pathe News are the auxiliary features of a bill no judicious playgoer will want to miss. N. B. B.

"THE MAYOR OF HELL." Warner Bros. picturization of a screen play by Edward Chodorov, starring James Cagney, with Madge Evans, Allen Jenkins, Dudley Digges, Arthur Byron and Frankie Darrow. Directed by Archie Mayo. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

Until the play loses itself in a sudden wild surge of melodrama toward its very end, this is an interesting and frequently amusing drama of corrective discipline for incorrigible youths picked up from big city streets.

The greater part of its action takes place in and about a State reformatory for boys. The rest is underworld. The spectacle of a petty crook shaping the destiny of embryo criminals is a little startling, but by some odd paradox, proves diverting and at times exciting entertainment.

For this "hell," to which reference is made in the title of "The Mayor of Hell," is the State reform school and its "mayor," a tough, young egg, whose better impulses are aroused by a lad of his own stamp who comes up to the institution as a deputy commissioner, bent on reforming the reformers in charge of the establishment. It all works out rather well for all concerned in the end, although plausibility is tossed overboard in the final episodes of the story.

James Cagney, as the deputy commissioner who has come up from the tenement sidewalks, is theoretically the star of the picture. In point of cold fact, he is no more the star than Frankie Darrow, one of the most able of the juvenile actors, or Dudley Digges, that admirable character actor, who appears in the role of the reform school superintendent, whose methods are those of a hypocritical and sadistic slave-driver.

The touch of love interest that is threaded through the action is supplied by Madge Evans, as the nurse of compassionate impulses and sympathetic understanding whose humanitarianism finally costs her her job but wins her Patsy Gargan, the dynamic deputy.

The most sagacious casting and the best of the drama occur in the introductory sequences, when the history of a gang of city thugs in the making is traced through juvenile court to the sentence upstate. If the entire picture could by some miracle have maintained the quality of drama momentarily established here, it would have been a masterpiece of purest ray serene. As it is, it pursues a descending course to a final moment of exaggerated and unbelievable melodrama that weakens the entire dramatic structure almost to the point of collapse.

In addition to those named, Allen Jenkins, Arthur Byron, William V. Mong, Edwin Maxwell and Sheila Terry are among the adult players who do most for the soundness of the play and its treatment. Of the many youngsters in the cast, Mickey Bennett, "Farina," Sidney Miller, Raymond Borzage, George Offerman and Charles Cane render the most useful service—always excepting Master Darrow, who is in a class by himself, and exhibits a youthful personality of memorable color and forcefulness.

On the stage Joe Penner, assisted by Ernie Stanton, romps off, as usual, with top honors. His material remains about the same as it always has been—grotesque and uproariously funny—and reaches its climax in the inspired rendition of "When the Pussywillow Whispers to the Catnip." Mr. Stanton is an entertainer of no mean stature on his own account.

The other acts introduced by Miss Maxine Doyle, still showing traces of her Detroit River tan, include the Pickens Sisters in one of the more engaging of the demonstrations of close-harmony vocalism through the microphone; the Three Emerald Sisters, acrobats, and Carl Shaw, a remarkable acrobatic dancer, assisted by Frank Gallagher and a statuesque blonde evidently present for purposes of decoration only.

The Pickens Sisters are swell, and so are the Emeralds. Mr. Shaw would be, if he could be persuaded to drop a great deal of his rowdy "comedy" in favor of more of his extraordinary dancing. He is at times thoroughly objectionable.

Bobby Jones in "Down Swing," latest release in his "How to Break 90" golf series, is more lecturer than actor, this subject falling far below the entertainment level of his earlier "How I Play Golf" releases.

The Universal News, with Mr. McNamee's interpretative chatter, and orchestral interludes complete a program of vigorous action on both screen and stage. N. B. B.

"THE MAN WHO DARED." Fox picturization of an original screen play by Dudley Nichols and Lamar Trotti, featuring Preston Foster, Zita Johann, Douglas Dumbrille and Jay Ward. Directed by Hamilton MacFadden. Reviewed Friday evening by W. A. Whitney.

More than an imaginative biography, as the subtitle states, "The Man Who Dared," when reduced to the simplest terms, is the story of the life and works of Anton J. Cermak, late mayor of the City of Chicago. If Authors Nichols and Trotti have erred in their presentation, they certainly can not be charged with fabricating any of the basic facts on which this picture is based.

Just why the person of the title role should be Jan Novak is not quite clear; likewise the remainder of the cast, which is fictitiously named. But from the time that Father and Mother Novak, with infant son, Jan, arrive in the Land of Opportunity until Jan (now called John) falls a victim of assassins' bullets meant for the President, the essentials of the Cermak story are presented with unusual fidelity.

Never melodramatic, this "imaginative biography," whether in the coal fields around Braidwood, Ill., or in the political career in Chicago of "the man who dared," or even in the closing shot of "greater love hath no man, that he lay down his life for a friend." Rather is it the struggles of a poor immigrant boy—the same old story that the history of these United States has so many times written.

Horatio Alger-ish, if you will, with the serious, hard-working boy becoming father to the man of similar attributes. Yet "The Man Who Dared" is more than a story; yea, even more than a biography (imaginative or otherwise)—it is a sincere tribute to one who, overcoming difficulties which would have crushed a less courageous soul, rose by sheer force of personal character and worth to the highest position within the power of any city to give.

Outside of the work of Preston Foster in the title role, little need be said, for in representing the 60 years of his life, the producers have done excellently in selecting a cast of character players capably to perform the many roles. To Mr. Foster, however, falls the heavy duty of delineating the mayor, a task which calls forth the utmost in histrionic ability, and Mr. Foster is not found wanting. A superb characterization of a person of our present era which has had no superiors and very few equals.

Special mention should be made of the unusual reenactment of the Miami tragedy, as the outstanding directorial and reconstructive piece of work.

On the stage is presented Vittorio Podrecca's "The Piccoli," a vaudeville abridgement of the National Theater's outstanding novelty of the past season. Opening with the tabloid "The Geisha" (Jones), the program includes a burlesque ballet; Bil-Bal-Bul, the tight-rope walker; the two-scene bull fight, and the piano recital and rendition of the quartet from Verdi's "Rigoletto." Amarionette show par excellence, which makes a grand variation from the regular run of variety shows.

For an overture, the Fox Orchestra plays Lake's "The Evolution of Dixie," with some Lampkin embellishments. A release of the Fox Movietone News and 10 miles of trailers complete a great show.

"SHE DONE HIM WRONG." Paramount's picturization of a story by Mae West, adapted to the screen by Harvey Thew and John Bright, starring Mae West, with Cary Grant, Gilbert Roland, Noah Beery, Rafaela Ottiano, Owen Moore and David Landau. Directed by Lowell Sherman. Reviewed Friday evening by Dorothea Lewis.

"Whydonya come UP anseeme sometime?" May West repeats and so do we.

Come on, ladies and gents, don't be noivous, we're giving you an ace invite, we're going to the Bowery when it was the Bowery. We're going to a swell jernt, Gus' saloon, and look over the notorious Diamond Lady Lou, the gal who has the police gazette and fireman fightin' over her picture for their next year's calendar. We're going to see handlebar mustaches, bicycles built for two, hear whisky tenors, and singing waiters, have all the trimmings that made beer what it was, and see the clothes—oh those clothes.

And Lou! Well honest, folks, you'll have to see Lou yourselves. She's a honey. She's made diamonds her career and the men that furnished the diamonds—well her cherce falls on the biggest diamonds most of the time, not the handsomest men. There's Chick (Owen Moore), part of her past, doing a stretch, Gus (Noah Beery), her present, Dan (David Landau), who wants to be her future, Cummings (Cary Grant) who is, and Serge (Gilbert Roland), who takes his time when he can find it.

Lou's got more little grunts and murmurs, sideglances, undulating curves and a strange, strange voice. There's only one of her kind. Ladies and gents, who'll be foist to climb on for grand fun ride to the Bowery and Gus? You'll have the time of your lives.

Sideshow attractions are a newsreel, a musical short and a comedy of the late Fatty Arbuckle in the old, but not good old, slapstick tradition.

Women Name Capital Pair as Federation Aids

Mrs. Geline Mac. Bowman, of Richmond, to Head Business Clubs.

Chicago, July 14 (A.P.).—Winding up their convention, delegates of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women today reelected Mrs. Geline MacDonald Bowman, Richmond, Va., as president for a two-year term.

Mrs. Bowman is the owner of a direct mail advertising business. Other officers, nominated Thursday, were elected as follows:

Mrs. Charl O. Williams, Washington, D. C., first vice president; Dr. Florence May Morse, Los Angeles, second vice president; Judge Florence Allen, Cleveland, third vice president; Miss Marjorie Shuler, New York, corresponding secretary; Mrs. E. Pearl Warwick, Champaign, Ill., treasurer, and Miss Earlene White, Washington, D. C., recording secretary.

Occupational Survey Voted.

The convention today voted to conduct a broadened occupational survey in regard to women in the light of present-day conditions to determine vocational opportunities, possible discriminations and effects of the age factor.

The action followed the report and recommendation of Dr. Lillian N. Gilbreth, of Montclair, N. J., chairman of the research committee.

A resolution, presented by Mrs. Bowman, that a vocational guidance department be established at the national headquarters in Washington to serve as a clearing house on occupational information, was passed.

Conference to Be Held.

Another recommendation by Mrs. Bowman, giving the board of directors authority to call a conference of outstanding woman leaders in various fields to discuss the present-day situation and cooperation, also was indorsed.

The federation pledged its efforts "to maintain the present high standards of American education through adequate financial support to our public schools and libraries, whose services have been impaired by drastic economy programs in many communities."

A report on an incomplete survey, regarding discrimination against women, presented by Dr. Iva Lowther Peters, of Kishkill, N. Y., said that out of 325 local clubs, 136 reported definite discrimination.

New Cab Permits Here Total 2,225

Nearly 1,100 taxicab licenses were issued yesterday by the Public Utilities Commission as the deadline for 1932 permits neared.

With only a half day remaining to issue 1933 licenses before the old ones expire at midnight tonight, the commission had issued 2,225 new permits at the close of business yesterday. It is expected that the total will be increased to 3,000 by this afternoon.

While there are 4,500 1932 cab licenses on the commission's records, it is believed that from 1,000 to 1,500 of these are not in operation because of the season slump in the taxicab business.

Rays Visiting

Popular Ultra-Violet Device in Science Academy Sent to World's Fair.

The ultra-violet ray machine, "the people's choice" among the scores of fascinating exhibits at the National Academy of Sciences, is missing.

There is no excitement, however, nor has a search been started, although the machine probably evokes more "oh's" and "ah's" than any of the others. It is in Chicago, sent there for the science convention held in connection with the Century of Progress Fair.

Paul Brockett, secretary of the committee on exhibits, said yesterday the machine will be returned in the near future. Sent to Chicago with the ultra-violet ray device was the Zeeman effect apparatus, which shows magnetic influence on light waves.

The photo-electric organ and the stroboscopes are taking the popularity laurels in "Violet's" absence. A simple tune can be "played" on the former by moving the hand across the light's path.

The stroboscopes lend further proof that seeing is not always believing. One gives the appearance of markings on a circular card revolving in opposite directions and the other, a black disc, seems to be perfectly motionless when it is revolving 1,800 times a minute.

Plans Program.

LAWRENCE LEER,

Carnival Offers Elks Boys Band

Assistant Leader, 17, Has Arranged Music for St. Gabriel's Fete.

The Elks Boys Band is presenting a "carnival special" concert at St. Gabriel's carnival every night.

Owing to the number of requests received by the carnival committee for the band to reappear this year, it was necessary for the director to offer something new in band concerts.

Music for the program was arranged by Lawrence Leer, 17-year-old assistant conductor of the band and its original member. In addition to the music arranged by Lawrence the band will play several of his compositions. The young assistant conductor has been a student of music for ten years and is capable of playing practically every instrument in the band. The band is under the direction of James L. Kidwell.

U. S. Would Probe Bread Agreement

Otherwise If Prices Rise Here Justice Officials Won't Interfere.

If there is any effort in Washington to increase the price of bread through a combination or agreement, the Department of Justice may intervene. Otherwise, it will maintain a hands-off policy.

This was made clear at the Department of Justice yesterday to correct the impression that the department is prepared to take action in other instances of price changing.

The agricultural adjustment administration will conduct an inquiry to determine the fairness of bread price increases throughout the country. Meanwhile, bread prices in Washington remained unchanged.

Offers Blood

Former Disease Victim Would Help Girl in Hospital.

If blood transfused from the veins of a former victim of infantile paralysis will benefit Thelma Klohr, 16, stricken with the disease and lying in a critical condition in Homeopathic Hospital, Richard E. Philpot, of Tampa, Fla., is prepared to submit to the operation.

Learning of the girl's plight from a conversation overheard in the lobby of the Mayflower Hotel, Mr. Philpot, who spent eight years in the Roosevelt Foundation at Warm Springs, Ga., before regaining the use of his lower limbs, yesterday visited the hospital and offered his blood if it would aid Miss Klohr's recovery. Whether the transfusion will be made depends upon developments in the girl's condition within the next few days. Hospital attendants reported her condition slightly improved last night.

Miss Klohr is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Edgar Klohr, 421 Butternut street, Silver Spring, Md. She was admitted to the hospital July 10.

Colored Youths Also Included In Post Party

Comic Section Will Admit Them to Free Swim at Y. M. C. A. Pool.

Colored youths, too, may avail themselves of The Post's offer for a free swim Monday.

Arthur A. Green, physical director at the Twelfth street Y. M. C. A., 1816 Twelfth street northwest, notified The Post yesterday that all colored youths under 16 who present to him the new comic section of The Post, which appears for the first time Sunday, will be admitted to the Y pool free of charge.

White children will be the guests of the Airport pool just across the Fourteenth street bridge in Virginia.

Remember, all you have to do for either free swim party is to secure the new Post comic section and hand it in at the two swimming pools. You will be admitted absolutely free of charge. It is suggested at the Airport pool and also at the Y that the swimmers present their comics before 2 p. m.

The beautiful Airport pool announced yesterday that it would have an extra staff of life guards present for The Post's party to insure safety to every one who comes out for the outing.

Physical Director Green, at the Y, stated he would also have his entire swimming staff, including instructors, on hand for the colored youths' party.

Don't miss the new comics in The Post. They are Napoleon and Uncle Billy, Joe Palooka, Dixie Dugan and Hairbreadth Harry. They'll be with you in four colors Sunday morning. Be sure to get yours first for the free swim party.

Grocers Show First Upturn in Prices

The first real upturn of consumer prices in the last two years in Washington was recorded last month by Washington grocers. A 2 per cent rise was recorded in a report compiled by the Labor Department's Bureau of Statistics.

Washington was one of 51 cities represented in the report. The increase in retail food prices in these other cities averaged 3½ per cent, the report stated.

Nats Bow to Chisox, 4-0, Hold Lead by .004 Points as Yanks Win

This Morning

With Shirley L. Povich.

I AM mildly chided by Mr. Clark C. Griffith for viewing with alarm in this column the recent malfeasances of his Washington Ball Club, and I am almost ashamed no end.

I am reminded by Mr. Griffith that his Nats are still on top of the American League and that if they had burrowed up from underneath to reach the position they are enjoying this morning, the town would be cheering them, and this is no time to be faint-hearted.

"You," said Mr. Griffith to me, "were one of those who bore with us when we were winning and now that we lose a few ball games, you begin to view with alarm. That is no way to treat our ball club. I didn't think you were one of our fair-weather friends. We're still on top of the league, I tell you, and that's not a bad place to operate from."

Depends on Direction.

It's not a bad place to operate from, truth to tell, but it all depends in which direction one operates. But now that I am taken to task for my panic at the deflation of the Nats' 4½-game lead, remorse is mine.

I didn't intend to bleat and wail when I said the situation was getting serious with the Nats, whose losses have now reached the pyorrhea stage. Yesterday's feeble efforts against the Sox didn't serve to alleviate matters, either, but it behooves me to keep a stiff upper lip inasmuch as I was one of the lads who was talking pennant only a week ago.

Methinks the Nats are still pennant possibilities as distinguished from what I was calling pennant probabilities out West when the club was showing a record of 23 wins out of 26 games. It's not in the books for the Nate to slump for long, and I am reminded, too, that the Yanks have won four of their seven straight games against the negligible competition of the Browns. Now, all together folks, a little confidence.

Fan Asks Tolerance.

It is coincidental, perhaps, that I am in receipt of a letter from Mr. William A. Kesmodel, of 400 Seward square southeast, elucidating a bit on the same subject. Says Mr. Kesmodel:

"I find myself somewhat amused by the current hysteria of the local fans because the Nats are in a little slump. In a way, I expected about 80 per cent of them to begin 'viewing with alarm' as soon as the team lost a couple of games, but I thought the sports writers would take it more philosophically.

"After all, the team won 23 out of 26, and even the games they lost were 'phonies' (either gifts or the umpires or the pitchers forced over the winning run with a base on balls). It seems to me almost inevitable that the pitching, batting and fielding could not continue to cooperate 100 per cent indefinitely.

Shouldn't Condemn Club.

"It just happens that the Yankees are emerging from a slump while the Nats are having a slight attack of the jitters. Why, just look at the incomparable Ossie Bluege—he's made more errors in the past few days than he did all last month (maybe longer). The fans shouldn't condemn the club.

"As long as the boys follow the leadership of Joe Cronin, I am not worried about the ball team. But the next few weeks will demonstrate whether the Washington public deserves to have a pennant winning team."

8-Run Sixth Decides for New York

7th in Row Registered as Browns Lose by Score of 11 to 6.

Chapman, Reynolds Hit Homers; Ruth Hurt Chasing Fly Ball.

NEW YORK, July 14 (A.P.).—The Yankees climbed back into a virtual tie with Washington for the American League lead today by putting on an eight-run splurge in the sixth inning and defeating the St. Louis Browns, 11 to 6. It was the Yanks' seventh straight victory and their fourth in a row over the Browns.

The Yanks sent 13 men to the plate in the sixth and gathered in seven hits off George Blaeholder and Sam Gray. Bill Dickey's tenth homer of the season and Lou Gehrig's triple with the bases loaded were the important blows.

Chapman Hits Homer.

Ben Chapman socked a homer in the first for the other three Yankee runs and Carl Reynolds hit a circuit drive for St. Louis. Walter Brown got credit for the victory by pitching one-hit ball after relieving Russell Van Atta in the sixth.

Babe Ruth hurt his right arm when he ran into a field box going after Irving Burns' fly in the fifth and retired from the game after playing another inning.

Red Sox Defeated By Tigers by 8 to 3

Bridges Grants Seven Hits; Pipgras and Welch Are Pounded for 13.

Boston, July 14 (A.P.).—Detroit slugged its way to victory in the final game of their series with the Red Sox today, piling up an 8-to-3 score while Tommy Bridges was holding the Sox to seven hits.

The win gave the Tigers an even split in the four games. The Bengals pounded Pipgras and Welch to pile up 13 hits. Bridges' only weakness was his wildness, but it was not sufficiently serious to do much damage.

Fox drove in four runs for the visitors and collected a triple, two singles and a stolen base for his offensive record. Stone and Owen also made three hits apiece.

Win in Doubles Gives British 2-1 Lead

Perry and Hughes Defeat Quist and Turnbull in Four-Set Match.

By Frank H. King.

WIMBLEDON, England, July 14 (A.P.).—Fred Perry, playing brilliant tennis for old England, with George Patrick Hughes ably supporting him, beat the Australian Davis Cup doubles team of Adrian Quist and Don Turnbull, 7—5, 6—4, 3—6, 6—3, today, giving Great Britain a 2-to-1 lead in the European zone final and a decidedly better chance of meeting the United States in the interzone matches.

Henry W (Bunny) Austin, England's second ranking player, is the favorite to beat young Vivian McGrath and gain the deciding point in the closing singles matches tomorrow, regardless of how Perry fares against Jack Crawford, Australia's new Wimbledon champion. Crawford beat Austin and Perry trounced McGrath as the first pair of singles matches were divided yesterday.

British Fans Confident.

So British tennis fandom could sleep easily tonight, confident their Davis Cup stars would make their appearance again in the final stages of the international trophy chase as they did for the last time in 1931 when France turned them back in the challenge round.

The victory of the mother country today was achieved on the famous center court before a family party of 2,500 fans, where one could have one's tea in comfort without thousands of foreigners crowding the big stands as they did during last week's free-for-all nations, the Wimbledon championships.

It was just a family party in the stands, but on the center court was the fire of an intense rivalry, and with the players keyed to a high pitch the tennis generally was more ferocious than brilliant.

Perry was the outstanding star of the play. He never dropped a service game and inspired the veteran Hughes, who started lamely, but regained his best form in the late stages of the match, where it was needed most. On his two-day showing Perry should give Crawford a brilliant battle tomorrow.

Boss' Accuser Fails In Plea for New Trial

Chicago, July 14 (A.P.).—Judge Walter J. La Buy refused today to grant a new trial to Lillian Eloise Mitchell of her $50,000 damage suit against Harley Boss, Cleveland baseball player, in which she alleged assault.

A jury last week acquitted Boss and declined to award the Winston-Salem divorcee any damages. Miss Mitchell did not indicate today whether an appeal would be taken.

Phils Beat Reds, 6-0, In Battle of Cellar

Cincinnati, July 14 (A.P.).—Holding the Cincinnati Reds hitless until Adams scratched a single in the sixth, the Phillies won today's game, 6 to 0, and with it the seventh place prize of the National League "cellar series."

Four Cincinnati errors virtually gave Philadelphia as many runs. Flint Rhem started for the visitors, but was replaced while fussing about the condition of the pitching mound after walking the first man to face him.

Braves Down Pirates On Single in 10th, 4-3

Pittsburgh, July 14 (A.P.).—Rabbit Maranville's single in the tenth inning today drove in pinch-runner Gyselman with the counter that gave Boston a 4-to-3 triumph over Pittsburgh to even the four-game series.

The contest was a hurling duel between Larry French and Freddy Frankhouse, with errors causing the downfall of the Pirates' flinger.

Pittsburgh got a man on second in its half of the tenth, but Frankhouse fanned Paul Waner and Traynor flied out to end the game.

Cub Streak Nipped By Dodgers, 5 to 3

Brooklyn Bunches 6 Hits Off Tinning and Are Aided by Errors.

Chicago, July 4 (A.P.).—The Brooklyn Dodgers shattered the Cubs' 8-game winning streak and their own year-old string of defeats at Wrigley Field today by bunching their blows with Chicago errors to win the series final, 5 to 3.

Four of the Dodgers' five runs were unearned as the result of two miscues by Billy Jurges and one by Bill Herman. The Brooklyn batters bunched their six hits off Bud Tinning effectively with the errors.

Van Lingle Mungo pitched effectively for Brooklyn in the early innings, fanning Babe Herman and Frank Demaree with the bases loaded in the third, and Hollis Thurston did some good relief work after the Cubs got to Mungo for all their runs in the seventh.

Giants Trample Dean to Beat Cards, 12-7

Score 9 Runs Off Hurler and Boost Lead Over Cubs to 4 Games.

ST. LOUIS, July 14 (A.P.).—The New York Giants pounded Dizzy Dean off the slab today on one of the few occasions he has failed to go the route and defeated the Cardinals, 12 to 7, in the series final.

The victory, New York's third in four games here, enabled the Giants to increase their margin to four games over the second-place Chicago Cubs.

Dean, who returned to the hill with only two days' rest after beating the Giants Tuesday, yielded nine hits and as many runs before he left the scene in the fifth inning. Jim Mooney and Sylvester Johnson also were hit freely, the latter being touched for the last three Giant runs in the ninth.

Clark Gets Victory.

The Giants also used three flingers. Fred Fitzsimmons went out in the fourth, when the Cards took the lead at 5 to 4, but Southpaw William Watson Clark stopped the attack and was credited with his first victory since the Giants acquired him from Brooklyn. He failed to finish, giving way to Herman Bell, when the Cards cut loose again in the ninth.

Manager Bill Terry led the Giant attack with two doubles and a single that drove in three runs and let him score three. He socked his first two-bagger, with Joe Moore and Hughie Critz on base, in the first, and his second in the third frame, putting Critz in place to tally on Durocher's bad throw. He tallied on Mel Ott's hit.

Walter Miller Limits Washington to 3 Hits, All in Last 2⅓ Innings

That Miller Person Pitcher's 2d Victory in Series Gives Him New Lease With Hose.

Appling Is Star at Bat; Crowder Good, But Not Good Enough.

By Shirley L. Povich (Sports Editor of The Post).

THE White Sox beat the Nats yesterday, 4 to 0, which is beside the subject.

The topic of the day was Walter Miller, who mixed a powerful potion of slow curves and slower curves that completely dissolved the Nats, almost dissolved their league lead and, what is more, kept the 8,000 Ladies Day guests hushed under the spell of a pitching performance that fell only three hits short of a no-hit masterpiece.

And just to make matters unanimous for the day, the Yankees up in the Bronx were winning their seventh straight ball game to whittle the Nats' lead to a matter of .004 percentage points and cast this village deep in the gloom of pennant visions that are fast taking on the appearance of a mirage.

Hitless for Long Spell.

For 6 2-3 innings this Miller man with the very commonplace name was dealing 'em off his ancient left arm with such devastating effect that the uncommonplace feat of a no-man-reach-first game was being drawn closer into the realm of possibility with each rise and dip of an arm that had the comforts of ten years of foraging in the wiles and guile of the pitching art.

And then Goose Goslin made a

ARLINGTON PARK, Ill., July 14 (A.P.).—Today was a good day for the Whitney Stables at Arlington Park, Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney bringing in a long shot in the opening event and Mrs. Payne Whitney connecting in the Geneva Purse, one of the features of the program.

Sonny Workman gave Elk Lock, a 2-year-old daughter of Chicle—Wendy, a good ride in the opening event, a 5-furlong dash, to conquer Busy Spain, Jens Son and nine other youngsters by five lengths. Elk Lock paid the handsome price of $44.74 straight in the $2 mutuels. The time was 1:06.

In the Geneva Purse Silvio Coucci rode Mrs. Whitney's Miss Mouse to victory over Warren Wright's Some Pomp, the favorite, with Grey Glade third. Miss Mouse ran the 5 furlongs in the excellent time of 1:01 1-5, and rewarded her backers with $9.58 for each $2 straight ticket.

Knight's Gal won a surprise triumph in the Elmwood Purse, outfooting E. R. Bradley's Boilermaker and the favorite, Mr. Joe. She ran the mile in 1:38 4-5 and paid $10.28 to win.

Chinese Empress Again.

Latonia, July 14 (A.P.).—The first triple success of the current meeting was registered this afternoon when Max Hirsch's Chinese Empress, a daughter of Kai-Sang and Peerless, led home six other ranking 2-year-olds in the Clifton Purse, overnight feature.

Winner of her only two outings at Milldale, Chinese Empress was backed into stanch favoritism. At no stage of the 5½-furlong dash did she give her backers cause for concern, leading throughout to win by two lengths.

C. V. Whitney's Tendril, likewise a double winner previous to this race, was closest in attendance throughout and took the place from Gormley & Nutter's Monty M.

Chinese Empress stepped the distance in 1:07 and paid her backers $4.54 for each $2 mutuel ticket.

Cruz Star at Empire.

Empire City Race Track, New York, July 14 (A.P.).—The popular and upcoming little apprentice rider, Howard Cruz, from Washington, D. C., who was one of the victims in a spectacular spill yesterday, showed today that the fall did not retard his riding effectiveness. The Key West kicker, by virtue of hooting Mrs. A. J. Contento's Ha Ha to victory in the featured Roundtree Purse this afternoon, earned a double and brought joy to the form players who backed Ha Ha down to 6 to 5 favoritism. The B. B. Stable's Character was second by two lengths over G. M. Odom's Irene's Bob. The short 6-furlong trip was covered in 1:10 flat.

Jockey Frank Horn was suspended for five days by the stewards for unfair riding in the opening event.

Strange as It Seems

—By John Hix

TO pitch a one-hit shut-out with only 27 men facing the pitcher means glory for the moundsman; and to pitch full nine innings without striking out a batter is real weakness—even the worst brand of pitching generally results in one or two strikeouts in a game. Strange as it seems, Silas Johnson, of the Cincinnati Reds, did both these things during the same game against the Boston Braves on May 4. Except for a single by Berber in the second inning, Johnson was not hit during the entire game.

It was a case of a team's victory, rather than the pitcher's, for all the outs were made at first or in the field. Johnson not only failed to fan any opposing player, but neither did he walk any. Berger was tagged out when he attempted to steal second. Without his single the game would have been one of the very few perfect games in big league history—no hits, no runs, no man reaching first.

Laura Gregory, sightless typist, of Richmond, Va., accomplished a feat few sighted stenographers can boast of when she typed 119 business letters in a single day—all without a mistake. She is employed by the Virginia Electric & Power Co., as secretary to the superintendent of transportation. Miss Gregory thoroughly enjoys air travel and recently made a trip by air from New York to Los Angeles. Strange as it seems, she is able to judge with uncanny accuracy the altitude of the plane at any time.

Arlington Park, July 14.

Dear Al:

Mike and I went out to dinner tonight wearing smoked glasses. What a drubbing we took today! I didn't have a winner in eight tries and Mike was shut out in five chances. However, I was traveling in tough luck. Five of my first horses were second. Just missed a couple of box-car pay-offs. I penalized myself by staying an extra hour in the books tonight. Mike likes Bright Beauty, Mrs. Foster, Evening, Imelda, Ridgeview.

BILL.

FIRST RACE—WISE DAUGHTER doesn't appear to be the filly now that she was in Maryland last spring, but I believe she is still good enough to take care of these, even at the shift in weights. SUN TEMPEST and FULL TILT look like the other money propositions.

SECOND RACE—MISS TULSA and RUBIO are hard to separate. I like them in the order named. ESPINACA is the long-shot possibility. This one has been burning oil of late.

THIRD RACE—Pardon me if I go to ESKIMO in this. They have the veteran well placed and may get that price they have been waiting for. MORSUN to beat LERACK for the show. The last named will have Westrope up.

FOURTH RACE—INDIAN RUNNER, 122 pounds and all, goes for the Bennings interests. He is the class, but he may be only qualifying. SUN DOT and RUSH HOUR for the rest of it.

FIFTH RACE—VILLAGE VAMP is reported to have worked very keenly and she can certainly throw a mean hoof rounding that stretch turn when the goods are down. YONKEL is the one to beat. BEAVER for the show.

SIXTH RACE—OKAPI is a game little thing that don't know when to admit defeat. Totes a load of weight, but so does the rest of the field.

SARADA is at tops, as that last indicates, and will be the one to beat. MR. KHAYYAM for the show.

SEVENTH RACE—POLYDORUS has certainly shown enough to warrant a top selection in this. Looks like two in a row. LARRANAGA, despite the heaviest impost, is the chief threat. DYAK to complete the money picture.

EIGHTH RACE—ANNIMESSIC can't fool me. Best of this lot and belongs in front. TICKORY TOCK'S last don't go. ENGLEWOOD, the fast-closer, for the show.

McDiarmid, seeded third, eliminated Lefty Bryan, of Chattanooga, 5—7, 6—3, 6—4, 7—5, in their semi-finals match, and Grant, seeded first, beat Billy Reese, of Atlanta, seeded fourth, 7—5, 4—6, 6—3, 6—2.

$45,000 Race Draws 18 at Arlington

Mr. Khayyam, Gold Basis Are Quoted at 4 to 1 in Annual Classic.

ARLINGTON PARK, Ill., July 14 (A.P.).—A $45,000 race with no outstanding favorite will be decided at Arlington Park tomorrow.

It is the fifth running of the Arlington classic at a mile and a quarter and may decide the 3-year-old championship of the American turf for 1933.

The race attracted a field of eighteen 3-year-olds, embracing the best in the Nation. Most of them are stake winners, representing the class, stamina and speed of the division. Two horses stood out in the wagering, Mr. Khayyam, regarded as the most consistent 3-year-old of the year, and Gold Basis. Mr. Khayyam was triumphant in the American Derby, the Chesapeake Stakes and the Wood Memorial, while Gold Basis demonstrated his class by winning the Latonia Derby.

Quoted at 4 to 1.

They were quoted at 4 to 1. Ranging as second choices were Barn Swallow, the Brookmeade's entry of Okapi and Inlander at 6 to 1. From there on the prices range up to the 30 to 1 against Kerry Patch, winner of the Belmont Futurity last year.

The East completely overshadowed the West in the battle for the rich turf prize. There were twelve entries from the East and six from the West. In the list there were five doubtful starters, including Head Play, second in the Kentucky Derby and winner of the Preakness; Inlander, Silent Shot, Technique, and Clarify.

Head Play May Run.

The status of Head Play was in doubt tonight. Trainer Tommy Hayes was positive the horse would start, and, furthermore, would redeem himself by victory. After his final workout Wednesday, Head Play was limping when he left the track. Reports were that the limp was caused by a bruised foot. However, there were no signs of lameness today, but Trainer Hayes did not bring him out on the track for a speed test, declaring that Head Play had worked enough and was ready.

Gene Tunney, retired heavyweight champion of the world, will present the cup to the owner of the winning thoroughbred.

Washington and Philadelphia Canoeists to Churn Waters of Potomac Today

Titles at Stake in Division Regatta

Keen Competition Due; 21 Events Scheduled; Start at 1:30.

Race Over Straightaway Course Located Near Key Bridge.

THE ancient and honorable sport of canoe racing will be revived this afternoon on the Potomac River in the vicinity of Key Bridge. The occasion is the 1933 championship regatta of the Delaware-Chesapeake Division of the American Canoe Association. In conjunction with the championship races, trials for the national canoe championship races, scheduled at Chicago next month, also will be held.

The entry list is somewhat slimmer than those of former years, but the committee reassured the fans that competition will be as keen as ever. Four clubs will race: Cacawa Canoe Club, of Philadelphia, and Philadelphia Canoe Club, Washington Canoe Club, and Potomac Boat Club.

Cacawa paddlers are held in high esteem by local canoeists. The Quakers have a strong team comprised of Cimokowski, Krick, Holland and Haas entered in the four-man double blades race. Holland and Haas will team together in the double-blade tandem, with Haas paddling in the singles.

Washington Represented.

Washington Canoe Club is expected to bear the brunt of the burden in upholding the honor of the Potomac. Joe Johnson, Louis Schroff, Anderson Houton and Jack Schultze are entered in the four-man single and double blades. Herman Vollmer and Melvin Young, and Dick Achad and Howard Florence will compete in the junior tandem single blades.

Harry Knight, veteran and capable canoeist, will row with the four-man senior double blades crew, but Harry considers Everett Rodman the Washington Club's best bet to chalk up a few points.

Young Rodman sailed over the line a winner to capture the national, junior singles championship last year. Today he is entered in the single blades race and is solidly backed by veteran racers to emerge victorious.

Twenty-one events are scheduled, beginning at 1:30 o'clock. The paddling will be over a half-mile straightaway course, finishing off the Washington Canoe Club float. The junior one-man race will open the program. Senior tilting is the final number.

Public Parks Netmen Will Be Active Today

All six teams in the Public Parks Tennis League, which is nearing the end of its schedule, swing into action today.

The league-leading Monument team visits Henry Park for a match; Rock Creek, in second place, plays host to the last-place Potomac team, while Pierce Mill travels over to Montrose. Monument, Rock Creek and Montrose, the three leading teams, are separated in the standings by only one match. The standings:

	W.	L.
Monument	16	10
Rock Creek	16	11
Montrose	15	11
Henry	14	13
Pierce Mill	14	13
Potomac	5	22

Ruth General Guardian For Adopted Daughter

New York, July 14 (A.P.).—Surrogate James A. Delehanty today appointed George Herman "Babe" Ruth general guardian of 12-year-old Dorothy Ruth, daughter of his former wife, the late Helen M. Ruth.

The girl was legally adopted by the ballplayer and his present wife, Clara Mae Ruth, several years ago. The appointment was made so the girl may receive $32,000 in jewelry and guaranteed first mortgage certificates from her mother's estate.

Ruth was required to post a $32,000 bond with the court before collecting the legacy in behalf of the child.

Parker, Shields Win; Meet in Final Today

Spring Lake, N. J., July 14 (A.P.).—Frankie Parker, the 17-year-old Milwaukee boy, whose pet victim in his rapid rise to tennis fame has been the veteran George Lott, will meet another experienced star, Frank A. Shields, of New York, in the final tomorrow of the Spring Lake challenge trophy tournament.

Mixing his strokes in beautiful fashion, Parker, newly crowned national clay courts champion, defeated Herbert L. Bowman, of New York, in the semifinals in straight sets, 6—1, 6—3, 6—2, today, while Shields, who is rated fifth in the national rankings, blasted out Berkeley Bell, black-haired Texan, 6—3, 6—1, 12—10.

Joe Savoldi Winner.

New Haven, Conn., July 14 (A.P.).—Joe Savoldi, former Notre Dame football star and now a contender for the world heavyweight wrestling championship, tonight threw Al Mercier, of Canada, in straight falls, to win the feature match of a wrestling bout at Savin Rock Stadium.

The times were 20 minutes 32 seconds and 26 minutes 3 seconds. Savoldi weighed in at 200 and Mercier at 210.

Murphy and Buxby Reach Net Finals

Coughlin - Culley to Meet Hill-Fitch in Doubles at Brookline.

Brookline, Mass., July 14 (A.P.). Dick Murphy, of Utica, N. Y., a student at Hamilton College, rode roughshod over G. Frederick Roll, of Philadelphia, into the final round of the forty-first Longwood Bowl tennis tournament, where he will engage Martin Buxby, of Miami.

It was the fourth time in as many weeks that Murphy has qualified for a championship match. He played brilliantly while subduing Roll, member of the University of Pennsylvania net team, in straight sets, 6—1, 6—1, 6—2, but Buxby was forced to go overtime to conquer Joe Coughlin, of San Francisco and Stanford, 6—2, 6—1, 2—6, 6—2.

Coughlin, aided by Henry Culley, of Santa Barbara, Calif., made the doubles final by upsetting Murphy and Norcross Tilney, of New York, in slam-bang fashion, 9—7, 6—2, 6—2, and the other title bracket was awarded to Malcolm T. Hill, Newton, and Sam Fitch, Brookline, when they wore down the Tulane team of Eddie Sutter, New Orleans, and Kendal Cram, Nashville, Tenn., in a five-set battle, after spotting the Southern youths the first two. The scores were 7—9, 4—6, 6—1, 6—4, 6—4.

Muny Golf Lists Will Close Today

Entry lists for the Washington public parks links championship will close this afternoon. Players affiliated with the Rock Creek course should file entries with Harry Graham, at that course. Entries from East Potomac Park players will be accepted by Ed Burns.

This year marks the first time that this tournament has been played on both courses simultaneously. About 100 entries are expected from each course.

Hudkins Under Knife To Beautify His Nose

Los Angeles, July 14 (A.P.).—Ace Hudkins, the "Nebraska Wildcat," middleweight prizefighter, had his nose straightened and remodeled today.

Dr. W. E. Balsinger, who performed the operation, said Hudkins had had difficulty in breathing and also was looking toward possible work in motion pictures.

"It was an operation similar to those I performed on Jack Dempsey, Jack Kearns and others, in which a piece of cartilege was removed from back of one ear and grafted on the nose to build it up," Dr. Balsinger said.

Miller's Clout Beats Indians for A's, 3-2

Home Run Made With 2 on; Oliver, Rookie, Has Best of Wes Ferrell.

PHILADELPHIA, July 14 (A.P.). Bing Miller's home run with two on base in the eighth inning gave the Athletics a 3-to-2 victory over the Cleveland Indians today. The wallop also gave the Mackmen the series here, three games to one.

The contest was a hurling duel between Wes Ferrell and Dick Oliver, the Athletics' graduate from the sandlots. Oliver forced a run over the plate in the third inning and repeated in the sixth. Ferrell had the Macks blanked until the eighth. Then, with two out, he Walked Foxx and was hit for a single by Coleman. Miller followed with his first home run of the season.

Miller Limits Washington to 3 Hits

Pitches Perfect Game for 6 2-3 Innings as Sox Triumph, 4-0.

when the economy ax fell and who was signed by the Sox this spring when he walked into their training camp and asked for a job like the veriest and rawest rookie.

They made ten hits off Crowder and Luke Appling was mixed up in every run the Sox scored. The shortstop, who has been the hitting fool of the present series, which has seen the Sox win 3 of 4 games, made two doubles and two singles yesterday, scored two runs, placed the third in scoring position and drove in the fourth.

Appling and Dykes put together a pair of doubles for the first run in the fourth inning, and Appling sandwiched a double between singles by Simmons and Hayes that accounted for two runs in the sixth. His single in the eighth scored Kress, who had doubled, and the Sox had their 4-to-0 lead, which was good for the ball game.

As intimated above, no Nat foot trod safely on first base for 6 2-3 innings. Goslin and Schulte were stranded by Kuhel in the seventh, and Myer and Goslin perished on base in the ninth. Miller was as unruffled as if he were mummified.

Play With Cutler Off, Stark Leads at Chess

Chicago, July 14 (A.P.).—Nathan Beckhardt, of the College of the City of New York; Lieut. John D. Matheson, of West Point; Vladimir Gregorieff, of the University of Chicago, and Robert Wilson, of Hillside College, won the sixth round of the World's Fair intercollegiate chess tournament today.

Martin C. Stark, of Washington, D. C., representing Harvard, whose game with Harold D. Cutler, of New York University, was adjourned, was still in the lead with a score of 5-0. Beckhardt, 5-1, moved into second place, followed by Lieut. Matheson, Gregorieff and Willis E. Lamb, jr., of California.

Bears Sign Manders.

Chicago, July 14 (A.P.).—Jack Manders, big, hard-hitting University of Minnesota fullback, today was signed by the Chicago Bears of the National Football League. He ranked as one of the best backs in the Western Conference for the last two seasons. He will understudy another great Minnesota star, Bronko Nagurski.

Mrs. Hard Wins Cup, Beating Jane Brooks

Eastern Point, Conn., July 14 (A.P.).—Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, of Philadelphia, plucked a pair of useful birdies out of an erratic final round today to defeat Jane Brooks, of Sparkhill, N. Y., 4 and 3, and gain permanent title to the Griswold Cup, which she promptly returned to the donors for further competition.

In a tense battle following strenuous semifinal matches for both finalists, Mrs. Hurd came through in the pinches to prove her mastery over the younger woman and win the Shenecossett Invitation championship for the third time in seven years.

Gharrity Named Cleveland Coach

Cleveland, July 14 (A.P.).—Manager Walter Johnson announced today that two Indian coaches will be dropped after today—Bib Falk, former manager of the Toledo Mudhens, and Earl Wolgamot.

Eddie Gharrity, who caught Johnson when he was the Big Train of the Nationals and who later assisted Johnson as Washington manager, will replace Falk and Wolgamot.

Johnson said he wanted it distinctly understood he found no fault with the work of either of the coaches, but that he felt the interests of the club would best be served while he is manager by bringing in a man long associated with him in previous fields.

Brown to Fight Bob Tow on Monday

Hebrew Heavyweight Is Confident He Regards Bout as Warm-up.

A YEAR'S absence from the ring may or may not have affected Natie Brown's boxing, but certainly not his confidence. The big, flat-nosed Jewish boy expects to take Bob Tow Monday night at Twin City Arena like a certain well-known gent of Civil War vintage took a small Southern city. The pair tangle in a six-round semifinal to the Sarron-Burl scramble.

Brown has trained with Bob Godwin and Reds Barry at Herald Harbor for the fight. Physically he is 100 per cent o. k., menally, 200 per cent. He will have no abibis should he lose. Winning will afford him no particular thrill, he's so cocksure he's going to.

Just for Warm-Up.

Accustomed to doing his stuff in the main bouts,

Radio Dial Flashes

By Robert D. Heinl.

EIGHT of the famous "Symphonies Under the Stars" in the Hollywood Bowl in California, outstanding summer symphonic series, will be broadcast on successive Saturdays, beginning tonight.

Five well-known conductors will be heard in the series and in addition, Father Finn, famous director of the Paulist Choir, will conduct the orchestra and a chorus of 300 voices in Verdi's "Requiem" in one of the broadcasts. Musicians chosen from the best symphony organizations on the West Coast have been brought together to form the orchestra, which will be heard weekly throughout the country over WRC at 11:15 p. m.

Nicolas Slonimsky, conductor of the Chamber Orchestra of Boston and the Pierian Sodality of Harvard, will have the baton in the July 15 concert, and Father Finn's chorus will be heard with the orchestra on July 22. The next two concerts will be directed by Sir Hamilton Harty, noted British musician and composer.

Other starlight broadcasts on Saturdays up to and including September 2 will be conducted by Pietro Cimini, Italian composer; Arthur Shepherd, prominent Cleveland musician and critic, and Bernardino Molinari, who has been guest conductor of many of the country's leading symphony orchestras and who has appeared at the Hollywood Bowl in previous summer concerts.

"Symphonies Under the Stars" are played to more than 20,000 people each Saturday in the stadium in the California foothills and will reach additional vast audiences over a coast-to-coast network. The world's finest symphonic music will be played by the large orchestra, and several instrumental novelties are scheduled for hearings.

STARS of radio and the stage, in addition to members of the Newport social colony, will participate in the entertainment part of Mrs. William H. Vanderbilt's red and white ball, held tonight at Oakland Farms, the Vanderbilt estate near Newport, R. I. Dance music and entertainment features of the charity ball will be broadcast over WJSV at 10:30 to 11 p. m.

Among the members of the Newport social colony who will take part in the entertainment are Mrs. Gustave J. S. White, soprano, and the team of Mrs. Bradford J. Norman and Mrs. Frank Monroe, pianists. Lieut. Gov. Robert E. Quinn, of Rhode Island, will speak.

About 2,000 are expected to attend the ball, held for the benefit of the Boy Scouts of Newport County in the riding ring at Oakland Farms, the largest private indoor arena of its kind in the country.

The Ukrainian Choir of 20 mixed voices will be heard in the first of a series of recitals of native Ukrainian music over WJSV at 7:15 o'clock tonight, under the direction of Alexander Koshetz, former Ukrainian minister of education, and cappelmeister of the Kiev Opera House and the National Theater.

The opening broadcast will include two folk songs arranged by Koshetz himself, "The Happy Plowman" and "Cossacks' March," a seventeenth century folk melody. Other songs by the choir will be "Mohyla" and "The High Mountains," a hymn to the vast Carpathians and their rugged inhabitants.

"ONE of these nights before long you are going to hear the President's voice on the radio if the industry doesn't show more speed in getting recovery codes together," writes George Durno in the National Whirligig, who continues:

"Industrial Administrator Johnson has suggested a two-fisted radio appeal for action several times in the past few days. Mr. Roosevelt has been reluctant to undertake it immediately. But at the first concrete sign of stalling he stands ready to jump in and speak his piece.

"Both the President and Johnson realize that industry can't be expected to get together with itself and labor overnight and compose differences of years' standing. They also realize a great number of industries haven't even started discussing codes."

The fifth running of the Classic Stakes at Arlington Park will be described today from the time the bangtails leave the barrier until they thunder across the finish line. (WMAL, 5 p. m.).

The country's outstanding 3-year-olds will compete over the mile and a quarter course for the classic $35,000 purse, which was won in previous runnings by such racing stars as Gallant Fox and Blue Larkspur.

Heavy snowfall on Mount Hood, 11,000-foot peak in Oregon, has made all trails impassable and has caused the postponement of the broadcast of the American Legion Mount Hood Climb, originally scheduled for next week, to Saturday, August 5.

The same program that was previously announced will be carried out in the August 5 broadcast. President Roosevelt will listen in at the White House to reports from the Governors of Oregon, Washington and Idaho on the progress of reforestation work and on the development of the Columbia River basin project.

CARRYING the administration's plea for repeal of the eighteenth amendment into territory claimed by the drys as one of their strongholds, Postmaster General James A. Farley will address a large outdoor mass meeting at Memphis, Tenn., tonight (WRC and WJSV, 10 o'clock.

Tennessee has long been noted for its fundamentalism in political thought and is one of the States which the antirepeal forces expect to keep in their column when the vote is taken there next Thursday. Farley's topic will be "Covenant With the People."

It is believed that the Postmaster General's attendance at the Memphis mass meeting may mark the turning point in the fight for the repeal of the prohibition amendment, not only in the South, but throughout the country. Alabama will register its opinion on the repeal question on Tuesday.

Beethoven's Symphony No. 1 in C major will be the highlight of the broadcast by musicians of the Philadelphia Orchestra tonight at 7:30 over WJSV. Under the first guest conductor of the season, Erno Rapee, the program will be transmitted direct from the outdoor auditorium of Robin Hood Dell in Philadelphia's historic Fairmount Park.

The broadcast opens with Mozart's overture to "The Marriage of Figaro;" other numbers in addition to the Beethoven symphony will be Komzak's "Badner Mad'ln" and Liszt's powerful symphonic poem, "Les Preludes."

THE final recital in the present series by Mischa Levitzki, world-famous pianist, over WRC will be given at 7 o'clock this evening. Levitzky has played many of the best known compositions of the masters for his audience during the eight previous concerts, and for his farewell appearance of the season he has chosen an all-Schubert program, including the "Marche Militaire," the Impromptu in B Flat Major, "The Erl King," "Hark, Hark, the Lark," and three short Moment Musicals.

The concert of tonight will be broadcast in its entirety, also over WMAL, from 7:30 to 9:15 p. m. Willem Van Hoogstraten will conduct both concerts.

Tonight's program will open with the overture to Weber's "Der Freischutz," followed by Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony." After the intermission the "Peer Gynt" Suite No. 1, of Grieg, will be played, and the program will close with "Les Preludes," the symphonic poem by Liszt.

Milton J. Cross, veteran announcer of symphonic and operatic programs, is again officiating this year for the radio audience at Lewisohn Stadium. To Cross, the Stadium Concerts are like a homecoming, since he officiated at the stadium for the first season that the summer series was broadcast.

K-7, in "Drums of Africa" (WRC 8:30 p. m.), will tell how the enemy learned certain governmental secrets during the Great War. The whole series of plays concerns military operations in Africa.

FREDERICK CLEMSON HOWE, who represents consumers in the administration of the Agricultural Adjustment Act, will discuss that question and its application to bread, dairy products and other foods in the National Grange program of the National Farm and Home Hour today at 12:30 p. m. over WMAL.

Tragic news, overshadowing recovery plans and the London Economic Conference, quivered over the transatlantic cables the other day. It seems that the merry Boswell sisters were cavorting gayly about London last week, enjoying their vacation, when Connie Boswell caught a glimpse of herself in a mirror, thought her face was a bit too plump and decided to diet. Two days later she was plumper than ever—and the next day a dignified London M. D. informed her gravely that she had the mumps. And she has.

THERE was consternation in the studios one afternoon recently. The Sisters of the Skillet had not arrived for their broadcast. Eddie Dunham, the production man, and Alan Kent, the announcer, found themselves faced with a vacant studio and a big open space on the network with no program.

"The show must go on," they agreed. So they gave a station announcement and went to work. Dunham, a veteran organist, took charge of the studio organ while Kent assembled his best puns and gags. They kept going for the required fifteen minutes.

Thus far, however, they are still waiting for some sponsor to offer them a million-dollar contract.

Allyn Joslyn, star of radio dramas, forgot his dignity on an elevator recently. He burst into song in the car, not noticing another passenger. The woman behind him was seized by uncontrollable laughter. It was Lily Pons. Mr. Joslyn now concentrates on dramatics.

Third of Cotton To Be Plowed Under Ground

Reduction Plan Provides 9,000,000-Acre Crop Is to Be Scrapped.

(Associated Press.)

Plows on around 700,000 farms, in sixteen States, next week will begin to turn back into the ground more than 9,000,000 acres of growing cotton at a result of the proclamation yesterday by Secretary Wallace of adoption of the cotton acreage reduction program.

From what appeared to be a potential crop of about 13,000,000 bales, Mr. Wallace estimated there would be subtracted by the administration's program around 3,500,000 bales.

The Agriculture Secretary said he would accept most of the contract offers signed by growers to curtail their crop from 25 to 50 per cent in the return for cash payments and options on 2,000,000 bales of Government-held cotton.

At the same time he announced approval by President Roosevelt of a tax of 4.2 cents a pound on all processing of the staple beginning August 1. He estimated the yield of the levy at from $115,000,000 to $120,000,000, which will be used to finance the payments to farmers. No tax will be collected on the cotton exported—normally about one-half of the American crop.

Compensatory Import Tax.

At the same time a compensatory import tax equal to the processing tax will go into effect to put importations on the same basis as the domestic product. Taxes will be levied also on the processing of competing products, including rayon and silk, and probably wool, linen and other materials, to prevent the cotton tax from providing a special handicap to its sale.

Hearings to determine the extent of the tax on products competing with cotton will be held in a few days. The tax on these, as will the tax on cotton, would be paid by the processors who handle them in their first stage of development from raw materials to finished goods.

George N. Peek, chief administrator of the act, said that the tax should not greatly, if at all, increase present prices of cotton goods to consumers. He said that the prices of cotton goods have increased much faster in recent months than the prices of raw cotton and attributed this to "anticipation" by spinners and dealers of the proclamation of the tax.

Tax on Cotton Goods.

At the same time that the tax on cotton becomes effective, a tax on cotton goods held by manufacturing establishments and wholesalers will go into effect, while retail dealers have 30 days in which to dispose of stocks of cotton goods.

In order to assess these, Mr. Wallace fixed the conversion factor on finished products at 105.2 per cent of the tax on raw cotton, or 4.4184 cents per pound for finished or partly finished materials. This means that 100 pounds of cotton cloth will be assessed a total tax of $4.4184.

Meanwhile the Census Bureau reported that consumption of cotton by mills during June set a new record—696,472 bales being spun into cloth and thread by 25,540,504 spindles. This was more than twice the consumption of mills during June last year. It was the highest consumption in any month since records have been kept, beginning in September, 1912.

$100,000,000 Share Registrations In

60 Applications Are Sent to Bane for Approval Within Week.

More than 60 registrations of nearly $100,000,000 in new security issues have been received by the Federal Trade Commission.

Just a week ago yesterday, the first financial statements were received and filed for the 20-day period required before the registration becomes effective. Most of the registrations were by investment trusts.

Baldwin B. Bane, who has charge of the securities work, explained that since investment shares are being sold continually, it was only natural such trusts should be anxious to register so that there may be no stop in sales from failure to have their statements on file for the required 20 days.

Tropical Disturbance's Course Being Watched

(Associated Press.)

Weather Bureau observers yesterday were watching the second tropical disturbance of this year which originated in storm-breeding Southern seas. Both appeared unusually early. Most of the storms which sometimes attain hurricane force sweep northward in the months of August and September.

At the bureau it was emphasized that the current disturbance was of slight intensity and had caused no concern. Another 12 or 24 hours, it was said, would be required to chart even its courseswith accuracy, although it appeared to be moving west-northwestward and was near St. Kitts, small West Indies island, southeast of Puerto Rico.

Woman Lawyer Near Federal Appointment

(Associated Press.)

Members of the Georgia congressional delegation said yesterday there were strong indications that Stella Aiken, Savannah lawyer, would be named a special assistant attorney general within the next few days. The recommendation for her appointment in the Department of Justice has been pending for several months.

The league's commission for the Gran Chaco will be named early next week, and is expected to proceed to the scene of the dispute during August.

Hotels Boom Nearly to Peak Of War Period

Parleys on Government Policies Bring Many Leaders Here.

Prosperity is believed to be stalking the lobbies of Washington hotels.

The city's second business appears to be on the verge of a boom such as it has not known since the World War.

From every section of the Nation business men are registering at the Capital's hotels while they learn what President Roosevelt's Industrial Recovery Administration expects them to do. With them are coming trade union heads, to see that "industrial recovery" means more work at higher wages and shorter hours for labor.

Many Leaders Meet.

Cotton textile manufacturers have come, and departed with a code. Bituminous coal operators from 14 States were in the city a week before they were able to work out an agreement on working conditions and pay for miners and standards of competition for themselves.

Iron, steel, leather, shoe and fishing tackle manufacturers, have met with the Government's business managers, have conferred, held hearings, talked, wondered, and have slept and eaten in Washington hotels.

Although an appreciable portion of the tourist trade, normally a principal means of support during the summer months, has been deflected to Chicago and the World's Fair, many Washington hotels reported a trade gain from 25 to 50 per cent in June and July over last year.

Further Gains Seen.

Hotel managers believe this is only a beginning. They see all branches of industry from the biggest to the smallest sending representatives to Washington for instructions from the Government.

If they are right, if business returns, for example, to the 1929 level—and this is not considered improbable—Washington hotel managers will pay out more than $4,000,000 to more than 5,000 employes, their cash registers will ring to the tune of $17,620,000 a year, 13,000 rooms should be occupied daily and 8,500 should eat in their dining rooms.

3.2 Dealers Saved By Board Leniency

Last Licenses Are Issued After 3-Day Grace Period Expires.

Beer dealers were accorded unusual leniency in the matter of tax payments this week, despite previous threats to revoke licenses, it developed yesterday.

Lieut. Ira Keck, personal aid to Maj. Gen. Herbret B. Crosby, now on leave until relieved, made a personal call on the tardy beer dealers, it was learned, and brought them into the fold, although three days late. The last tardy dealer paid the taxes, which were due the first ten days of the month, yesterday morning.

The District Commissioners had threatened to revoke the license of any beer dealer who had failed to pay back taxes by the time the board met yesterday.

Major, Well Dog, Welcomed Home

Operation on White House Pet Has Cured Him of Biting Proclivities.

"Major," the Roosevelts' German shepherd dog, resumed his residence at the White House yesterday, after an absence of 10 days, during which time he has been the inmate of a dog hospital.

Doctors say his operation for cysts is successful in every way, and that his disposition has improved so much that he should never repeat his recent act of biting the hand of Senator Hattie Caraway. The troublesome affliction was blamed by the medical men for Major's misbehavior.

Today he is eating more, feeling better and acting frinedly, according to a bulletin from Dr. E. A. Buckingham's hospital.

Idaho Foresters Claim Advantages

Boxing Led by West Point Captain Figures in Camp Sports.

Reforestration workers in one Idaho camp will have advantages not given to all workers, it appears from the weekly reports submitted by camp commanders.

The captain of West Point's boxing team in 1932, is leading boxing which figures prominently in the athletic activities at this camp, the report says. There also is baseball, but under difficulties. A note says "one bat, one ball, and two mitts are available."

Idaho workers are fortunate in another way, for most camps have hot water bathing available. Nearly every camp reports "swimming in hot springs," or "hot springs a few miles away," or "baths in hot springs available at nearest town."

Foresters Go to Work Camps.

Two companies of veterans, recruited into the reforestation army after the bonus march on Washington this spring, were moved from their conditioning camp at Fort Humphreys to work camps near Clifton Forge, Va., last night.

Bars on Railway Coaches and Leg Irons Restrain Convicts

Sixty-two of the rebellious prisoners during the recent disturbances at Lorton were ushered aboard this railway prison car and sent to the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta yesterday. They were shackled in pairs by leg irons and shouted their opinions of the food which had been served to them at Lorton. Lower—Waiting on the siding for the express to reach them on the main line, guards, consisting of local police, railway detectives and prison guards, get some air before the long journey.

62 Lorton Men Shipped by Rail To Penitentiary

Steel Prison Car Carries Trouble Ringleaders to Atlanta.

The grim walls of Atlanta Federal Penitentiary today will receive 62 erstwhile Lorton Reformatory prisoners, banished from the District's model penal institution as an outgrowth of the near insurrection last week.

Shackled in pairs, the three-score irrepressibles were led from their solitary confinement quarters at Lorton yesterday to a steel prison car, hauled upon the prison spur line by a puffing donkey engine.

There were 30 white men, 31 colored men and one Chinese in the denim-clad file. All are accused of being ringleaders in last week's trouble.

Strangely enough, the men did not appear angry at the prospect of the rigors ahead at the Federal prison. Good-natured taunts were hurled at their guards, but the men seemed almost buoyant in their attitude.

Chorus of Farewells.

Down on the main line to the South, the steel car was switched on a fast through train. As the train pulled away, the prisoners gave a chorus of boisterous farewells to prison guards gathered along the tracks.

A deputy marshal, standing along the rails, came in for a salute from all of the prisoners clustered on the right-hand side of the prison car. His name was "Gus" and he was showered with good-natured epithets and farewells.

Two prison guards, six Washington policemen and five railroad detectives formed the escort of the Lorton castouts. Six other Washington policemen remained at the reformatory to keep an eye on the remaining 46 recalcitrants. This group will shortly be sent to the new Federal prison at Lewisburg, Pa.

Situation "Well in Hand."

A happy man was one of the policemen on the prison car. He is Private E. C. Moore, crack pistol shot of the police force, and his home is not far from Atlanta. When he has seen the last of the Lorton prisoners behind the walls in the Southern prison, he's going to see the folks "down home" for two weeks.

Capt. M. M. Bernard, superintendent of penal institutions, last night pronounced the Lorton situation well in hand. Pending his planned reorganization of things at the model prison, however, District officials said they would defer appointment of a successor to A. C. Tawse, resigned Lorton head.

A number of names familiar in police circles were borne by the men speeding along the rails to Atlanta last night. There was Bernie Fegen, former Washington policeman, convicted of a hotel holdup; Albert E. Cash, a principal in the House office building pay roll holdup and shooting; Frank Mahoney, convicted of being the coslayer of Louis Bush, Washington bus magnate, and a dozen others who participated in notable local crimes.

Seal Checks Security List Of Milk Body

Finds Submitted Record Corresponds With Securities.

The list of securities held by the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association was checked yesterday by Assistant Corporation Counsel Elwood H. Seal.

Seal, who made a trip to Richmond and Orange for that purpose, said the association's list as submitted to him was identical with securities in Virginia banks.

Yesterday both District Health Officer Dr. William C. Fowler and representatives of the milk producers' association denied inferences that the rating of a dairyman depended on whether he is a member of the association.

The charge was contained in statements of Joseph Fleichman, a dairy farmer. Fowler said that according to Health Department records Fleichman had never lost his permit to ship milk into the District through suspension or revocation.

Fowler declared that there are about 150 milk shippers whose product comes into the District and who hold permits and are not members of the association. He said that it makes no difference to the department whether a shipper belongs to the association or not.

Strangling of Infant Is Probed by Police

Detectives of the homocide squad yesterday started an investigation into the death of a 2-year-old male infant whose garroted body was found in a sack in the woods near Fifth street and Florida avenue northeast Thursday night.

Wrong Man

Witness Narrowly Escapes Being Held as One of Accused Trio.

Mere chance saved James Rooney, 39, 1018 Eighteenth street northwest, from being held under $5,000 bond yesterday, charged with violation of the Mann act in transporting two young women here from Pennsylvania for immoral purposes, when his actual status was that of a witness in a case against three other men.

Rooney was arrested Thursday with Louis Rolando, 30, and Arthur Piazzi, 32, of the same address, and booked for investigation in connection with alleged brutal treatment of two girls. One of the girls, Anna Harris, 20, also taken in custody, accused Piazzi and Rolando of forcing them to walk the streets after bringing them here from Sunbury, Pa.

The three men were brought to the office of United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage for arraignment yesterday by a corps of United States marshals. Mr. Turnage arraigned Rolando first and held him under the $5,000 bond, pending preliminary hearing Thursday.

When Piazzi and Rooney were arraigned the commissioner asked permission of the attorneys to waive reading the papers, which was granted, and the two men were held by the commissioner on the same bond and charge.

In the meantime a reporter realized that the name Rooney did not appear on any of the papers in the case. The third warrant was issued for Mike Borrelli, who had been accused by Miss Harris along with Piazzi and Rolando, but who had not been apprehended.

"Is your name Borrelli," Turnage asked Rooney, when the matter was brought to his attention.

Rooney, his face flushed scarlet, leaped from his chair and shouted: "Hell no! My name's Rooney. I don't know any Borrelli."

After hurried calls to the District attorney's office it was disclosed that Rooney, who is a roomer in the house where the raid took place, was not charged with any criminal offense, being wanted only as a witness in the case.

He was immediately released with a subpena to appear at the hearing Thursday.

Piazzi was later released under a reduced bond of $3,000. Rolando is being held at District Jail, unable to make the $5,000 bond.

The men were arrested by Metropolitan Police after a tip from agents of the Department of Justice. They are suspected of being members of a Nation-wide white slave ring.

Helen Lavone, 22, the other girl named by Miss Harris as having been her companion, is being returned from Pennsylvania to testify against the men.

Tree Photo Exhibition Opens at New Museum

A collection of nature studies with the camera—160 amateur and professional photographs of the trees of California—has just been placed on exhibit in the foyer, Tenth street entrance, of the New National Museum.

These photographs were entered in a competition held under the joint auspices of the Save the Redwoods League and the California conservation committee of the Garden Club of America, and are now on a traveling exhibit throughout the United States. They will remain at the National Museum for the rest of the month.

Gas Company Owner Probe Will Continue

Roberts Insists He See Incorporation and Director Papers.

The Chase National Bank interests yesterday filed a dozen affidavits with the Public Utilities Commission and in the District Supreme Court to explain that there have been no transfer of shares of beneficial interest in the Washington & Suburban Companies, owners of the Washington Gas Light Co., since the consent decree was filed last December.

William A. Roberts, special assistant counsel, to whom the affidavits were referred, stated that while this information apparently is correct, he intends to insist upon seeing copies of the incorporation papers of the Chase Corporation, which has succeeded the Chase Securities Corporation, and a list of its directors.

The information contained in the affidavits was sent in reply to a demand by the commission that an explanation be given as to the effect of the separation of the Chase National Bank and the Chase Securities Corporation on the local gas ownership set-up. It was compiled by the New York law firm of Sullivan & Cromwell.

Affidavits were signed by Leslie W. Snow, second vice president of the Chase National Bank; Henry Hargreaves, secretary of the Chase Corporation, and Walter W. Downing, secretary, and Henry J. Fitzell, treasurer, of the Chase Harris Forbes Corporation.

The statements revealed that the Chase Harris Forbes companies had been dissolved and that the Public Utility Holding Corporation shares had been sold to the public. The sale, according to Mr. Roberts, removes the last trace of any connection between the local gas companies and the Central Public Service Corporation, whose management largely brought on the commission's inquiry more than two years ago.

Former Russian Envoy Gets Things Stored Here

The mystery which surrounded the removing of boxes and furniture from the old Russian Embassy yesterday was solved last night when a Government official informed The Post that Serge Ughet, financial attache under the czaristic regime, was removing personal belongings which have been stored in the building since the overthrow of the government.

During the day several truck loads of boxes were moved from the building while curious passers-by watched and plied reticent workmen with questions. The questions went unanswered, however, and the passers-by went away much more curious.

Legion May Play Host to President

Roosevelt Unable to Say Which Convention Day He Will Attend.

President Roosevelt intends to attend the American Legion national convention at Chicago, October 2 to 5, it was announced yesterday by Louis Johnson, national commander, following an interview with the Chief Executive at the White House.

On which of the three days of the convention the President intends to make his appearance, Johnson was unable to say. Mr. Roosevelt, however, assured the legion head that he will attend the convention if it will be at all possible for him to do so.

Johnson stopped in Washington to see the President en route to his home in Clarksburg, W. Va., from a State convention at Meridian, Tenn.

U. S. Policies Of Imperialism Seen Discredit

Type of Government Not Shited for Empire, Conference Told.

"America has flopped in her role as 'international Santa Claus' because her system of government is unsuited to the building and ruling of a colonial empire," said Prof. Leland H. Jenks, of Wellesley College, speaking before the conference of Hispanic American Affairs of the George Washington University School of Government yesterday.

The United States has "failed to carry on imperialistic responsibilities, either with credit or advantage to itself or benefit to others," said Prof. Jenks, analyzing results of American intervention in Santo Domingo, Puerto Rico, Haiti and Cuba.

American colonial administrators have ignored the necessity for development of local political leadership, he declared. Their attitude has been rather to make our neighbors behave and to develop their resources for them if they fail to do so themselves.

One country after another has been excited with the hope that it had found in the United States a saviour, only to turn in wrath and bitterness when its expectations have been unfulfilled. Dr. Jenks attributed this situation to the "incorrigible tendency of American representatives abroad to use generous phrases in utterances for popular consumption."

The situation has been changed, however, by economic conditions at home, Prof. Jenks concluded.

"The time has gone when Americans will burst with eagerness to tell their neighbors what to do with themselves. We are occupied, and will be for some time to come, with programs and plans for reorganization of our national life.

"The presidential type of government set up in Cuba under American supervision has worked badly," Dr. Jenks said. "It has lead to virtual dictatorship. The Congress was either ignored or bribed to complicity, or has proven incapable of promoting legislative action necessary for political and social development."

Charles A. Jones Sworn in to Pass on D. C. Applications.

The man who is to have charge of loans to Washington home owners—Charles A. Jones—was sworn into office yesterday afternoon by James O. Mann, assistant secretary of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

Mr. Jones said that he felt like the man who was all dressed up and had no place to go. He doesn't know where his office is going to be located and he isn't sure just how the machinery of his department is going to work. He is awaiting orders from the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

"I do know," he said, "that hundreds of people are trying to get in touch with me. The telephone at my desk has been ringing so much that I believe I'll have to take a couple of days off to rest."

Will Act on Applications.

As District of Columbia manager for the Home Owners Loan Corporation, Mr. Jones will act on applications from distressed home owners for refinancing. He will be assisted by a staff of appraisers, counsel, clerks and others.

Final approval of loans will be given by the Home Owners Loan Corporation. Loans will be made in the form of bonds, plus a small amount of cash, up to 80 per cent of the value of the property. Home owners must be in need of emergency relief.

Residents not in danger of foreclosure are advised not to make applications.

Mr. Jones was born in Prince William County, Va. He came to Washington at an early age, graduated from Business High School and studied law at George Washington University.

Had Own Business.

He was assistant sales manager of Thomas J. Fisher Co. from 1911 until 1918, when he entered the Army. He served with the rank of captain in the military guard section, Ordnance Department.

After the war, he returned to the Fisher Co. for a brief period, and then joined the firm of Shannon & Luchs as sales manager. He was vice president and general manager of the firm from 1924 until 1932, when he resigned to conduct an independent real estate business. He continued to maintain an office at the Shannon & Luchs firm.

Other Managers Named.

Five other managers in States were announced yesterday. They are Monroe Butler, California; Vincent Dalley, New York; E. Kirk McKinney, Indiana; Zeke H. Austin, Minnesota, and J. P. McQuillan, Wisconsin. Headquarters of these managers are yet to be designated.

Tax Valuation For Personal Property Rises

33 Per Cent Increase Is Reported for Early Returns.

A remarkable increase in valuation of personal prpoerty this year as compared with last year was reported yesterday by the District tax assessor's office on the basis of returns filed to date, constituting less than 10 per cent of the total anticipated.

Despite the drop in the tangible tax rate from $1.70 to $1.50, the tax on 6,250 returns amounts to $63,673 as compared to the $48,588 tax paid by 6,250 during the first 14 days of July, 1932, Charles A. Russell, deputy assessor, revealed. This represents an increase of about 33 1-3 per cent.

Intangible property tax jumped about 50 per cent or to $36,663 from $38,624 on the respective returns.

While a total of 8,250 returns have been filed, 2,000 will pay nothing, Mr. Russell said. There are, moreover, 37,000 more returns due before the end of the month.

A statement by the tax assessor said that mandamus proceedings will be started, as was done last year, in the cases of persons who fail to file returns this month.

Beginning today the tax assessor's office at Room 103, District Building, will remain open from 8:30 a. m. to 5 p. m. instead of the customary hours. Notary oaths are administered free.

"Break" Promised To Delinquents

Records to Be Destroyed When Offender Gets 17 Years Old.

Records describing the misdoing of delinquent youths will be destroyed in the future when the boy or girl reaches the age of 17, Judge Kathryn Sellers, of Juvenile Court, announced yesterday.

This action, the jurist explained, was to "give the kids a break" and to help them start anew. Likewise, all illegitimacy cases, where the child has been supported by law up to the age of 14, the records will be demolished.

Carried in the annual report of the Juvenile Court to President Roosevelt was the information that delinquency in the District declined during the fiscal year 1932-33, as compared with records of the preceding twelve months.

Roosevelts Thrive On Economy Menu

Members of Family Gain Weight Under Recipes of First Lady.

The White House family thrives on economy menus for the President and the members of his family have gained weight since Mrs. Roosevelt included the Cornell economy menus, many of them averaging under 10 cents per person a meal, in the White House schedule. Of course, the White House family also has been served delectable dishes made after the recipes used by the people who have made history in this country, beginning with the early days up to a more recent period.

While the President is overweight and must train down, Mrs. Roosevelt is still very lithe and slender. But that she has gained some pounds is noticeable in her face and arms and shoulders.

Mrs. Anna Dall, who was almost thin when she came to the White House with her parents, now looks more rounded out although, like her mother, she retains her litheness.

Airline Announces Speedier Service

Washington and Cleveland Travel Facilitated by Change.

An additional round trip daily between Washington and Cleveland, via Pittsburgh and Akron in faster planes, will be inaugurated Sunday by Pennsylvania Airlines.

Leaving Washington at 3:20 p. m. daily, the air traveler will be able to have lunch the following day on the Pacific Coast. Direct connections with Pennsylvania's planes are made at Cleveland with United Airlines, flying fast planes to the Coast through Chicago.

Permission from the Postoffice Department for the change in schedule was obtained by the airline yesterday. The faster planes are Ford trimotors carrying 12 passengers.

Rare Specimens Join Zoo Family

New African Snakes Must Have Eggs for Dinner and Nothing Else.

A rare array of snakes, toads and pigs were added to Dr. William M. Mann's representative collection of animals at the Zoo yesterday. The newcomers, housed at the reptile house, include several three-leaf toads, a number of egg-eating snakes and a highly prized specimen of white-lipped peccaries.

The additions arrived at the Zoo fresh from their native haunts in Africa and Central America. The leaf toads, Dr. Mann said, have habits different from those of any other species of the toad family. They hide away during dry spells and emerge only during wet weather. With their flat, broad backs, they are absolutely invisible when lying among the foliage. The egg-eating snakes require special feeding, as they live only on eggs. There were originally four specimens, but one died before its arrival here.

A trio of the white-lipped peccaries, members of the pig family, were shipped from Central America. Dr. Mann says they are very vicious and are dreaded by all hunters. They are the gift of a native of Honduras, who captured them young and tamed them.

Disbeliever

Weather Man Skeptical of St. Swithin's Legend as Rain Indicator.

St. Swithin's Day, if thou dost rain
For 40 days it will remain;
St. Swithin's Day, if thou be fair,
For 40 days 'twill rain na mair.

Back about the year 862 A. D. an old English bishop died. A century later he was made a saint. It was suggested his burial place should be moved into a church. However, the day his body was to be shifted it began to rain. For 40 days and nights it continued to pour.

This was taken as an ill omen, and the bishop's body stayed where it was. Since then, the legend goes, if a drizzle comes up on that day a long spell of damp weather is in prospect.
